Phelan To Take Oath Monday As 32nd Mayor

BY TOM HENSHAW

For the first time in a dozen years, a new mayor of Quincy will be sworn in Monday when William J. Phelan takes the oath of office from his father-in-law, Arthur Tobin, the Quincy court clerk magistrate and a former mayor himself.

Phelan, 42, a school committee member, who was running in only his second election campaign, defeated veteran Mayor James Sheets, who was seeking his seventh two-year term, by 17 votes after a recount to become the 32nd mayor of the city.

A total of 28 men have preceded him in the front office at City Hall, including Gustave B. Bates, Charles A. Ross and Thomas S. Burgin who served divided terms.

The inauguration ceremony will get underway at 10 a.m. Monday in the Lloyd Hill Auditorium at Quincy High School with the call to order by City Clerk Joseph Shea. Shea will also swear in nine city councillors, four of them newcomers to that body.

The four new councillors are Joseph G. Finn, at-large; Kevin F. Coughlin in Ward 3, Bryan C. Connolly in Ward 4, and Douglas S. Guitro in Ward 5.

Veteran councillors returning are Timothy P. Cahill and Frank McCauley, at-large, Gregory M. Hanley in Ward 1, Daniel G. Raymond in Ward 2 and Joseph J. Newton in Ward 6.

The City Council will then organize for the Year 2002, with Raymond poised to be elected president succeeding Paul D. Harold, who also holds the post as Norfolk County Register of Deeds and did not run for reelection.

Members of the School Committee, who will be sworn in by Mayor Phelan, include Jo-Ann M. Bragg, Michael E. McFarland and Ronald Mariano, all of whom won reelection without opposition. The School Board will then organize for the coming year.

Phelan's term on the committee, which still has two years to run, will be filled later at a convention that will include members of the City Council and remaining members of the School Committee, including Phelan, who will be chairman by virtue of his office.

The inaugural invocation will be delivered by the Rev. William McCarthy, former pastor of St. John the Baptist Church in Quincy Center, where new Mayor Phelan teaches a Sunday School class and coaches a girl's basketball team.

The benediction team will include the Rev. Daniel Graham, pastor of St. Joseph's Church; the Rev. Sheldon Bennett, minister of United First Parish Church; Rabbi Jacob Mann of Beth Israel Synagogue; and Imam Talal

Phelan Announces First Four Staff Members

Mayor-Elect William Phelan has named his first four appointees to serve on his executive staff.

They are: Laurie Allen, originally from Squantum; Ronald Donovan of Lenox St. in Houghs Neck; Celeste McGlone, originally from Quincy Point; and Kristin Priscella of South Quincy.

As of press time, job descriptions and titles had not been finalized. It is possible that one of the four selected could serve as the mayor's executive secretary. There is also the possibility of additional appointees in the near future.

Phelan will be sworn in as the city's new mayor Monday.

'Especially Beautiful After Sept. 11'

Proud, Emotional Day For Olympic Torch Bearers

By CHRIS POISSON

In all of his years involved in the sport of baseball, Ray Cattaneo had never experienced the emotion he felt last Thursday afternoon.

One of nine residents selected to carry the Olympic torch as it made an historic visit to Quincy, Cattaneo said he almost had to stop as he walked the torch two-tenths of a mile from Cottage Avenue to the ceremony held between Presidential Place and the Church of Presidents on Hancock Street, where he lit the cauldron.

"You really don't know how it's going to be until you get off that little van and grab the torch and start walking," said Cattaneo, 71, who has been a volunteer coach in American Legion baseball for over 30 years.

"You can't explain that part of it. Great emotion. I lost my breath. I thought I was going to have to stop. It wasn't from being out of wind, it was just the emotion. My heart was pumping really fast."

With hundreds of spectators on hand to see the flame, waving small American flags, Cattaneo linked the Olympic event to the country's patriotism following the events of Sept. 11.

"This is beautiful," he said. "And what makes it especially beautiful is after what happened on 9-11. This is just a wonderful thing for this country and for this city. It's quite an honor to carry this torch. I love you all and God bless America."

The Olympic Torch Relay began in Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 4 and the torch will arrive in Olympic Stadium in Salt Lake City for the 2002 Winter Games Feb. 8. It will have been carried by 11,500 torch bearers for more than 16,500 miles through 46 states in 65 days.

Mayor James Sheets emceed the ceremony in Quincy — one of only two such ceremonies held in Massachusetts.

"I wish to express my appreciation to the Salt Lake City 2002 Olympic Committee for all of the cooperation," Sheets said. "And I want to thank them for choosing Quincy. What makes Quincy being chosen such an honor is that we did not ask to be chosen. They chose us."

Following the ceremony, Karen Cashman-Lehman carried the torch north on Hancock Street to Adams Street, where she passed it to her brother, Ron Cashman.

A bronze medal winner in team speed-skating in the 1994 Winter Olympic Games in Lillehammer, Cashman-Lehman, who grew up in Quincy and lives in Plymouth, recalled the opening ceremonies of those games.

"There's a phrase inside my suit and it's written on the torch as well, and it says, 'Light The Fire

Within.' That phrase is so true. When I was at the opening ceremonies at the '94 Olympic Games in Lillehammer, I was so proud to walk in as a member of the United States team. But it really didn't feel like the games had started until that torch was lit at the stadium. It really lit the fire within me."

The other torch bearers were Dan Coughlin, a dean at North Quincy High School, who first carried the torch from Scammell Street to Berry Street along Quincy Avenue.

Gaetano Spinelli and his son, Guy Spinelli, carried it along Hancock Street to North Quincy High School.

Geoff Hennessy, a Quincy Track Club organizer and scholastic track coach, and Donald Cornell and David McCarthy helped carry the torch through Boston later in the afternoon.

Quincy's Four New City Councillors

Their Thoughts, Goals And Philosophies

Four new city councillors will take their seats at the inaugural ceremonies Monday, Jan. 7, which will begin at 10 a.m. in the Quincy High School auditorium.

The four are: Joseph G.

Finn, 45, at-large; Kevin E. Coughlin, 46, Ward 3; Bryan C. Connolly, 27, Ward 4 and Douglas S. Gutro, 36, Ward 5.

Quincy Sun staff reporter Craig Salters sat down with them to hear their thoughts, goals and philosophies as they prepare to assume their new duties.

The interviews begin on this page.

Kevin Coughlin To Bring Proactive Approach To Council

On the night of Tuesday, Nov. 6, Kevin Coughlin won the Ward 3 City Council seat amid the cheers of friends, family, and neighborhood supporters.

By Wednesday morning, Nov. 7, Coughlin was fielding calls from constituents seeking tree removals, tree plantings, sidewalk repair, and other "bread and butter" issues of the typical city councillor.

"I thought there might be a honeymoon period," Coughlin joked, "but it started coming at me fast and furious."

Which, in reality, is just fine with Coughlin, a longtime city activist who has been an officer in the Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association since

Joseph Finn Favors 'Back To Basics' Approach For City

By CRAIG SALTERS

Revealing a habit which could bode well for many residents in the city, Councillor at-Large-Elect Joseph Finn can't seem to talk politics for more than 10 minutes without mentioning the phrase "street and sidewalk repair."

"It's time to get back to basics," said Finn, who will be sworn in Jan. 7 as the city's newest councillor at-large, taking his seat beside returning Councillors at-Large Timothy Cahill and Frank McCauley.

The city's concern over its streets and sidewalks, Finn said, has been pretty clearly "spelled out" by residents and it's a concern Finn shares, expressing an interest in the Public Works Committee of the City Council.

Finn, currently executive director of the non-profit Shelter, Inc. and former director of Father Bill's Place and the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition, also expressed an interest in helping to address the city's housing needs via the council's Housing Committee but said understanding the committee system was more important than being on any one committee.

"Overall, it's understanding how the committee process really works in this city and how it can be used to bring people in to voice their interests and concerns," said Finn, who said his own definition of government's role was "to benefit everybody, particularly ordinary people."

In general, Finn described the weeks following his successful election Nov. 6 as "a period of education" which he has spent meeting with various city organizations and interests, trying to learn as much as he can about issues of concern to the business community, police and fire departments, and so forth while attending the orientation sessions for new councillors sponsored by Council President-Elect Daniel Raymond.

"The wisest approach anyone can take is to recognize what they don't know," said Finn, adding that this approach wouldn't keep him from speaking his mind or taking appropriate action during the learning process.

Finn's "back to basics" approach doesn't preclude a larger vision for the city, either, but asks that the city's actions be purposeful and well-planned.

"We still need to keep an eye on the future," said Finn, an attorney. "We have to know what kind of city we want and then do the homework."

As examples, Finn offered former City Councillors Ted DeCristofaro, Larry Chretien, and Michael Cheney.

"They all had different personalities, different points of view," Finn said, but they all managed to do what was right for the city and keep people "engaged and involved."

They also could "create something in real time," Finn said, pointing to Chretien's efforts on recycling and Cheney's work with First Night Quincy.

Finn, who lives on Williams St. with his wife Dolores and their sons James Patrick, Connor, Michael, and Kevin, said the excitement caused by the recent elections could be used to energize the city.

"This is a great opportunity for people to become engaged and stay engaged," Finn said.

The New First Lady And History

Pretty Tracey Tobin Phelan, who becomes Quincy's First Lady Jan. 7, is a shy, quiet person who will prefer to remain in the background during her husband's administration.

Similar to her predecessor, Joann Sheets, for whom she has great admiration: "She's so nice," she says.

A couple of years ago, the young mother of four wouldn't have dreamed her husband was destined to be the next mayor.

"His political career just kind of happened," she says. "He wanted to be on the school committee because of our children and the other children in the city."

Then, earlier this year, she says, Bill Phelan started thinking about running for mayor. He thought it was time for a change.

"We talked about it for about three months and I agreed, and he ran. I'm proud of him."

Her mother, Shirley Tobin, was the city's First Lady for four years during her husband Arthur's two terms as mayor from 1978 to 1981. She, too, preferred the background.

And now, as her daughter becomes first lady, she muses: "I feel a little like Abigail Adams."

She and Tracey will be the first mother and daughter first ladies in the city's history.

And Arthur Tobin, you might say, could feel a little like John Adams whose son, John Quincy, became president.

He and Phelan will be Quincy's first father-in-law and son-in-law mayor combinations.

AT AGE 42, Phelan will be the sixth youngest of the 29 individuals to take office as mayor.

The youngest was Russell Sears who was only 27. Three were in their 30s: Charles Francis Adams, 30; Thomas Burgin, 33 and James McIntyre, 35. Eugene Stone and Walter Hannon were 41.

Quincy's oldest mayor going into office? Gustave Bates who was either 63 or 64 in 1923 depending on whether he was born in 1859 or 1860. Both years are given as his birthdate.

But, if you count Plan E mayors, the oldest was David McIntosh who was 67.

Under Plan E, however, a city manager was the chief executive and the mayor was actually a city councilor who served as ceremonial head and presided over the city council.

Jim Sheets was 54 when he was sworn in for the first of his six terms

Democratic Candidates For Governor Invited To Ward One Breakfast

The Ward 1 Democratic Committee has invited all the candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor to attend and speak at the Committee's annual breakfast Saturday, Jan. 6, at 10:30 a.m. at the Quincy Yacht Club.

The candidates, most of them as yet undeclared, include Senate President Thomas Birmingham, State Secretary William Galvin, former State Sen. Warren Tolman and former U. S. Labor Secretary Robert Reich.

"I know this has been a busy season and short notice," said Committee Chairman Michael Berry, "but in a few short weeks we must caucus and select delegates to represent Ward 1 at this year's convention."

"This will be a good time to meet the candidates and in 1990.

AND, DID YOU know that three mayors were not born in the U.S.? James Thompson and Charles Ross were both born in Scotland and John Miller in Nova Scotia. Miller is the only Quincy mayor who died while in office.

THE FOUR NEW city councillors -- Joseph Finn, Kevin Coughlin, Bryan Connolly and Doug Gutro -- represent the most new faces coming into the council together in 28 years.

There were five -- all ward councillors -- in 1974: Leo Kelly (2), John Lydon (3), James Sheets (4), Warren Powers (5) and Dennis Harrington (6).

There was also a five-member turnover in 1996 but they weren't all fresh faces.

Paul Harold and Dan Raymondi had served in previous years and Steve Durkin had been a school committeeman.

Brand new to the council and elective officer were Michael D'Amico and Patrick McDermott.

DON'T KNOW IF this will make Steve Durkin feel any better, but he is not the first and only city council incumbent to lose in a preliminary election.

It happened to Daniel Dennehy 66 years ago according to Councillor and former Mayor Frank McCauley, the city's unofficial political historian.

Dennehy was elected to the Ward 6 seat in 1933. But seeking re-election in 1935, he came in third in the preliminary election, behind Roy Means and Avery Gilkerson.

Means won the final election that year but in 1937 was defeated by Frank Orcutt.

And, Dennehy finished third again as an apparent write-in candidate.

IN LAST WEEK'S column we mentioned Chris McCarthy of Squantum as among those interested in filling Bill Phelan's two-year unexpired term on the school committee. And, identified him as a lawyer.

Actually, he is the national account manager for the U.S.-based S & D coffee firm. But he is interested in filling that term.

He's been involved in youth sports as a coach and is a member and former vice president of the Squantum Community Association.

McCarthy says he is interested in only serving the two years.

"I have no political ambitions beyond that," he says. "I wouldn't run for re-election."

get a feeling of where they stand on issues of concern to the people of Quincy."

The breakfast is open to all and a donation of $12 may be made to the Ward 1

Democratic Ward Committee.

Following the breakfast, the committee will hold a reorganizational meeting.

Kevin Dwyer Army Second Lieutenant

Kevin R. Dwyer has graduated from Officer Candidate School (OCS) at Fort Benning, Columbus, Ga., and was commissioned as a second lieutenant in the U.S.

Army.

Dwyer is the son of Richard P. and Lanie A. Dwyer of 74 Graham St., Quincy Point.

Quincy's Yesterdays Della Chiesa Protests City 'Open City' Designation

By PAUL HAROLD

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa protested the U.S. State Department's designation of Quincy as one of eight cities in Massachusetts that Russians could visit. The designation was part of a national plan that delineated what areas outside of Washington and New York were open to Russian diplomats and visitors.

Della Chiesa said Quincy should be a "closed city." "After all we have some mighty vital defense operations here in our big shipyard, our various electronics factories and the like," he said.

SCHOOL ANNEX NAMED FOR BRADFORD

The school committee unanimously voted to name the trade school annex after former Mayor William Bradford. Two years earlier they turned down the proposal because of a policy against naming buildings for living persons.

Bradford served on the school's advisory board for 25 years.

Wendell Clark was charged with making arrangements for a plaque and appropriate ceremonies for its installation.

'BOY MAYORS' NAMED

Mayor Della Chiesa named two Houghs Neck youths "Boy Mayors" for their honesty in returning a wallet they found behind a radiator at city hall.

John MacDougall of Bay View Ave. and Barry Allison of Ratchford Circle were in city hall to accept a prize they won in the city-wide fire prevention campaign to collect Christmas trees for disposal. They collected 133 trees.

The mayor conferred the special designation and let the boys sit in the mayor's chair.

QUINCY-ISMS

Building Inspector Alrick Weidman reported that 1954 was the third busiest building year in the city, just behind 1945 and 1951 with 1,721 permits issued for a total value of $4.8 million in new construction. . . The new U.S. senator from Michigan, Patrick McNamara, said he was returning to Quincy to attend the reunion of the Fore River apprentice organization. . . The demolition of the Oar and Anchor on Chestnut St. was underway to create more parking downtown. . . Sports columnist and baseball player Sam Mele was the speaker at the St. Ann's Holy Name Society meeting at the auditorium of the Wollaston School. . . The city council met with representatives of Hall Cemetery to discuss the city's interest in purchasing that part of the cemetery where the colonial iron works was located. . . Retiring principal John Mahoney was honored by the Atherton Hough PTA. He was principal since 1930. . . Rev. Bedros Baharian welcomed 28 new members of the Triple C Society at Quincy Point Congregational Church. . . Rev. Frank Bauer accepted the gift of a 250 pound Grand Trunk Canadian National Railway bell to hang in the belfry at Wollaston Lutheran. A 'Thank You' From Quincy Animal Control

The Quincy Animal Control, in cooperation with the non-profit Quincy Animal Shelter, would like to thank all the citizens of Quincy and the surrounding communities for their generous contributions during this holiday season.

The food and supplies continue to roll in as I type this letter. Through this generosity, it enables the Quincy Animal Shelter to spend their monies on some much needed medical expenses for the animals.

Normal expenses for the animals can run quite high, but then the special needs animals come in and you never know what that will cost.

Thanks again and have a great new year.

Potato, Egg Omelet

At our house when we have a big breakfast, it's usually on the weekend. I had found this recipe for an omelet that was a bit different. In that one, they used potatoes cut in small pieces. But when I made it, I used potatoes made on the cheese grater cut thin almost translucent slices, which I've been making for years.

The morning I made it to try it out, I was so excited at the results that I quickly called our son and my food critic, Dom who lives down the street. He told me he had already had a donut, but he'd come up for a taste anyway. Needless to say, he almost finished the whole thing. You can also use breakfast sausage, but this day I used bacon. Just think when you go a restaurant and order eggs, bacon and home fries, the following recipe is the whole thing in one!

Potato, Egg Omelet

2 potatoes (sliced on grater, thin)
3-4 eggs (slightly beaten) about 3 tablespoons shredded cheddar cheese

salt and pepper to taste
4 strips bacon (cooked and cut in small pieces)
2 tablespoon olive oil and a smidgen of butter or margarine for frying the potatoes
1 tablespoon of the same for the omelet.

First in hot oil fry the potatoes turning them until they are brown on each side. Set aside

Then cook the bacon, drain and set aside. (I usually use the microwave)

Beat the eggs slightly. Measure out the cheese. Now you are ready for the omelet.

In a frying pan, get the oil real hot or whatever you use for frying. Add the potatoes, and the eggs right on top. Keep your heat to medium while you add the rest of the ingredients. Now on top of the eggs, place the bacon and the shredded cheese. Cover the pan and cook until it looks like it could be turned without coming apart. Now turn and cook on the other side until done. Serve hot. It is really a delicious blend.

Record Numbers For Quincy College's January Commencement

Quincy College's January Commencement Exercises, to be held Saturday, Jan. 5 at 1 p.m. in the auditorium of Quincy High School, will mark the college's 45th year as an institution of higher education.

The event is also expected to be the largest January graduation class in the school's history as the college anticipates the graduation of 208 students with Associate of Arts or Associate of Science degrees.

The college, founded under the GI Bill in 1956, had its start under the Quincy Public Schools. In the fall of 1956, the first two of what would become hundreds of courses were offered on an experimental basis.

By the next fall, 67 students had enrolled for evening sessions held at Quincy High School, taking English Composition, College Algebra, General Psychology, and American Literature.

Quincy College was the last established of the municipal junior colleges and today is the only city-governed community college in Massachusetts and is separate from the state's 15 community colleges.

In 1958, then Governor Foster Fimicola signed legislation establishing the state community college system that also prohibited the creation of new colleges by city sponsorship.

Today, the college is one of the largest community colleges in New England, serving the needs of more than 6,500 students a year from more than 85 Massachusetts communities and 90 countries through its campuses in Quincy Center and downtown Plymouth.

The college celebrates students' academic achievement through Commencement Exercises twice each year, in January and in June.

Bryan Connolly Eager To Address Ward 4 Challenges

By CRAIG SALTERS

In a period of national economic downturn and tightening state aid, Ward 4 Councillor-Elect Bryan Connolly doesn't think labels of fiscal conservatism or liberalism do much good, if they ever did at all.

"I'm on the fiscally responsible side," said Connolly, who said a major theme of his campaign had been "long-term vision and success—making the part work."

Even a "puncher," Connolly said.

As anyone who follows the news knows, it's pretty apparent that we'll be dealing with more limited state aid this year and our own county budgets are going to take some creativity."

But that doesn't mean, he said, being penny-wise and pound foolish, pointing to the Housing Development in West Quincy as one example where earlier action could have saved the city later headaches.

"Perhaps an expense may be politically tough, and we have to be cognizant of the fiscal limit, but we also have to maintain a proactive attitude on all issues," said Connolly, 27, a graduate of St. Mary School in West Quincy, Boston College High School, and the University of Notre Dame and currently completing his law degree at Boston College Law School.

One area Connolly would like to see an increase in is services for the city's seniors, adding that he was eager to put into action several campaign ideas for seniors including workshops on how to file for tax abatements and increased emphasis on SWAP and other senior programs.

Connolly also favors instituting a new system for repair of the city's streets and sidewalks.

Connolly emphasized the importance of education in his campaign and said he wanted to make a positive difference in that area during his two-year term, which begins Jan. 7 with swearing-in ceremonies at Quincy High School.

BRYAN CONNOLLY, Councillor-Elect for Ward 4, is ready to get started addressing some of the issues he raised during his successful campaign such as education, a comprehensive traffic plan, and an increased emphasis on seniors. "Politics is really just what you can do to help people," Connolly said.

"I've always felt that education gave me a great advantage in my life and I want to make sure the Quincy Public Schools are always striving for excellence for the families of Ward 4 and across the city," Connolly said.

Asked to name certain role models for his fledgling political career, Connolly, whose enthusiasm during a discussion is almost tangible, jumps at the chance: "Can I name three?" he asks.

Connolly, a lifelong resident of Ward 4, chose former City Clerk and current Norfolk County Commissioner John Gillis for Gillis' commitment to "always putting people first," the late Clifford Marshall, former Norfolk County Sheriff for whom Connolly once served as an intern, for Marshall's

"charismatic leadership" on projects such as construction of a new jail in Dedham; and former Norfolk County District Attorney and current Congressman William Delahunt for Delahunt's intelligence and his advocacy for Quincy residents.

A trait common to all three, Connolly said, was that "they never forgot their roots."

"Politics is really just what you can do to help people, and these men understood that," Connolly said.

Connolly thanked Council President-Elect Daniel Raymond for a series of orientation sessions for new councillors and said he was ready to get started serving the residents of Ward 4.

"There certainly is a steep learning curve that all city councillors must face," Connolly said, "but I'm optimistic."

Connolly, who is single, lives on Gridley St.

of experience, said he will set education and public safety high on his list of priorities when he, three fellow new councillors, and five returning councillors are sworn into office Monday, Jan. 7, at 10 a.m. at Quincy High School.

Conceding the economic downturn and the tightening of state funds, Coughlin said all projects, new and old, would face a strict "cost-benefit analysis" but also said economic woes should not keep the city from doing its

job. "There's no question we're going to have to be accountable for every dime we spend because that's what the taxpayers expect and deserve," Coughlin said, but added, "It's an absolute matter of trust that we continue to fund education and public safety and, as best we can, fund public works projects and basic city services."

Coughlin, whose first taste of politics was holding campaign signs for Hubert Humphrey, said he viewed

Doug Gutro Ready For Role As Councillor

Even a brief discussion with Ward 5 Councillor-Elect Doug Gutro shows him to be a focused, detail-hungry, and task oriented individual with a new goal for himself: to be the best first-term city councillor that he can be.

"I want to get out of the box fast," said Gutro, who has spent much of the time since the Nov. 6 election meeting with community groups, department heads, and others "to get up to speed" on a wide range of city issues such as street and sidewalk repair, sewer and drain repair, flooding, and downtown development prior to the Jan. 7 inauguration of elected city officials at Quincy High School.

"When someone calls me and asks, 'Why isn't my street plowed?' it just helps to have a name and a face at your fingertips," said Gutro, a program manager with the United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), a past president of the Ward 5 Community Association, and a member of the Wollaston Beach Task Force.

"I'm very focused and business-oriented because it's my obligation to prepare, listen, and work on behalf of the people who elected me."

Gutro listed his three top priorities as the budget, neighborhood improvements, and ward and city-wide issues, the latter two of equal value but the first one, Gutro said, of paramount importance.

To better ensure fiscal responsibility, Gutro said he is working "to get a better grasp of the nuances in terms of reduced state aid and how that will impact priorities for the coming year." He emphasized "vigilance on long-term debt decisions" and the necessity of "protecting the 'Rainy Day Fund' to make sure it's available in the event of even further economic downturn."

Gutro, who said he would scrutinize development projects in terms of how they enhance the tax base, allow for economic growth, and protect the neighborhood, said he wanted to bring "fairness and perspective" to tax issues in the city.

With respect to the city's tax classification for business, which will be voted on by the new council rather than the old because of state budget delays, Gutro said he favored more public hearings, more public input, and finalized figures from the state but added:

"It's troubling that, however the numbers work out, individuals and businesses will likely see an increase in their final tax bills."

Gutro, who noted that redistricting will put both Quincy Center and Wollaston business districts in Ward 5, said he was eager to play a role in downtown development issues such as traffic, parking, and business development.

In terms of neighborhood and ward improvements, Gutro said one key would be to facilitate much needed road and sidewalk repair and address traffic-related issues through roadway improvements.

As for the continuing clean-up of Wollaston Beach, a cause closely connected to Gutro for several years, he said he considers it both a ward and citywide issue.

"The goal is to make Wollaston Beach swimmable, improve access, and make it more pedestrian friendly," said Gutro. "It happens to sit squarely in the ward, but to me it's as much of a local attraction as the city's historic sites and business centers."

Regardless of the issue, Gutro, who offered the "constituent service" oriented former Speaker of the House, the late Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, as one example of a good public servant and the "do your homework" styles of both outgoing Council President Paul Harold and incoming Council President Daniel Raymond as two more, wants to hit the ground running.

"With any free time that I have, I'm investigating city issues and searching for information on similar issues in other cities and towns," Gutro said. "In most cases, we're not the first street, neighborhood, or city to face that issue and we can benefit from that wealth of information."

Gutro, a lifelong resident of the city, lives on Marlboro St. with his wife, Susan.

Coughlin To Bring Proactive Approach To Council

1994 and serves as co-chairman of the Quincy Family Council/Mayor's Commission on the Family.

"My primary focus will be to deliver any basic city services that haven't been addressed yet for whatever reason," Coughlin said. "That is the base line for any city councillor."

After that, Coughlin, an assistant chief probation officer with the Middlesex Probate and Family Court with more than two decades of experience, said he will set education and public safety high on his list of priorities when he, three fellow new councillors, and five returning councillors are sworn into office Monday, Jan. 7, at 10 a.m. at Quincy High School.

Conceding the economic downturn and the tightening of state funds, Coughlin said all projects, new and old, would face a strict "cost-benefit analysis" but also said economic woes should not keep the city from doing its

job. "There's no question we're going to have to be accountable for every dime we spend because that's what the taxpayers expect and deserve," Coughlin said, but added, "It's an absolute matter of trust that we continue to fund education and public safety and, as best we can, fund public works projects and basic city services."

Coughlin, whose first taste of politics was holding campaign signs for Hubert Humphrey, said he viewed his new role less as that of a "politician"—a term sometimes used cynically—and more as that of a public servant responsible to the people.

"The people who elected us are our employers," said Coughlin, adding his belief that "the purpose of government is to help people and to help people to help themselves."

That type of attitude, he said, will inform his vote when a special convention of the City Council and School Committee meets sometime after Jan. 7 to fill the unfinished term of School Committee member and Mayor-Elect William Phelan, who will be sworn in as mayor that day.

Ideally, Coughlin said, a new member of the School Committee should have a background in education but, just as importantly, that new member should have a career of active, positive involvement.

"I will be looking for someone who has a passion for education and a concern for the welfare of children," Coughlin said.

A lifelong resident of the city, Coughlin is a member and past director of the Quincy Lions Club, a member of the Greater Quincy Knights of Columbus, the Sacred Heart Parish Council, and a coach since 1994 of Sacred Heart Youth Basketball.

He and his wife Domenica have three children: Maria, James, and Matthew.

Daughter Erika 'Keeping His Spirit Alive'

Platelet Drive Honors Life Of Edward Pettinelli

By CRAIG SALTERS

Erika Pettinelli was a tenth grade student at Quincy High School in 1999 when her father, Edward Pettinelli, a longtime math and reading teacher at Sterling Middle School, was waging his battle against cancer and needed a bone marrow transplant.

"When I found out, I figured I had to do something," said Pettinelli, now a QHS senior, "something to help him, to make it easier for him."

That she did. With the help of QHS science teachers David Smith and Raymond Whitehouse, Pettinelli wrote a letter which she sent to friends, family, and her father's colleagues throughout the Quincy Public School system asking them to become part of "The Quincy Group" and donate platelets at the Kraft Family Blood Donor Center at the Dana Farber Cancer Institute, now located in the Jimmy Fund Building.

The response: well over 100 initial appointments for platelet donation with an impressive percentage of repeat donors.

"Erika's a hero to us," said Louis Goldberg, donor recruiter for platelet donors at Dana Farber. "She institutionalized platelet giving in the Quincy area. The donors just kept coming back."

Sadly, Edward Pettinelli lost his fight with cancer in October of 2000, but daughter Erika is honoring his memory by organizing a "Remembrance" platelet drive to help those who still desperately need platelets.

"It's a way to keep his spirit alive," said Pettinelli, whose platelet drive, complete with a personal letter, is one of the first service projects of the Leo Club, a newly formed service organization of Quincy and North Quincy High School students connected with the Quincy Lions Club. "He was always there for people, always helping."

There is no set date to donate platelets at the Kraft Family Blood Donor Center at the Dana Farber Cancer Institute. To register as a member of "The Quincy Group," or for more information, those interested can call the center at (617) 632-3660.

First-time donors may make appointments during the following hours: Monday through Thursday, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.; and Friday, 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Platelet donation hours for returning donors are Monday through Thursday from 7 a.m. until 6 p.m.

Eligible donors must be in good general health and free of chronic diseases; weigh at least 110 pounds; feel well on the day of donation; and be 17 years of age or older.

Known as apheresis, the entire platelet donation process takes approximately two hours total, including 90 minutes of actual donation time.

"Basically, they take your blood, run it through a machine that separates the platelets, and then you get your blood back," explained Smith, himself a Lions Club member and QHS advisor to the Leo Club.

The process, Smith said, is very safe and similar to blood donation but, because the donor gets his blood back, a donor can donate every two weeks up to a maximum of 24 times per year.

The short time between possible donations is the good news; the bad news is that platelets have a shelf life of just five days from donation to infusion into a patient.

"People have a constant need for platelets," said Smith, who started donating platelets 28 years when a

Quincy High School student in his homeroom died from leukemia shortly after being accepted into a six-year medical program at Yale University. "Without platelets, you'll hemorrhage."

Platelets are the cellular clotting agents that work in conjunction with other clotting factors to control bleeding. They are essential to the treatment of individuals fighting cancers such as leukemia and lymphoma, patients undergoing chemotherapy, recipients of organ transplants, and those who suffer loss of blood during surgery.

While volunteers are making their donation, they watch movies, read books, or listen to music in their own private areas, a level of comfort made possible through the generosity of Robert Kraft, better known as the owner of The New England Patriots.

"He picks up the bill for the entire thing," said Smith. "People don't know how amazing he truly is."

In encouraging others to donate, Pettinelli touted the donation process as a great learning experience, which it is, but the conversation eventually returned to the idea of helping others, which Pettinelli said her father did every day as a father, husband, teacher, and coach and as a loyal friend to his basketball buddies, fellow Torre Dei Passeri members, and many others.

"It just shows you have people around you and that, even in a situation like this, you're not alone," Pettinelli

DAVID SMITH, a science teacher at Quincy High School and QHS advisor to the Leo Club, began donating life-giving platelets almost three decades ago after a QHS student in his homeroom died of cancer. In 1999, Smith was there for Erika Pettinelli, also in his homeroom, helping her to organize a platelet drive to help her father, Edward Pettinelli, who was then battling cancer. Pettinelli died in October of 2000.

Consider Closing Costs When Weighing Loan Options

By CAROL BULMAN
President
Conway Financial Services

In our experience, besides the interest rate on the loan, customers most often ask about the fees they are charged in connection with obtaining a mortgage to purchase a home.

The good news for homebuyers is that the Federal Equal Credit Opportunity Act requires lenders to provide customers with a "Good-Faith Estimate of Closing Costs" within three days after they apply for a mortgage. A Good-Faith Estimate is just as the name implies — an estimate of the costs that will be charged to the borrower at closing, as long as the terms and amounts do not change.

At closing, borrowers generally pay the following items:

- Attorney fee: There will be fees charged by a closing attorney for services performed for the lender. In addition, the buyer and the seller may each retain their own legal counsel to review documents and to represent their interests in each stage of the process.

- Title examination. This charge, which is sometimes included in the attorney fee, covers the cost of examining all records pertaining to previous ownership, transfers and other transactions that may affect the buyer's or the lender's interest. This is sometimes called a title search or abstract.

- Documentation. The buyer or the seller may have to pay a fee for the preparation of final legal papers, such as the mortgage contract, mortgage note or deed. Be sure to ask the mortgage lender if these services are included under some other service fee.

- Title insurance. The borrower is required to pay the cost of lender's title insurance coverage. This protection covers the property up to the amount of the mortgage against loss due to potential problems that were not discovered in the title search. The buyer will have the opportunity to purchase an owner's policy of closing, which covers the value of the property above the amount of the mortgage.

- Recording and transfer fees. The buyer pays this fee to legally record and transfer new ownership. The fees are set by local, county and state government.

- Survey/plot plan costs. The lender will order a plot plan to determine lot lines and exact location of the house, as well as easements and possible rights of way. Occasionally, a full survey may be required.

- Points. Each point equals 1 percent of the mortgage amount. Although their purpose is described in various ways by different lenders — such as origination or discount fees — points represent the equivalent of prepaid interest and processing fees.

- Appraisal fee. This pays for an evaluation and a statement of market value of the property, usually made by an independent appraiser or a qualified member of the lender's staff. The lender is legally obligated to determine whether the property has the value to repay the loan in case of default.

- Credit report fee. The lender obtains a copy of the borrower's credit report to determine how he or she has handled credit in the past, and what outstanding debts he or she may have.

- Escrows. In the case that the lender is paying the monthly real estate taxes and insurance premiums, the borrower will be asked to pay, on average, two to three months' taxes and/or insurance at closing. This money belongs to the borrower. It is placed in an escrow account held by the lender in the event that it is needed to assist in the payment of the tax bill or insurance premiums when they come due.

- Per-diem interest. At closing, the borrower pays the daily interest due from the date of closing to the end of that month. This amount varies greatly, depending on the date of closing, and is something to consider when budgeting for closing costs.

For example, since mortgage payments are made "in arrears," payments made on the first day of the month cover the previous 30 days. Therefore, if a loan closes on Nov. 15, the first payment (covering the month of December) is not due until Jan.

1. In order to account for the extra 15 days (the difference between Nov. 15 closing date and Dec. 1), the borrower must pay 15 days' worth of interest at the closing table.

The exact amounts of these items vary slightly from lender to lender; therefore, when shopping for a mortgage, ask the lender to supply a good-faith estimate of closing costs.

Doing so before applying for a mortgage gives you the tools to determine which deal is the best one to suit your needs.

But what if the lender doesn't want to supply one?

Well, in that case, I would make an extra couple of phone calls to find a lender who will provide this vital information. It will be time well spent.

RECOGNIZING A QUALIFIED BUYER

The overwhelming majority of buyers sign a real estate contract before receiving a formal commitment for a mortgage. With this in mind, sellers should know what to look for in terms of a qualified buyer. A lender's written commitment, not to be confused with pre-qualification of even pre-approval, indicates that an underwriter has examined and verified a borrower's information and will issue a loan for a specified amount. It also represents the buyer as a "cash buyer" who sellers may draw upon for strings and more serious buyers than those who do not have a true loan commitment. Cash buyers can immediately sign off on the financing contingency common to real estate contracts.

It can be frustrating for buyers to locate a house that they like to discover that they do not have the finances to make a purchase. This can also be a difficult situation for the seller. At ERA CENTRAL REAL ESTATE, we have the real estate expertise to bring buyers and sellers together efficiently. We advise prospective buyers on what they can afford based on their income and savings and direct them to mortgage lenders. From negotiating an offer to signing the purchase and sale agreement, you can rely on us for thoughtful, professional guidance. Call us at 617-328-1312 to arrange a consultation, or visit us at 128 Mayor McGrath Highway, Happy New Year!

HINT: A loan commitment enables buyers to avoid weeks of house shopping for a home that is more expensive than the loan amount.

Decorator's Notebook

From Full House To Empty Nest

(NAPS) -- As their children move out, many parents are reinvesting in the empty nest by redecorating.

The American Furniture Manufacturers Association (AFMA) surveyed parents whose children have moved out and learned that nearly half of America's empty nesters will reinvest in their nest by renovating their current homes, purchasing a new home or even by splurging on a vacation home.

According to the research, one out of four empty nesters will purchase higher quality home furnishings that were considered impractical with children at home and limited budgets. Some 78 percent of those surveyed have their eye on a "dream" piece of furniture.

"Empty nesters enjoy entertaining at home and are beautifying their surroundings more than ever before," said AFMA Vice President Jackie Hirschhaut. "They are eager to redecorate in a style that reflects their new lifestyle and at the same time showcase their homes with home furnishings they didn't allow themselves before."

When it comes to renovation, new living room furniture is first on the list, followed by a makeover of Junior's old room.

Research shows that children's rooms most likely will become a library, hobby studio, guest room, home theater or home office. But while the rock posters and pop art come off the walls, parents don't say goodbye to their children altogether.

"Often times, parents will accessorize renovated rooms with family mementos, photos, diplomas and other sentimental treasures," said Hirschhaut.

Other top rooms targeted for improvement include the master bedroom, dining room and family room.

David Murphy Combines Knowledge And Guessing $125,000 Winnings On 'Millionaire' Will Help Buy A Home

By CRAIG SALTERS

David Murphy may not have won a million dollars on the game show Who Wants To Be A Millionaire?, which aired last Thursday night, but he and his wife Amy are a whole lot closer to realizing their dream of owning a home in Quincy.

"We've always wanted to buy in the city," said the recently married Murphy, who won $125,000 during an October taping of the television program but had been sworn to secrecy until its Dec. 27 airing.

"We had a five year plan, but what this means is that we'll be able to pay off some bills and settle in Quincy a lot sooner."

Murphy, program director for the Quincy Park and Recreation Department, said his victory didn't really sink in until he watched the episode on television just like everybody else.

"It became real when I saw it on television," said Murphy, who hosted a party that night at the Quincy Lodge of Elks for more than 200 friends and family members to watch the episode with him.

"I was as nervous watching the show as I was taping the show," said Murphy, explaining that he didn't know what parts of the taping had been cut and what parts would be broadcast.

But Murphy added that watching the show with family and friends was the best part of the entire experience. "It was a blast," he said.

Murphy, who took some ribbing for his "smaagt guy"

Boston accent from the show's host, Regis Philbin, had to use his three "lifelines" early but combined knowledge with an uncanny knack for guessing to win the big money.

"I'm considering a trip to Abu Simbel just to figure out what the heck it is," joked Murphy, referring to his final correct answer of the night.

Murphy finally figured discretion was the better part of valor on the $250,000 question, deciding not to guess as to which of four generals finished last in his class at West Point.

Many Quincy residents have since approached Murphy wishing that he had one more "phone a friend" lifeline because they knew the answer: General George A. Custer.

$675,000 In Federal Funds For Manet Health Center

The Congress has approved a proposal from Congressman William Delahunt for $675,000 to modernize Manet Public Health Center facilities in Quincy and Hull.

The allocation, which received final approval recently, will help renovate the Hull facility of the Manet Center, which provides a range of medical services to over 50,000 uninsured or under-insured South Shore residents. The funds will also be used to upgrade the health center's antiquated case management system.

"Now, more than ever, community health centers are on the front lines for the millions of Americans without adequate medical insurance," Delahunt said.

Since 1979, the non-profit Manet Center has provided a full range of medical services throughout a 50-mile South Shore area. Its five sites -- four in Quincy and one in Hull -- offer primary and specialty care for Medicare and Medicaid beneficiaries and for many other local residents who face geographic, economic, and cultural barriers to health care.

In addition to a standard family practice, the Community Health Center's care ranges from nurse-midwifery to nutrition to nursing home care; from HIV testing to school counseling to homeless shelter visits.

The allocation approved Thursday will permit the clinic to begin extensive and overdue renovations to its Hull facility. Its problems range from substandard heating to roof leaks so severe that patients' records are at risk. The clinic has committed to contributing $125,000 to rehabilitate the structure. The federal aid will also fund computer upgrades to integrate its information network so that patient casework can be tracked from any of the five sites.

The $675,000 commitment came through the FY2002 appropriation for the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. The project has been a legislative priority for Delahunt for the last year. The President has committed to sign the bill into law.

With health costs soaring, community health centers last year offered basic care to nearly 11 million low-income Americans.

Over the past three years, community health centers have experienced an increase of more than a million uninsured patients annually. That figure continues to rise at a rate of 100,000 persons per month.

A further spike in demand is now underway, as many more anticipate loss of jobs -- and related health benefits -- in the wake of post-Sept. 11 economic uncertainties.

Quincy Council On Aging Awarded $91,480 For FY 2002

The Quincy Council on Aging will receive $91,480 in Formula Grants for Fiscal Year 2002 from the state's Executive Office of Elder Affairs.

The $91,480 figure was announced Monday by state Sen. Michael Morrissey and state Reps. Stephen Tobin, Ronald Mariano, and Bruce Ayers.

The legislators also pointed out that the Fiscal Year 2002 distribution amount for the Commonwealth's 347 Councils on Aging is greater this year, reflecting the change in the economy and increase in need of services to seniors.

For FY 2002, the base calculation for formula distribution is $5 per senior and is based on the 1990 United States census because the 2000 United States census figures are not available.

"There are 18,296 persons 60 years or older multiplied by $5, which brings the total to $91,480," said Morrissey. "The Legislature has increased the total amount per person incrementally for the past five fiscal years now."

In FY 1998, the base dollar amount was $3.50.

"While the 1990 United States Census does not reflect today's senior population figures, we have been aware of the growing senior population over the past 10 years and the need for increased services and the formula change represents this," said Tobin.

The funds will be used by the Council on Aging for a variety of services important to seniors, such as transportation, and will give a Council on Aging great flexibility to address senior needs, said Mariano.

The funds can also be used to increase outreach to the Asian community. "This money is important in helping the Council on Aging provide services directly to Asian seniors and bridge language and cultural differences," said Ayers.

"As the world changes and evolves, so does our senior population," said Morrissey. "Local Councils on Aging are becoming a greater reflection of our commitment to seniors and we will continue to work to address seniors' priorities."

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

A December To Remember For Quincy

4-1 Mark Exceeds Expectations

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy High School girls' basketball team finished off the month of December better than anyone might have expected.

With a come-from-behind 49-45 home victory over Marshfield last Thursday night, the Presidents improved their record to 4-1 overall. After a winless campaign last year, the dramatic turnaround has been more of a surprise than the New England Patriots making the playoffs.

"It's been a credit to the girls," said first-year head coach Jeff Bretsch. "They're playing as a team, from top to bottom, all 12 girls. That has been the biggest difference and why we're off to a good start."

With the holiday season having passed, Quincy kicks off the new year with Atlantic Coast League games after a string of non-league contests to begin the season. It opened league play yesterday (Wednesday) at Dennis-Yarmouth and tomorrow (Friday) night it hosts Whitman-Hanson at 6:30.

"We're going to have some big challenges for us in the league, but we're exactly where we want to be at this point," Bretsch said.

In the win over Marshfield, which also beat in the season opener, Quincy battled back from a 24-18 halftime deficit and a 10-point deficit midway through second half to pull out the win.

Sparking the rally were sophomore guards Bonnie Hirtle (team-high 16 points) and Sarah Shea (10 points), who each nailed two 3-pointers in a span of several minutes.

"We came back courtesy of four 3-pointers in a couple of minutes midway through the second half," Bretsch said. "That was huge. From there it was a dog fight."

Indeed, the Presidents finally tied the game at 45-all when junior forward Stephanie Fiandaca (seven points) hit a free throw with about a minute and half remaining on the clock. Fiandaca also played an important role defensively, holding Marshfield's Megan Duffy (game-high 25 points) in check down the stretch.

"She came off the bench and did a great job of guarding Duffy," Bretsch said. "She made it hard for her to get a shot off."

Junior forward Shannon Paine hit a layup to give the Presidents a 47-45 lead, their first lead since five minutes into the game. With about 10 seconds left, Quincy missed a 3-pointer but Fiandaca grabbed the offensive rebound and scored on the putback to close the scoring and seal the win.

In her first start, freshman center Alysia DiMuzio turned in a solid game with eight points and nine rebounds.

"Marshfield led most of the game and they were just pummeling us," Bretsch said. "It was a nail-biter at the end. I'm impressed with their confidence because they are such a young team. We're playing team defense and we're not selfish on offense. We're just looking to win. That attitude is what is making a difference."

In previous action, Quincy defeated Brighton twice, home and away, in a span of three days. On Dec. 20, Shea buried three treys and finished with 14 points to lead the Presidents to a 44-31 win.

Paine added 13 points and DiMuzio eight. With one of the starters unable to play due to illness, Fiandaca came in to anchor the defense, holding Brighton's most dangerous player to just five points.

On Dec. 18, the Presidents knocked off Brighton, 48-42, in a thrilling, double-overtime affair. After struggling a bit during regulation, Paine (10 points) found her scoring touch in the second overtime with seven points to cement the win.

Hirtle scored a team-high 15 points, including three 3-pointers. Shea hit a couple of clutch baskets down the stretch and finished with eight points.

"We struggled through the free-throw line, but the girls made up for it with heart," Bretsch said. "It was an important test for our girls to pass to be able to succeed in a high-pressure situation."

Presidents Paste Plymouth North, 6-2

By CHRIS POISSON

It was only a matter of time before the Quincy High School hockey team would separate itself from its opponent.

Locked in a surprisingly tight game for almost two periods, Quincy blitzed Plymouth North for a pair of goals in the final 3:44 of the second and added two more in the third en route to a 6-2 victory last Saturday night at Quincy Youth Arena.

Quincy (5-0-1) faced off against city rival North Quincy yesterday (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. and it will host Whitman-Hanson Saturday night at 7:50.

Coming back from a 10-day break, the Presidents showed no effects of rustiness as the offense peppered the Blue Eagle goalie all night long. It just so happens that netminder was playing out of this world for nearly two periods before Quincy's depth became a factor.

"We just had too many horses," said head coach Bob Sylvia. "We must have had 50 shots, at least. Their goalie was fantastic."

"We told the kids to stay cool, stay within your system. There's too much fire power for this kid to do it all by himself. If he does, there's nothing we can do about it."

Senior forward Andy Ross snapped the 2-2 deadlock when he received a pass back from senior forward Dave Germain in front and slipped it past the goalie at 11:16 for his second goal of the game.

Nearly 10 seconds later, senior goalie Tom Shruhan made a sensational save on a blast in the slot to preserve the lead for Quincy.

"Tommy made the saves after the first two when he had to make them," Sylvia said. "I think he tightened up a little bit."

With four seconds left in the frame, senior defenseman Shawn Richardson caught Plymouth North on a line change and fed the puck up to Germain, who netted the backbreaker for the Blue Eagles.

In the third, sophomore forward Matt Germain, Dave's brother, scored an unassisted goal at 7:16 and Dave Germain closed out the scoring at 11:54.

Plymouth North got on the board first when it cashed in on a Quincy turnover at 7:50 of the opening period. Quincy evened the score at 12:10 on senior Paul Campbell's power-play goal.

In middle frame, Ross scored on a nice pass from Matt Germain for a 2-1 lead just 27 seconds into the period. Plymouth North, though, responded with the equalizer nearly a minute later.

LETTING OFF STEAM

As a vehicle's engine heats up, the pressure in its coolant system rises. If this pressure exceeds the level that the radiator cap was designed to withstand and there is no coolant recovery system, the coolant bypasses the radiator cap and escapes through an overflow pipe near the fill hole. This provides a safe avenue for the vehicle to let off steam. If this overflowing condition occurs often, the vehicle may lose enough water and coolant to substantially lower the level in the cooling system. This leads to additions of water that, eventually, lower the level of coolant protection to inadequate levels. To prevent this problem, consider the installation of a coolant recovery system, which returns overflow to the radiator. Don't hesitate to ask any questions about your cooling system or about anything else related to your car when you bring it into LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO for servicing. We have modern test equipment, the right parts and the best ASE Certified service technicians available in the area. Let's get acquainted at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). Major Screening Tests Recommended

Using the major screening tests (that is routine tests for people without symptoms) recommended by the editors of the University of California Berkeley Wellness Letter can help you have a healthy 2002.

The following information can be found in the latest thoroughly researched, evidence-based medical advice, The Complete Home

Wellness Handbook (Rebus, Inc., October 2001). This comprehensive reference guide offers easy-to-follow solutions, strategies and remedies for a wide range of problems, from the most basic health complaints to major diseases.

Professor Emeritus John Edward Swartzberg, M.D., F.A.C.P., and Sheldon Margen, M.D., a distinguished primary care physician, two faculty members from one of America's most trusted public health facilities — the School of Public Health at the University of California Berkeley — and the editors of the UC Berkeley Wellness Letter have lent their expertise to this authoritative book.

For adults 40-65:

- Get blood pressure checked once every two years for those with normal blood pressure.
- Get cholesterol checked at least once every five years, more often if the total cholesterol number is elevated (above 200 mg/dl) or the HDL cholesterol is low (below 35 mg/dl), and/or you have cardiac risk factors.

- Get a colorectal cancer screening (fecal occult blood test and/or sigmoidoscopy) at age 50 and then annually for the occult blood test; at age 50 for sigmoidoscopy and then every five years thereafter.

- Get screened for diabetes mellitus.
- Get screened for glaucoma (every three to five years, beginning at age 39).
- Get screened for thyroid disease (for people over 50, especially over 50 who have experienced symptoms of hypothyroidism or who have high cholesterol levels).
- Get a dental checkup (every six months).

IMPLANTS, PAST AND PRESENT

The first dental implant is reputed to be the copper peg implanted in the upper jawbone of an Egyptian king about 3,000 years ago. The success of present-day implant technology can be traced to the 1960s and the work of a Swedish scientist who discovered that titanium would fuse to bone. This led to the development of titanium screw anchors, which are implanted in the jaws to integrate with the bone and serve as "roots" for replacement teeth, or crowns. Good candidates for dental implants are those with healthy gums and sufficient bone to hold the implant. Recent advances in bone grafting are making implants possible for people who would have been considered untreatable just a few years ago. Since dental implants look and feel like natural teeth, they naturally enhance your appearance. To find out if implants are a solution for you, call 617-479-6220 for an evaluation today. We provide a wide array of services, including implants, crowns and bridges, dentures, and cosmetic and restorative dentistry. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. Oral health is a long-term commitment we share with each patient. We provide excellent clinical skills and state of the art equipment. Our goal is to help you preserve your natural teeth for a lifetime. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com. P.S. Implants are considered to be superior to bridges, in most cases, because they are stronger and do not involve neighboring teeth.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) The New Year brings challenges that can change many things in your life. You need to be prepared not only to confront them, but also to deal with what happens afterward.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You have what it takes to set your goals quite a bit higher this year. Learn what you need to know and put what you learn into your efforts. A partner offers loving support.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) In true Gemini Twin fashion, you're conflicted about a decision you know you'll have to make in this New Year. Best advice: Get the facts before you make any commitment.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A friend offers you an exciting opportunity for the New Year. Although your positive aspects are strong in most respects, caution is advised. Investigate before you invest.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You can make this New Year a roaring success. Start by readjusting your goals to reflect the changes in the economy. Your den-mate offers both wise and loving support.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) The New Year brings new opportunities for change. But you need to be ready to move from the comfortable status quo to the challenging unknown. It's up to you.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your most important New Year's resolution should be to work out problems with a family member in order to avoid continued misunderstandings. Do it soon, for both of your sakes.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) The New Year has much to offer the intensely determined Scorpion, who isn't afraid to take on challenges and stay with them until they surrender their rears.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You'll have many fine opportunities in this New Year. But be warned: Reject offers of "help." You work best when you're free to be your own creative self.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) The New Year offers changes that you might feel you're not quite ready for. Best advice: Deal with them one step at a time, until you've built up your self-confidence.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Travel is a dominant aspect of the New Year. This could mean relocating to another city (or even another country) in connection with your education or your career.

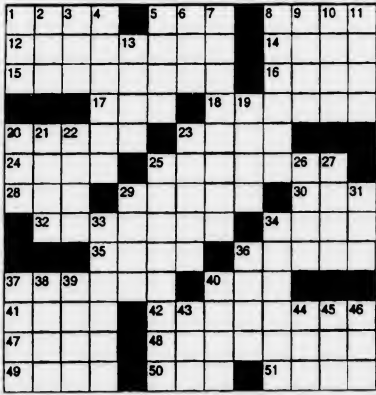

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) This New Year brings news about a change you've been anticipating. You might have a problem persuading a loved one about your new plans, but he or she will soon go along with them.

YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK: You have a gift for making people feel safe and protected. You would make an excellent youth counselor.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Much has been written about aging... Some humorous; some serious. We can across a little gem we thought you might enjoy as much as we did. It is entitled, "IT'S LATER THAN YOU THINK."

"Everything is fatter than it used to be.

It's twice as far to the station for instance, and they have added a hill, I've noticed.

Seems to me they are making staircases steeper than they used to make them in the good old days. And have you noticed the small print they are using? Newspapers are getting farther and farther away when I hold them, and I have to squint to make out the news. No sense in asking to have them read aloud. Everyone speaks in such a low voice a person can hardly hear them.

The barber doesn't hold a mirror behind me any more so that I can see the back of my head. The material in my suits is always too skimpy around the waist and in the seat. And shoe laces are so short they are all but impossible to reach.

Even people are changing. They are so much older than I am. I ran into an old classmate the other night, and he had aged so he didn't recognize me. I got to thinking about the poor old fellow while I was shaving this morning. While doing so, I glanced at my own reflection in the mirror. Confound it! They don't have the same kind of glass in mirrors any more!" ...

INVITATION TO BID

CITY OF QUINCY, MASSACHUSETTS

Department of Public Works

James A. Sheets

Mayor

David A. Colton

Commissioner

The Department of Public Works for the City of Quincy, Massachusetts invites sealed bids from Contractors for the Repairs to the Snug Harbor & Bernazzani Schools Contract, according to the documents prepared by Peterson Engineering, Inc. in conjunction with the City of Quincy Department of Public Works.

The project consists of comprehensive exterior renovations to two school buildings including removal and replacement of windows and doors, roofing, flashing, paint, sealant, masonry repairs and miscellaneous related works at the Snug Harbor and Bernazzani Schools.

General bids will be received until 1:00 PM local time on Wednesday, January 23, 2002 in the offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, MA 02169, at which time and place all bids will be publicly opened and read aloud. Mailed Bids should be sent to the Department of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, MA 02169 and received before the date and time specified above, for receipt of general bids. All prospective general bidders must be certified by the Division of Capital Asset Management (formerly DCPO) in the category of Metal Windows. The bid will only be valid when accompanied by a Certificate of Eligibility issued by the DCAM, showing that the Bidder has been approved to bid on projects of the size and nature of that advertised, and an update statement summarizing the Bidder's record for the period between the latest certification and the date the Bidder submits a Bid for this project.

Filed Sub-Bids will be received on Wednesday, January 16, 2002 at 1:00 p.m. in the offices of the Commissioner of Public Works in the following categories: a) roofing & flashing; b) waterproofing - joint sealant; and c) masonry.

A refundable deposit of $25.00 (certified check or money order) is required for each set of Contract Documents. Bidders requesting Contract Documents by mail shall pay an additional non-refundable amount of $15.00 per set to cover shipping and handling costs. All checks shall be made payable to the City of Quincy. The Contract Documents may be obtained during the business hours from 8:00 AM to 3:00 PM at the Offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, Contracts Bidding Division, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, MA 02169 on or after Wednesday, January 2, 2002.

General bids and sub-bids shall be accompanied by a bid security in the amount of five percent (5%) of the total value of the bid in the form described in the Instructions to Bidders. The Successful Bidder shall be required to furnish a one hundred percent (100%) Construction Performance Bond and a one hundred percent (100%) Payment and Materials Bond from a surety company acceptable to the City.

The bidding and award of this contract shall be in full compliance with Massachusetts General Law, Chapter 149, as last revised. No bidder may withdraw the bid within 60 calendar days after the actual date of the opening of the bids. All Federal/State and City of Quincy regulations in relation to Minimum Wage Rates, Minority Work Force, Equal Employment Opportunity and Employment of Quincy Residents, and Apprenticeship Training must be complied with. Failure to comply with these requirements may render the bid non-responsive, and thus ineligible for further consideration. No waiver for any portion of these provisions will be granted. The City reserves the right to waive any informality in or to reject any or all bids if deemed in the best interest of the City. The City does not condone submission of unbalanced bids. Such bids may be summarily rejected.

17-By-22-Foot Wide Canvas Quincy Girl Wins Olympic Torch Relay Art Contest

If artistry was an Olympic sport, Kate Jalbert of Quincy would win a gold medal.

Jalbert was chosen as Quincy's winner of the Coca-Cola Olympic Torch Relay Community Canvas Art Contest.

The contest invited young people from local youth programs from across the country to enter original artwork depicting an inspirational person, place or event in their community.

"What you can see is three people all of different colors around a star, which runs along the theme of hope and inspiration," said Jalbert of her artwork. "It shows people reaching toward a star, which is their goal, and as long as you have hope and inspiration you can reach for anything in the future."

A 17-by-22-foot-wide canvas of Jalbert's original artwork was unveiled in front of hundreds of people during the ceremony at Quincy Center last Thursday as the Olympic torch made its way through Quincy.

Jalbert, a member of The Colonel Daniel Marr Boys & Girls Clubs of Dorchester, was also presented with a commemorative plaque to honor her achievement.

Stroke Association Hawaiian Marathon Meeting At QMC

The American Stroke Association will host an information session Thursday, Jan. 24, at 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. at the Quincy Medical Center to recruit participants for the "Train to End Stroke" fundraising program.

The program invites those taking part to travel to Kona, Hawaii, on June 23 to run (or walk) a marathon (or half-marathon) while raising funds to combat stroke, the nation's No. 3 killer.

The Quincy session will explain the steps people need to take to prepare for the marathon through a five-month marathon training program led by a professional coach.

Airfare, hotel accommodations and ground transportation to the Keauhou-Kona Marathon are covered by meeting the fund-raising minimum of $4,500.

The funds raised, which totaled $1.7 million in 2000, are used for stroke research and education. Training begins the first weekend in February.

May all the aches and pains of 2001 become a distant memory in 2002!

New Era Begins With New Mayor

Phelan Sets Public Safety, Budget Savings As Priorities

HISTORIC MOMENT -- New mayor William Phelan takes the oath of office from his father-in-law, former Mayor Arthur Tobin, clerk magistrate of Quincy District Court, at inaugural ceremony Monday at Quincy High School auditorium. They are Quincy's first father-in-law, son-in-law mayors.

Public Safety will be the number one priority of the new administration, said Mayor William Phelan during his inaugural address given Monday morning in the Lloyd Hill Auditorium at Quincy High School.

"We face a world changed utterly and completely by the horrifying events of Sept. 11," Phelan told audience members who packed the 515-seat auditorium to witness the new mayor take the oath of office along with members of the City Council and School Committee.

To that end, Phelan said he would appoint a Commission on Public Safety to establish an emergency policy for the city with clearly defined guidelines and an equally clear chain of command.

For Phelan, A Day And Night To Remember

Monday, Jan. 7 was a day and night to remember for new Mayor William Phelan and the city which elected him.

"It was unbelievable," Phelan said Tuesday from his new office on the third floor of City Hall, referring to Monday morning's inauguration ceremony at Quincy High School — which saw residents fill all 515 seats and the aisles of Lloyd Hill Auditorium — and a Monday night reception at the Crown Colony Marriott which saw thousands turn out to greet their new mayor, the 32nd in the city's history and the first new mayor to be inaugurated in 12 years.

Executive Secretary Laurie Allen, a former executive assistant to former Governor William Weld and no stranger to inaugural receptions, said she was amazed by the

Elected School Committee Vice Chairwoman

Cedrone Pledges To Meet Challenges Of Coming Years

Calling family members and former teachers who taught her the value of education "heroes," newly elected School Committee Vice Chairwoman Christine Cedrone pledged to meet the challenges of the coming years and "fulfill the promise" of a new Quincy High School, a new Central Middle School in the renovated former QHS, and a renovated Sterling Middle School.

"My heroes are in this room," Cedrone told the standing-room-only crowd attending inauguration ceremonies in the Lloyd Hill Auditorium at Quincy High School, recalling her own days at the school where she learned that "with hard work, anything is possible."

"As a student here at Quincy High School my teachers were the central figures in my life," Cedrone said, thanking them for their patience, guidance, and encouragement.

Cedrone, who was unanimously elected to serve as vice-chairwoman by her colleagues, said challenges will include such issues as the requirements of the MCAS Tests, budgetary constraints, and the upcoming contract negotiations with all Quincy Public School Employees.

"We will also fulfill a promise to the Quincy High School, Central Middle School, and Sterling Middle School communities by building a state-of-the-art building for Quincy High School, renovating the existing Quincy High School building for a state-of-the-art Central Middle School, and renovating the Sterling Middle School building into another state-of-the-art middle school for Sterling," Cedrone said.

"We will overcome any challenges and keep our promise to the citizens of Quincy."

Cedrone was nominated for the position by School Committee woman Jo-Ann Bragg, the former vice-chairwoman, who praised Cedrone's efforts as a chairwoman of the Special Education Committee and of the QHS Siting Commission.

Cedrone, Bragg said, was "a person who listens, does her homework, and gets the job done."

Supt. of Schools Dr. Richard DeCristofaro was elected secretary of the School Committee and Tefta Burreli was elected clerk of the School Committee, beginning her 22nd year in that position.

Mayor William Phelan is ex-officio chairman of the School Committee.

New Council President

Raymondi Urges Joint Committee On Teacher Recruitment, Retention

In remarks made Monday morning following his unanimous election by fellow city councillors, new Council President Daniel Raymondi called for the creation of a joint committee of the City Council and School Committee to address the issue of teacher recruitment and retention in the Quincy Public Schools.

"We all understand that recruitment and retention are primarily financial issues and almost all strategies will have a financial impact on the School and City budgets requiring action by both the School Committee and the City Council," said Raymondi, speaking before the hundreds who had crowded the Lloyd Hill Auditorium at Quincy High School to witness inauguration ceremonies for new Mayor William Phelan as well as members of the City Council and School Committee.

"It is clear that the School Committee and City Council must devise strategies that will recruit and retain the highest quality professional educators in the area.

"Therefore I am asking that a joint committee be established of the City Council and the School Committee, with the assistance of the Supt. of Schools (Dr. Richard DeCristofaro), to meet and devise strategies to resolve this crisis."

As evidence of the "crisis," Raymondi told those gathered that, over the past five years, Quincy Public Schools had lost 91 teachers with less than five years of experience.

"Quincy needs to commit to a plan to recruit the best teachers. But don't end it there... provide professional development... and then pay them what they deserve," Raymondi said.

Raymondi's call for a joint committee was part of remarks which outlined three broad areas of concern for the city: Education, Community and Neighborhoods, and Public Safety.

Specifically, Raymondi advocated for such things as: the continuance of small class sizes in the Quincy Public Schools, the expansion of Early Childhood and Full-Day Kindergarten programs across the city, the expansion of Community Policing, improvements to the infrastructure of the Quincy Fire Department, and movement on the delayed projects to build a new Quincy High School, create a new home for Central Middle School, and renovate Sterling Middle School.

"Fellow councillors, Mr. Mayor, let's get started," Raymondi urged.

Although Raymondi said that it was not time for the city to cut funding and "absolutely not the time for staff and budget cuts," he called for cooperation and unity as the city addressed the many issues before it.

"We must work together not because it is the safest strategy, but because the future of our city depends on it," he said.

Raymondi, who began his remarks by thanking his wife Sharyn, called it "an honor" to represent Ward 2 and to be called upon to lead his fellow councillors. The vote to elect Raymondi was 8-0 as Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton, who was serving on a federal jury, was unable to attend the inauguration ceremonies.

"The challenges are clear and important," Raymondi said. "But we can do it. We begin today."

As part of the ceremonies, Norfolk County Register of Deeds Paul Harold, the outgoing council president, handed Raymondi an oversized, ceremonial "Millennium Gavel," a tradition started by Harold's immediate predecessor, Peter Kolson.

Jeanne Reardon was also unanimously elected to serve as clerk of committees, a position she has held since 1980.

The other city councillors beginning their terms are: Gregory Hanley (Ward 1), Kevin Coughlin (3), Bryan Connolly (4), Doug Gutro (5), and Joseph Finn. Timothy Cahill, and Frank McCauley, all at-large.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Jan. 13, 1842, a sole British soldier escapes Kabul when a British army doctor reaches the British sentry post at Jalalabad, Afghanistan. He was the lone survivor of a 16,000-strong Anglo-Indian expeditionary force that was massacred in its retreat from Kabul.

• On Jan. 9, 1894, William Kennedy Laune Dickson copyrights the first motion picture. The movie, filmed in February 1893 at the Edison studio in West Orange, N.J., features 47 images of a man sneezing.

• On Jan. 7, 1903, Zora Neale Hurston, novelist and folklorist, is born in Eatonville, Fla. Although at the time of her death in 1960, Hurston had published more books than any other black woman in America, she was unable to capture a mainstream audience in her lifetime, and she died poor and alone. Today, she is seen as one of the most important black writers in American history.

• On Jan. 8, 1918, in an address before a joint meet-

Would Sheets Run Again?

As William Phelan took his oath as Quincy's 32nd mayor Monday, a political question lingered.

Would Jim Sheets run again? Might there be a Phelan-Sheets rematch in two years?

Probably not. But -- maybe yes.

Asked on one of his final days in office if he would consider another run, Sheets replied:

"I wouldn't rule it out. Right now though it would seem a little doubtful. But . . ."

After 12 years as the mayor, it may take a while for him to get used to being the former mayor. As for many others, too.

Twelve years is a long time to be the chief executive and then, out of the blue, have someone take the title, prestige and power from you.

By a scant 17 votes out of 24,935 cast.

Losing by that thin a margin can give a defeated candidate mental fits: "if only we had done things a little differently, the outcome could have been different," etc.

But Sheets seemed consoled as he prepared to leave office -- his office for 12 years -- that virtually as many voters wanted him to continue as mayor as those who wanted Phelan as their mayor.

At 66, and after a political career spanning 28 years (including four of them as a state representative and 16 as Ward 4 councillor) Sheets doesn't sound like he's ready for retirement.

Does he have any plans?

"I have had some offers," he says.

He isn't pursuing the open presidency of his alma mater, Eastern Nazarene College.

How about returning to Quincy College as a teacher?

"I don't think so."

The future, he indicates, could be something in state or federal government or in the private sector.

"Something challenging," he says.

He doesn't say so, but the feeling you get is that possibility could depend on how Phelan fares the next two years.

Of the 27 men -- before Sheets -- who have held the office, only two lost it and came back to reclaim it.

The first was Gustave Bates, who lost to Joseph Whiton in 1916 and came back in 1922 to defeat incumbent William Bradford.

Bates was either 66 or 67 (no one seems to be sure) in his successful comeback bid. Just about Sheets' age.

The second was Charles Ross who was forced out of office in 1935 because of campaign contributions and expenses violations including spending more in the 1934 election than allowed by law.

Ironically, former Mayor Thomas McGrath who Ross defeated in 1934, also had spent more campaign money than allowed.

Ross came back to be elected and vindicate himself in 1942.

Coincidentally, Thomas Burgin was elected to succeed Ross when he was ousted in 1935. And Ross succeeded Burgin when the latter decided not to seek a fifth term in 1942. World War II was on and Burgin went into the Navy.

Ross served through 1949 when Plan E was voted in and took effect with William Deegan as city manager and chief executive in 1950.

Former mayors have also come back to the city council.

Among those who did return were Russell Sears, Charles Bryant, Joseph LaRaia, Frank McCauley, Whiton and Burgin. LaRaia was the only one of them to lose the mayor's office.

And then there was John Quincy Adams who became a congressman after serving as the sixth president.

In politics you just don't rule any possibility out.

Sheets says he is mystified over the City Hall break-in at Personnel Director Kevin Madden's office. A bizarre event still under investigation, one that has triggered speculation and cast a cloud in the waning days of Sheets' 12-year administration, one most residents would agree overall was a positive one.

"I find it hard to believe," Sheets says.

As for his successor, he says:

"I wish Bill Phelan well. I would be happy to assist him in any way."

Though Monday was Phelan's day, Sheets drew a warm, loud ovation when introduced. Phelan drew what started off as a roar. An applause meter though might have shown them fairly close. Like the election.

Though the pairs sat side-by-side for a good part of the inaugural ceremony, there was little if any small talk between them.

But when Phelan completed his 13-minute or so inaugural address -- one sprinkled with humility and reality -- he and Sheets shook hands as the latter congratulated him.

And that's what Quincy wanted to see: a public handshake.

And now it's time to move ahead.

Faxon Field Still New QHS Site

Emphasizing that the action does not impact the chosen site for the new Quincy High School or its construction timetable, Mayor William Phelan confirmed that, at his request, a Notice of Intent to build the new QHS on Faxon Field had been withdrawn from consideration by the Quincy Conservation Commission.

Before a re-filing, Phelan said, he wanted to go "door to door" talking to nearby residents, some of whom have protested the project, citing concerns such as flooding.

"You have to begin in the neighborhoods prior to moving forward," Phelan said, explaining further that this example of what he called a "People First" policy would be a priority in his administration.

"While we know the location (of the new QHS) as to the parcel of land, there will be negotiations on the specific location, design, and traffic concerns with residents."

The actual withdrawal of the notice took place under the administration of former Mayor James Sheets in consultation with DPW Commissioner David Colton but was at Phelan's request.

Speaking at a press conference following his inauguration Monday, Phelan emphasized that his decision "in no way" delayed the long-term timetable to construct the new Quincy High School on Faxon Field next to the existing school.

Phelan also said the state's commitment to fund 90 percent of construction costs for the new high school was "secure" and that he wanted "to move very, quickly on the project."

The Faxon Field/Coddington St. site was chosen by the city in June of 2001, contrary to the recommendation of a Siting Commission which chose the current DPW site at 55 Sea St. The long awaited new high school was originally slated to be built over a former Bethlehem Steel landfill off of Quincy Ave, a plan scrapped after public outcry.

Christopher Carroll currently serves as chairman of the Quincy Conservation Commission.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1927 POSTCARD view of the old Quincy Adams railroad depot that was on the corner of Liberty and Water Streets in South Quincy. It was on the outboard or west side of the tracks. Built of Quincy granite in 1870 it had a slate roof and an eight-foot canopy on all four sides. A dwelling was on the second floor. In the 1930s the Water Street bridge was built to eliminate the last railroad grade crossing in Quincy. This building was in the way and it was torn down in 1936. Today this depot site is in the northbound lanes of the Burgin Parkway.

READERS FORUM

Changing Of The Guard

On Jan. 7, there was a graceful, democratic, in the best sense of the word, "change of guards" at City Hall in Quincy.

Mayor James A. Sheets was succeeded by new Mayor William P. Phelan.

Mayor Sheets reigned as mayor for 12 years. If he had kept each day a one-page long diary of what he did, the book of his achievements would have been more than 4,000 pages long.

After the mayoral election, former Mayor Francis X. McCauley praised Mayor Sheets for what he did for Quincy Hospital. During the mayoral campaign, McCauley's praise was missing. As a matter of fact, during the mayoral race, he was over-critical of Mayor Sheets. This political misstep slid Frank McCauley from second place in the primaries for councilor-at-large to third place in the final election. This shows that even if you are intelligent and full of experience, there is always room for learning.

I disagreed when some said and some wrote that it was time for a change. My thinking was confirmed by a statement made by Bill Phelan himself, when he said that "For a long, long time to come," he will need the advice and wisdom of Jim Sheets. By that statement, Bill Phelan won my heart. Thus, this young politician, our new mayor, showed for the second time to be the leader who points out the way, rather than follows the crowd. The first time he showed it was when he shocked the establishment when he decided to run against a magnificent candidate, Jim Sheets.

For me, Jim Sheets' greatest achievement was his attempt to reactivate the Quincy shipyard. It was Sheets, and a "foreign born foreigner," Emmanuel Sotiros, a Greek, who tried to do what no one else tried to do.

Mayor Sheets is a graduate of Eastern Nazarene College in Quincy. In his political career he practiced what he learned in his college. His college needs a new president now. Jim Sheets is eminently qualified and I recommend him without any reservation to become its president.

Buffalo And All That Snow

As I read newspaper accounts in daily newspapers about the City of Buffalo, I can only thank God that my parents were Bostonians. Recently, Buffalo had a five-day storm that dropped 82.3 inches of snow and when I last heard, the snow was still either falling or about to fall again.

Once I thought Boston had a terrible winter snow record, but up in Buffalo it's the Blizzard of '78 every snowstorm. I pity Buffalo-ites. However, I question why folks don't just move. We all have no say where we're born but we all choose where we stay and live. Hey, Boston looks like Miami Beach compared to Buffalo.

How does anyone get used to that much snow? And why? Imagine the biggest lottery up there is who will get more snow, the folks in Buffalo or their fellow New Yorkers in Syracuse. Sounds like a lose-lose situation to me.

Pretty soon the Buffalo Bills will be using sled dogs to get yardage. Nothing is going right for them. Between the snow and the horrible year the Bills are having, even Syracuse looks good.

Groundbreaking For Broad Meadows School

By PAUL HAROLD

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held this week for the new $2 million junior high school at Broad Meadows in Merrymount.

DPW Commissioner Charles Herbert said the new school would accommodate 800 students and was scheduled to open for the school year in September, 1957.

Contractor for the project was the James Kelliher Company in Quincy.

PITTS NAMED WIRE INSPECTOR

City Manager Donald Blatt named Fire Captain William Pitts of Atlantic St. as the city's new inspector of wires at a salary of $5,000, replacing Fred Lints.

Pitts served on the fire department since 1941 and held both a journeyman's and master electrician's license. He was a graduate of the Quincy Trade School.

His appointment created a chain of vacancies in the fire department, opening an appointment for a firefighter, lieutenant and captain.

GROSSMAN SCHOLARSHIP ESTABLISHED

Employees of the Grossman Sons Company honored the chairman of the board and his wife on their 50th wedding anniversary by establishing the Rueben and Lizzie Grossman scholarship at Brandeis.

Eight hundred employees attended an open house at the Masonic Temple honoring the Grossmans, where their oldest son, Nissie, announced the scholarship that would be open to students of all South Shore area schools.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Rita's Lasagna Portabello

It was a family Christmas party second to none as far as the variety of food.

Held in a hall, it boasted about 25 entrees that were part of the huge buffet table with a tons of desserts at another table. All food was made by the family.

One of the entrees was lasagna portabello made by our daughter Rita. It takes a little time, but well worth it when you taste the results.

Lasagna Portabello

For the filling

- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 2 pounds portabello mushrooms (stemmed and chopped finely)
- 1 1/2 pound white mushrooms (stemmed and chopped finely)
- 2 10 ounce bags of fresh spinach (chopped, wilted and squeeze drained)
- 1 medium onion (chopped)
- 4-5 garlic cloves (chopped)
- 3 tablespoons dry sherry
- 1 4 cup grated parmesan
- 1 pound ricotta cheese
- 1 egg slightly beaten
- 2 cups mozzarella or muenster cheese
- salt and pepper to taste
- 1 box no-cook lasagne sheets

For the white sauce

- 1 stick unsalted butter
- 1 1/2 cup flour
- 3 cups whole milk (scalded or heated in microwave 2 minutes)

1 1/2 cup grated parmesan

Melt butter, add flour the beat for 4-5 minutes. Add heated milk slowly over medium heat until it just comes to a boil, and is smooth and thickened.

Remove from heat, add the parmesan and stir until smooth. Cover and set aside.

For the mushrooms, add the olive oil in a pan, sauté the onion and garlic. Add the mushrooms and cook over medium heat until water released is almost absorbed.

Add the sherry and cook for another 2 to 3 minutes.

Remove from heat and add the rest of the ingredients for the filling. Add only 1/2 cup of the mozzarella or muenster (save rest for the top)

In a 9 x 13 pan, place one layer of the pasta sheets. Spread about 3/4 cup white sauce over and then a cup of filling over that.

Alternate until last layer, ending with pasta. Cover with white sauce and sprinkle mozzarella on top.

Cover with foil and bake at 350 degree oven for 50-60 minutes or until bubbling and browned on top.

Cool for about 30 minutes and then cut in squares to serve.

Needless to say, no one was watching their diet that day!

MR. and MRS. JAMES JOHNSON

Marianna Franciosa Wed To James Johnson

A reception at Mosley's on the Charles followed the recent wedding of Marianna Franciosa and James A. Johnson.

Father Bill Mullen officiated at the ceremony held at St. John's the Baptist.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mario Franciosa of Quincy. The groom is the son of Gwendolyn Hunt.

Luciana F. DeGrenier was Matron of Honor. Bridesmaids were Dawn Bertrand, Marie Johnson, Cassandra DeGrenier and Alanna Johnson. Arianna DeGrenier was the flower girl.

Greg Muldoon and Richard Alves were the Best Men.

Ushers were Frank Drogo, Tim Howard, Joseph DeGrenier Jr. and James Johnson Jr.

The bride graduated from Quincy College Registered Nurse Program. She is working as an RN at West Roxbury VA Hospital.

The groom graduated from Ryder University and Northeastern University Law School. He is employed at Boston VA Hospital in fee basis and does legal consultation.

After a wedding trip to Hawaii and Las Vegas, the couple are living in Weymouth.

THE ATRIUM at Faxon Woods recently celebrated its first year anniversary as a part of the community. Residents, family members, staff and the community enjoyed reflecting on the accomplishments of the past year. The celebration included a dinner and pianist Suzanna Sifter of Quincy provided background music. Among those taking part in the celebration were resident Irene Gratto and her daughter, Mary Stagno. The Atrium at Faxon Woods is an assisted living facility designed for people with Alzheimer's disease and related memory disorders. For more information, contact Maureen Maloney, director of Admission, at 617-471-5595.

ATTENTION PARENTS!

Here are some tips on dealing with teens' substance abuse during holidays:

1. Hands-on parents know who is hosting a party for your teen
2. Hands-on parents know if other parents will be present at the party
3. Hands-on parents know how their teen is getting to & from the party
4. Hands-on parents will be awake for a "check" when teen returns home

Quincy College, founded in 1956, celebrates 45 years
of making dreams come true.

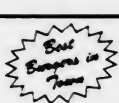

CHRISTOPHER BERGERON, age 10, and Alyssa Mullen, age 10, both fifth graders at the Bernazzani Elementary School, read copies of some of the "Dear Danny and Company" letters written by their classmates and sent to the crew of the USS Peleliu, an aircraft carrier stationed in the waters off Afghanistan during the current War on Terrorism. The idea to raise the spirits of the sailors was brought to the school's attention by Jaime Nersessian, whose brother Danny is serving aboard ship and will distribute the letters to his fellow crewmembers.

Shea Re-elected License Board Chairman

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Joseph Shea was unanimously re-elected chairman of the License Board at Tuesday's meeting for the 10th year.

Shea was first elected in November, 1992 following the retirement of John Gillis.

Shea had been assistant city clerk for about a year before elected as city clerk.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman was unanimously re-elected to his fourth term as vice chairman of the board. Gorman became vice chairman in 1997 after former Building Inspector Matt Mulvey left.

In making the motion to re-elect Shea, Gorman said Shea had done an "excellent job" and said he should continue to be chairman. Seconded by Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue who also commented that Shea not only did an excellent job, but was "very effective as a mediator" as well.

Shea said he had established a style "learned from Gillis" and feels he has to stay with it.

At the beginning of the

meeting Shea commented that he would be "happy to trade places" with anyone who wanted to be chairman but said he was "basically very happy" and added on "most days."

He praised the board as well as secretary Cindy Manning, and Det. Lt. Robert M. Perchard, liquor inspector and license board agent.

Shea said the establishing of computers had helped the billing process and was very efficient and beneficial to the City of Quincy.

The board will meet Jan. 15.

NARFE Meeting

The National Association of Retired Federal Employees (NARFE) will meet Monday, Jan. 14 at noon at the Torre Dei Passeri Club, 252 Washington St.

Officer Cheryl Bombery from the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office will be guest speaker. She will discuss the program "Are You Okay?" ("R.U.O.K.?"") designated for senior citizens.

Parking is available at the rear of the building.

Phelan's Staff In Place

Mayor William Phelan recently announced the members of his executive staff.

"I am confident that I have assembled a staff that brings with them the highest degree of professionalism possible to assist me as I fulfill my commitment to the people of Quincy," said Phelan, who was sworn in Monday as the city's 32nd mayor.

"The members of my team bring qualities that will best help move the city forward: intelligence, experience, dedication, the ability to build consensus, and a fresh perspective."

Laurie Allen, who grew up in Squantum and Wollaston and graduated from the Woodward School for Girls, will serve as Mayor Phelan's executive secretary. Allen has a B.S. in Linguistics from Georgetown University and a Master's degree from the University of Massachusetts.

Allen formerly served as the executive assistant to former Governor William Weld for six years.

"Laurie Allen is not only a delightful person, but is a consummate professional and one of the most organized people I know," said Weld.

Added former State Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti: "Laurie Allen will be a great asset to the new administration of Bill Phelan for two reasons. She is an extremely bright individual and she is very knowledgeable in the business of government, as she has tremendous experience."

Ronald Donovan, son of Patricia and Francis "Shorty" Donovan, native of Houghs Neck, will serve as the mayor's administrative assistant. Donovan is a graduate of Broad Meadows

Junior High School, Quincy High School, and holds a B.S. in Business Management from Westfield State College. He has formerly served as director of Data Center Operations for Fidelity Investments, account executive for Syndicated Technologies in Quincy, and most recently as a strategic account manager at RSA Security, Inc., in Bedford.

"Ron is a proven team leader with exceptional motivational and management skills," said Donald Briffett, president of Syndicated Technologies.

Celeste McGlone, who is originally from Quincy Point, will serve as the mayor's executive assistant. McGlone is a graduate of Notre Dame Academy and has an Associate's degree in Arts and Sciences from Aquinas College. She formerly served as confidential assistant to former Norfolk County District Attorney William Delahunt, who applauded her appointment.

"During my tenure as Norfolk County District Attorney, Celeste was one of my closest advisers," said Delahunt. "I place great value on her judgment. She was a trusted and loyal member of my staff for over 14 years. I am certain she will bring the same qualities to Bill Phelan's administration."

Kristin Priscella of South Quincy will serve as the assistant to the mayor. Priscella is a graduate of Central Middle School, Quincy High School, and is a Cum Laude graduate of Harvard University where she was a member of the varsity women's volleyball team for four years. She recently served as a field support specialist at Co-nect, Inc., in Arlington, where she analyzed departmental budgets and developed and implemented new systems to achieve more efficient and cost-effective business operations.

"Kristin is diligent and hardworking with a dynamic personality that will benefit the new mayor's administration," said Rachel Wexler, former manager of Strategic Initiatives at Co-nect.

A MARSH FIRE occurred Sunday off Terne Rd., a private way off of Sea St. in the Adams Shore section of the city. Quincy firefighters quickly contained the blaze and there were no reported injuries.

Grand Jury Investigating City Hall Break-In

A grand jury has begun investigating the Dec. 15 break-in at the city personnel office at City Hall.

At least one subpoena was delivered by police Monday and at least one person appeared as a witness before the grand jury in Dedham Tuesday.

Walter White, Director of Inspectional Services, was believed to be among those subpoenaed as witnesses.

Asked if he had received a subpoena, White told The Sun at press-time: "I cannot comment on that one way or the other."

Special Assistant District

Attorney George Jabour and State Police Detective Lt. Robert Zepf from the state police headquarters in Framingham have been assigned to investigate the case.

The case involves Daniel Keating, who served as executive secretary to then Mayor James Sheets. Keating has allegedly admitted breaking into the offices of Personnel Director Kevin Madden Saturday, Dec. 15.

Keating reportedly apologized for his action and said he was looking for a copy of a firefighters' contract.

Although it was originally believed that no files were missing from the office, it was later discovered that part of the files for Ralph J. Maher, the city's chief plumbing inspector, had apparently gone missing.

Maher was suspended by White from his job Jan. 3, leaving only after police officers escorted him from the building.

In an interview in late December, Sheets called Keating's action "a very foolish thing for him to do" but declined to comment on the incident, citing the ongoing investigation.

QCAP Homebuyer Workshop At Crane Library Jan. 19, 26

Quincy Community Action Programs (QCAP) will hold a First Time Homebuyers Workshop Saturdays, Jan. 19 and Jan. 26, from 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Square.

The nine-hour program includes presentations from such experts as realtors, attorneys, home inspectors, lenders, and other homeownership professionals.

Focus will be on different aspects of the homebuying process, including locating a property within budget, making an offer, and determining the best mortgage for one's needs.

Assistance with down payment is available to qualifying households.

The workshop is open to all regardless of income level. Attendance on both days of the workshop is mandatory to qualify for many different mortgage options and downpayment assistance available through QCAP.

Participants receive a certificate of completion for these programs.

A $10 charge per person includes lunch. Advanced registration and payment is required.

To register or to obtain more information, call Sandra Brennan at (617) 479-8181, ext. 119.

Jack Conway Announces Top Producers For Quincy Office

Jack Conway & Co. recently announced its top producer awards for October, recognizing the agents in each sales office who excelled in listing and selling homes during the month.

In the Quincy office, Patrick Mulkern was the top seller, and Margaret Duffy, Lynne Houghton, Jack Meehan and Osman Yesilcimen shared the top lister honors.

"These salespeople are such an important part of our economy and our communities," said Conway President Richard F. Cahill. "As we enter our 45th year in business, we take great pride in recognizing the agents who exemplify our tradition of quality service."

Founded in 1957, Norwell-based Jack Conway & Co. is the largest privately owned real estate firm in Massachusetts, with more than 600 associates in 39 offices from Boston to Cape Cod.

Last year, the company ranked among the top 100 real estate firms in the United States by REALTOR Magazine, the official publication of the 750,000-member National Association of Realtors.

DANIEL J. FLYNN & Co., Inc., recently negotiated the lease of 15,000 square feet to South Coastal Career Development Administration. From the left, Flynn & Co. CEO Dan Flynn, South Coastal Executive Director Paul Berrini and Flynn & Co. Commercial Broker Peter Albert.

Flynn & Co. Negotiates Lease Of 15,000 Sq. Ft. To South Coastal Career

Daniel J. Flynn & Co., Inc., a Quincy-based real estate firm, has negotiated the lease of 15,000 square feet of Quincy Center office/retail space to South Coastal Career Development Administration.

South Coastal, a work-skills development agency, recently celebrated its opening with a ribbon-cutting ceremony. The property, located at 150 Parkway, is owned by Parkway Realty Trust, and has been fully renovated in recent months. Flynn & Co. Commercial broker Peter Albert negotiated the lease.

A new roadway currently under construction will bring motorists directly past the property. Known as the Concourse, the road will eventually connect Hancock Street to Burgin Parkway, creating easier travel to and from Quincy Center and nearby highways.

"The area around the Burgin Parkway is beginning to come alive," Flynn & Co. CEO Dan Flynn said. "Businesses there are soon to benefit from the new Concourse, which will provide greater accessibility and more visibility."

Daniel J. Flynn & Co., Inc., is a full service real estate firm specializing in commercial sales and leasing, residential real estate, real estate auctions, property management and construction. For more information call 617-479-9000.

Presidents Offensive Show Falls Short

By CHRIS POISSON

Although the Quincy High School boys' basketball turned in its best offensive performance of the season, it still wasn't enough to pull off an upset at Whitman-Hanson last Friday night.

Despite scoring a season-high 63 points — 27 points above their average — the Presidents' offensive struggles caught up to them late in the game as they fell, 69-63, to remain winless on the season.

"It came down to us missing a couple of shots at the end and they didn't," said head coach John Franceschini. "It's been extremely frustrating. The kids feel it. It's very disappointing to be winless after the first five games."

Quincy (0-5, 0-3) hosted Nauset Tuesday and tomorrow (Friday) night at 6:30 it remains at home to battle Sandwich.

"What we need is to get one win under our belt and build from there," Franceschini said. "We're still searching for the right combinations."

The Presidents led by two at the break and by four after junior guard Matt Ramponi (18 points) buried his third 3-pointer with over three minutes left in the game. Ramponi, though, soon fouled out and the Presidents were left without their best offensive weapon.

Whitman-Hanson, meanwhile, utilized its size advantage, turning to post players Sean Conover (28 points, 16 rebounds) and Paul Gravalles (15 points) down the stretch. Conover scored six of his team's final nine points and Gravalles hit 8 of 9 foul shots.

"The difference at the end was their inside players made big baskets for them," Franceschini said.

For Quincy, senior co-captain Adam Vecchione finished with 11 points and junior Shawn Munchbach added nine.

Franceschini said he was pleased with the defensive effort against the taller Panthers, noting his team caused 24 turnovers as it used a man-to-man full-court press throughout the game.

"They have a lot of size. That's what they bring to the table," he said. "Obviously we were outsize, but we caused 24 turnovers. That's a credit to the kids working hard."

Franceschini also said the 63 points is a reflection of the team's improvement in shot selection.

"We've been struggling on offense," he said. "The kids are very diligent on working on getting better at putting the ball in the basket. Offense should improve as the season goes along. Decisions as to when and where to take shots are improving and hopefully that continues."

North Quincy Rebounds, Bounces B-R

By CHRIS POISSON

After suffering a 30-point blowout to Foxboro in the first round of the recent Christmas Tournament, the strength of the North Quincy High School girls' basketball team seemed in question.

"We had a tough game against Foxboro in the Christmas tournament," said head coach Doug MacFarlane. "The kids were a little depressed and down. Foxboro really handed it to us. I think they're one of the five best teams in the state."

The Red Raiders rebounded the next night with a four-point win over Wachuset in the consolation game. A true sign of their resiliency, however, came last Friday night against the very talented and experienced Bridgewater-Raynham squad.

Powered by a crisp offense and a strong defense, the defending Old Colony League champs took it to the Trojans for the full 32 minutes en route to a convincing 53-37 victory at home.

"Absolutely the best performance of the season. Just phenomenal," MacFarlane said. "I can't tell you how excited I am. That's a good team. Two six-foot girls that can play. Two guards that have been varsity players for four years. The little point guard has been a starter for the last couple of years. That's a good team. We came to play tonight."

North Quincy (4-2, 2-1) traveled to Barnstable Tuesday and tomorrow (Friday) night it hosts Plymouth South at 6:30.

Senior co-captain Lauren Sleeth turned in a complete game, finishing with 12 points, nine steals, five rebounds and five assists. Junior forward April Suprey scored a game-high 16 points and grabbed six rebounds and junior forward Kristen DiMatteo added 11 points.

The Red Raiders opened the game with a 10-2 run and built a 27-14 advantage at halftime.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

In the second half, the Trojans scored two quick baskets but the Red Raiders responded with a 9-0 run, highlighted by sophomore guard Ashley Ridge's long jumper and Sleeth's 3-pointer that forced B-R to call a timeout with 9:50 left to play.

"We didn't let them come back," MacFarlane said. "I told them at halftime, 'You have to keep the intensity, keep the pressure up. If they come back at us, we have to come back at them.' And we did that."

"I hope the kids see now that we can play with anybody. We really can. We played with Foxboro for a half. We just couldn't keep up the intensity for the whole game. I was afraid that was going to happen here, too. But it didn't."

Ridge, who was down on herself in the first half, came back strong in the second, hitting that clutch jumper while also dishing out a couple of beautiful assists, reminiscent of her older sister, Casey, the school's all-time assist leader who graduated last year.

"Little Ashley Ridge didn't play well in the first half," MacFarlane said. "She came off depressed. I said, 'Hey, don't worry about it. You're a sophomore. I expect that. You're going to have ups and downs.' She played great in the second half."

North Quincy also snapped out of its shooting funk, particularly from the foul line where it went 12 of 14. It came into the game shooting 46 percent from the charity stripe through five games.

"I hope we've turned the corner," MacFarlane said. "The first quarter of the season was over after the Christmas tournament. We weren't shooting that good. I can't wait to see the shooting chart from this game."

Cheerleading Skills Jan. 17

The Quincy Recreation Department will hold registration for a cheerleading skills program Thursday, Jan. 17 at the Wollaston School prior to the start of the first session, announces Recreation Director Barry Welch.

Enrollment will be limited. The seven-week program, which will be held Thursday evenings from 5:30 to 7, is free and will offer intermediate cheerleading skills for girls enrolled in grades 5 through 7.

Ms. Lynn Garland will direct the program. Activities will include fundamental techniques, voice, partner stunts and team routines.

Red Raiders Defeat Bridgewater-Raynham

The North Quincy High School boys' basketball team defeated Bridgewater-Raynham for the first time in 10 tries with a 66-58 win last Friday night.

"It was a great win for us," said head coach Ted Stevenson. "It showed we can play with anybody in the league. We played really well and the kids just stepped it up."

The victory improves North Quincy's record to 5-2 overall, 2-1 in the Old Colony

BOYS' BASKETBALL

League.

After five straight games on the road, the Red Raiders returned home Tuesday to face undefeated Barnstable and it will head back out on the road tomorrow (Friday) night against Plymouth South.

North Quincy had built a 10-point lead in the first half, but the Trojans closed with an 11-0 run to take a 1-point

In the second half, the game went back and forth before senior guard Dan Duggan, who played with foul trouble, sealed the game with four free throws in the final minute. He finished with 11 points and five assists.

Senior guard Phil

McGillcuddy, a tri-captain, scored a game-high 27 points and also grabbed seven rebounds. Senior forward Jack Liuzzo turned in a solid all-around game with a season-high 13 points, nine rebounds and two blocks.

Senior guard Pat Bregoli, a tri-captain, contributed defensively, holding all-scholastic Matt Cahill to just 12 points—16 points below his season average.

Two Medals For North Quincy High Girls' Track Relay

The North Quincy High School girls' track relay teams came up with medals twice at the Brown University Interscholastic Relays held at the Olney-Margolis Athletic Center in Providence, R.I.

The high jump relay team of Krystle Neves, Katy Mercurio and Maria McGinness turned in a total of 14 feet to place second behind Shoreham-Wading River of Long Island, N.Y. The shuttle hurdle team of Diana Berberan, Erin McFarland, Laura Wells and Neves clocked 39.69 to finish fifth overall.

The only Mass. team to place other than North Quincy was Dennis-Yarmouth (third). The Brown Invitational attracted 179 schools from New England, New York and New Jersey. Over 2,500 athletes competed.

Several other North Quincy teams competed in the event. The long jump team of McFarland, Jen Venuti and Jessica Jacques placed 10th. The freshman/sophomore sprint medley team of Brenna O'Brien, Sarah Gregory, Jackie Rhoads and Eileen Price finished 15th out of 38 schools, while the freshman-sophomore 4x400 meter relay of Price, Shelly Donovan, Molly Griffin and O'Brien placed ninth out of 32 schools.

At last Saturday's Red Auerbach Freshman-Sophomore meet directed by former North Quincy coach Lou Tozzi, several athletes came close to earning medals. McGinness took eighth in the high jump and Paula Morgan placed seventh in the shotput.

Numerous personal bests were clocked, including Shawna Kennedy (55-meter dash), Price (600) and Sarah Kennedy (300).

North Quincy returned to Old Colony League action Tuesday against Bridgewater-Raynham and tomorrow (Friday) it will travel to the Dartmouth Relays. April Rodgers and Gregory (55), O'Brien (400), Natalie Caron (800), Katie Timmins (mile), Julia McGunigle (20 lb. WT), McFarland, Venuti and Jacques (long jump), Neves, Mercurio and McGinness (high jump) and Katelyn McDonald (relays) will all take part.

Quincy-North Quincy Girls' Hockey Can, Bottle Drive

The Quincy/North Quincy girls' hockey team will hold a can and bottle drive Saturday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the lobby of North Quincy High School.

If more convenient, call Chris Guerriero at 617-328-6466 by tomorrow (Friday) to arrange for a Saturday pickup.

MORE ELECTRIC POWER

With heated seats and windshields, cell phones, and other electrically powered features being added to vehicles, it has become clear that today's nominal 14-volt DC electrical systems and 12-volt batteries will not be able to handle the power requirements of cars, light trucks, vans, and SUVs of the future. Current luxury vehicles typically use up to 2.8 kW of power, and this is expected to double in the next five years. Even today, radios in some vehicles may momentarily cut out under sustained braking, when the overall electrical load becomes too great. A consortium sponsored by the Society of Automotive Engineers has advocated introduction of a 42-volt system with a 36-volt battery, which we may see within a few years.

For more of your car's maintenance needs, including its electrical system, rely on our ASE Certified technicians at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO. Learn for yourself why so many of your friends and neighbors turn to us to keep their family cars in top condition. For the best service in town, we're here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). Hours: Mon.-Fri. 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." We are your local source for propane for grills, motor homes, and converted vehicles.

HINT: The introduction of 42-volt systems could eliminate power-robbing and heat-producing pumps and institute use of electrically powered heating and air-conditioning systems, which could reduce engine energy consumption by 5%-20%.

Seniors Face Double Dilemma Of Stroke

Not only do seniors need to know the warning signs of stroke, but ironically, they also need to know that they have a greater risk of not having any warning signs at all. Studies have shown that the elderly are the least likely to know the warning signs of stroke, and more recent studies reveal that the rate of "silent strokes" (symptom-less strokes) increases with age.

Stroke is the third leading cause of death in the United States, and a leading cause of severe, long-term disability. For people over age 55, the incidence of stroke more than doubles with each successive decade. Twenty-two percent of men and 25 percent of women who have an initial stroke died within a year, and this percentage is higher among people age 65 and older.

This year at the American Stroke Association's 26th International Stroke Conference, several studies on silent strokes were presented. Silent strokes result from either blockages or bleeding in small blood vessels in the brain. In fact, these strokes may be recognized only through special testing, such as an MRI (magnetic resonance imaging). Initially harmless, these silent strokes do their damage over time, eventually blocking oxygen delivery to brain cells, causing them to die. This may cause the individual to develop memory problems or difficulty walking. This type of stroke is also more frequent in women.

A University of California at Los Angeles study estimated that annually more than 9 million Americans experience silent strokes due to ischemia (blood clot in the brain). An additional 2.1 million silent strokes can be attributed to hemorrhagic stroke (bleeding in the brain). Population-based studies have already found that prevalence of silent stroke is 10 to 20 times greater than symptomatic strokes.

A study titled "Public perceptions of stroke warning signs and knowledge of potential risk factors," published in the April 1998 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, showed the elderly to be at greater risk for stroke, and unfortunately, they are the least knowledgeable about stroke warning signs and risk factors.

STRENGTH AND BEAUTY

Porcelain veneers are thin, semi-transparent shells of porcelain that are permanently bonded to the teeth when the front surface of the tooth and the biting edge are in need of restoration. Porcelain veneers may be used to correct broken or chipped teeth, permanently stained teeth, spaces between teeth, or misshapen or crooked teeth. Two appointments are required. During the preparation appointment, the teeth are prepared to accept the veneers and an impression is taken. Temporaries are also put in place until the next appointment, during which the teeth are conditioned and cleaned and the veneers are bonded into place. While composite resin bonding may be quicker and less expensive, porcelain veneers are exceedingly strong and natural looking.

Beautiful and healthy smiles are a team effort. We can discuss all of your options with you and help you decide if porcelain veneers are right for your situation. You will be treated by professionals who have the experience and knowledge you can trust. If you're looking for a family dentist at this time, please call 617-479-6220. Our "personal touch" philosophy is reflected throughout our practice in many ways. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we're currently accepting new patients. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com

P.S. Porcelain veneers are not only more durable than composite bonding, but they are also more resistant to stains.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

An English newspaper asked this question: "Who are the happiest people on earth?" These were the four prize-winning answers:

A craftsman or artist whistling over a job well done.

A little child building sand castles.

A mother, after a busy day, bathing her baby.

A doctor who has finished a difficult and dangerous operation, and saved a human life.

No millionaires among these, one notices. No kings or emperors. Riches and rank, no matter how the world strives for them, do not make happy lives...

A wise man once said: "Happiness is impossible without some regard for the happiness of others and can so often be fostered by the smallest acts of kindness -- acts that become instinctive and part of our nature if practiced from day to day..."

Another wise man stated that happiness doesn't depend on what we have, but it does depend on how we feel towards what we have. We can be happy with little and miserable with much.

CALL FOR RESERVATIONS

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A hectic period begins to wind down. Take time to draw some deep breaths and relax before getting into your next project. A long-absent family member makes contact.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You're eager to move forward with a new challenge that suddenly dropped in your lap. But you'd be wise to take this one step at a time to allow new developments to come through.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You're almost ready to make a commitment. A lingering doubt or two, however, should be resolved before you move ahead. An associate could provide important answers.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Caution is still the watchword as you move closer toward a decision about a new situation. If you act too fast, you might miss some vital warning signs. Go slowly and stay alert.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your new goal looks promising, and your golden touch does much to enhance its prospects for success. In your private life, Cupid does his best to make your new relationship special.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) That impatient side of yours is looking to goad you into moving before you're ready to take that big step. Stay calm and cool. Let things fall into place before you act.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A legal matter you hoped could finally be settled could be a pesky problem for a while, until all the parties agree to stop disagreeing with each other. Be patient.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Partnerships — personal or professional — which began before the new year take on new importance. They also reveal some previously hidden risks. So be warned.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your associates are firmly on your side, and that persistent problem that has caused you to delay some activities should soon be resolved to your satisfaction.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Favorable changes continue to dominate, and you should be responding positively as they emerge. Someone wants to become more involved in what you're doing.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A friend wants to share a secret that could answer some questions you've wondered about for a long time. Meanwhile, travel aspects continue to be strong.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Stay on your new course despite so-called well-meaning efforts to discourage you. Rely on your deep sense of self-awareness to guide you to do what's right for you.

YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK: You have the capacity to meet challenges that others might find overwhelming, and turn them into successful ventures.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A hectic period begins to wind down. Take time to draw some deep breaths and relax before getting into your next project. A long-absent family member makes contact.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You're eager to move forward with a new challenge that suddenly dropped in your lap. But you'd be wise to take this one step at a time to allow new developments to come through.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You're almost ready to make a commitment. A lingering doubt or two, however, should be resolved before you move ahead. An associate could provide important answers.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Caution is still the watchword as you move closer toward a decision about a new situation. If you act too fast, you might miss some vital warning signs. Go slowly and stay alert.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your new goal looks promising, and your golden touch does much to enhance its prospects for success. In your private life, Cupid does his best to make your new relationship special.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) That impatient side of yours is looking to goad you into moving before you're ready to take that big step. Stay calm and cool. Let things fall into place before you act.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A legal matter you hoped could finally be settled could be a pesky problem for a while, until all the parties agree to stop disagreeing with each other. Be patient.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Partnerships — personal or professional — which began before the new year take on new importance. They also reveal some previously hidden risks. So be warned.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your associates are firmly on your side, and that persistent problem that has caused you to delay some activities should soon be resolved to your satisfaction.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Favorable changes continue to dominate, and you should be responding positively as they emerge. Someone wants to become more involved in what you're doing.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A friend wants to share a secret that could answer some questions you've wondered about for a long time. Meanwhile, travel aspects continue to be strong.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Stay on your new course despite so-called well-meaning efforts to discourage you. Rely on your deep sense of self-awareness to guide you to do what's right for you.

YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK: You have the capacity to meet challenges that others might find overwhelming, and turn them into successful ventures.

Phelan: Public Safety, Budget Savings Priorities

his 13-minute address, Phelan reiterated that Public Safety was his top concern, with a healthy budget a close second. Regarding the possible replacement of department heads, Phelan said he would not be rushed in making so important a decision and that the entire transition process "may take up to a year."

The two-hour inauguration ceremony also saw the swearing in of members of the City Council and School Committee and the subsequent election, by unanimous vote, of Ward 2 Councilor Daniel Raymond as Council President and School Committeewoman Christine Cedrone as Vice-Chairwoman of the School Committee.

In announcing the new commission on Public Safety, Phelan asked for assistance from the city's police, fire, health, and school departments as well as the medical community and the Quincy community at-large. The appeal was one of many from an inaugural address which sought unity and co-operation in tackling the challenges facing the city.

"I come here today bearing good news and bad news," said Phelan, who had been serving his first term on the School Committee before challenging and defeating incumbent James Sheets in the closest mayoral election in city history. "The good news is: I am not a professional politician. The bad news is: I am not a professional politician.

"So I will need the help and wisdom and forbearance of every person in this auditorium and every citizen of this city as we face the very real challenges ahead."

In addition to Public Safety, Phelan outlined some of those challenges as an uncertain economy and a slowing of city revenues, the prospect of reduced state and federal assistance, and the need to assist those "hurt by layoffs and downsizing."

Furthermore, Phelan said, there was the need to balance the budget and to make good on promised improvements to the Quincy Public Schools, such as the construction of a new Quincy High School.

"But we can and will meet all of these challenges together," said Phelan, who received a standing ovation during the ceremony and was cheered by many friends and family, including wife Tracy and their children Brianne, William Arthur, Kerry, and Rachel.

Phelan thanked Sheets for his years of service to the city and congratulated newly elected members of the City Council and School Committee, but he reserved special thanks to family, friends, and fellow Quincy residents "for believing in me" and electing him as the city's 32nd mayor.

Said Phelan:

"As a guy who grew up in Quincy, the son of working people, one of eight kids educated in Quincy Schools, I cannot express how honored I am, how grateful I am, to have been elected mayor of this great and historic 'City of Presidents.'"

"I will begin each morning by asking God to do the right thing and to always remember that I am no better or worse than the most needy or wealthiest citizen of this city. I intend only to be a worker amongst workers who will move our city forward with compassion, dignity, and honor.

"To the citizens of Quincy, I ask for your help."

Highlights of Phelan's inaugural address included:

- "I believe that providing a quality education to every single child is our sacred duty and our most important obligation to the future."

- "I ran for mayor truly believing in the power of ordinary citizens to bring about change. That power is what brought me here. As mayor I intend to continue to tap that tremendous power. I will do my best to foster an open administration, responsive to the needs and wants and ideas of the people of this great city."

"For our government is as Daniel Webster declared, 'The People's Government, made for the people, made by the people, and answerable to the people.' These are words that each city employee, including your mayor, should never forget."

- "I ask all department heads to be prepared to recommend budget savings by reviewing and evaluating all budget requests starting from zero and to make each budget request with two major goals in mind ... one: getting back to providing basic city services in an efficient, professional, and friendly manner and two: always keeping the overburdened taxpayer in mind."

- "I would like to recite a quote from 'William Shakespeare, a quote Abigail Adams wrote in a letter to her husband John and one which my wife Tracey read to me during the recent campaign:

"There is a tide to the affairs of men, which taken at the flood leads on to fortune / Omitted, all the voyage of their life is bound in the shallows and in miseries / And we must take the current when it serves, or lose our ventures."

- "Thank you again for this high honor. Each and every day I will work to justify your trust in me."

large, eager crowds, noting how her new boss manned a receiving line which began at 7 p.m. and was still going strong at 11 p.m.

One highlight of the evening's reception was an enormous cake depicting the City Seal and City Hall created by Houghs Neck resident John Milone of White's Bakery. Tuesday afternoon, leftovers from the cake were still available in the lobby of the actual City Hall but were going fast.

As for the morning's inaugural, Phelan was sworn into office by former Mayor and current Clerk Magistrate Arthur Tobin, his father-in-law, and shared the moment with many members of both the Phelan and Tobin families.

"Watching my wife and children, my family, my mother was probably the best part for me," said Phelan.

Phelan thanked everyone for their efforts on the inaugural ceremony, particularly the work of his wife Tracy Phelan, Jolanta Brilliet, and City Clerk Joseph Shea.

"Joseph Shea did a phenomenal job under not the easiest of circumstances," said Phelan. "As a city clerk the city should be very proud of him."

Former Mayor, Madden Testify Before Grand Jury

Sheets: 'People Need To Know The Truth'

Former Mayor James Sheets and Personnel Director Kevin Madden Tuesday testified before a grand jury in Dedham that is investigating the break-in at the latter's office Dec. 15.

That brings to at least three witnesses from City Hall to appear. Walter White, Director of Inspectional Services, testified last week.

"I appeared before the grand jury today and provided them with information as regards to the events Dec. 15," Sheets told The Quincy Sun Tuesday.

"I am not the target. I am a witness.

"The most important thing is that the truth comes out. People need to know what happened.

"If I am able to provide them (the grand jury) with a little piece of that truth then it is my obligation to do so.

"I was very willing to testify so that it helps determine the truth. I can't change what happened."

Sheets said he testified for about an hour and "as I left, Kevin Madden was coming in."

He said he understood that White testified last week.

He said that like him, they are not targets but witnesses.

He said he is deeply saddened by the break-in that occurred in the waning days of his 12-year administration, casting a cloud.

The grand jury with George Jabour as special prosecutor, is not meeting in the familiar Norfolk County Superior Courthouse but at a lesser known building at 20 Estabrook Rd., apparently to spare witnesses as much publicity as possible.

Sheets said he has received a number of offers since leaving office. "But I am not looking for a job," he said. "I am looking for a challenge."

The grand jury investigation stems from the break-in Dec. 15 at the city personnel office at City Hall. Daniel Keating, then serving as executive secretary to Sheets in the final few weeks before a change in administration, has reportedly admitted to breaking into the offices, saying that he was looking for a copy of a firefighters' con-

'Facing Difficult Economic Times' Phelan To Dept. Heads: 'Tighten Your Belts'

By CRAIG SALTERS

Mayor William Phelan has called upon city department heads to tighten their belts in the last six months of the current fiscal year in an attempt to close the gap on a projected $2.8 million budget deficit.

Phelan, who met with the department heads late last week, also used the meeting to institute his "zero-based" budgeting process for the coming Fiscal Year 2003 budget.

Specifically, Phelan instructed all city department heads to rein in their spending for the remaining six months of the current fiscal year and asked that all requests for expenditures be submitted to the mayor's office "until further notice."

"First and foremost, we did it (requested oversight of expenditures) to send the message that we are facing difficult economic times," said Phelan.

Secondly, Phelan said, the decision anticipated working with each department head to establish a streamlined, "zero-based" Fiscal Year 2003 budget, which will be presented to the City Council in June for approval.

"It will be helpful for me to have a working knowledge of where the budget funds are being used," said the mayor.

With "zero-based" budgeting, an operating budget of zero dollars is assumed and each departmental expenditure must be justified, regardless of that department's budget total the previous year.

Phelan, who made "zero-based" budgeting a part of his successful mayoral campaign against incumbent James Sheets, said that hard economic choices had to be made "regardless of who won the election" and that department heads understood that.

"The department heads understand, as do all city employees. I believe, that the city, state, and country for that matter face tough economic times," said Phelan. "Sacrifices have to be made."

As evidence of those tough times, Phelan, who has met with City Auditor Michael McFarland, pointed to a $2.1 million projected deficit which became a $2.8 million projected deficit in the past few weeks "because we didn't receive as much state aid as had been initially indicated," Phelan said.

The mayor also noted an anticipated $2 million deficit on the School Department side of the budget, the fact that the city would have no certified "free cash" from the current budget, the level funding "at best" of local aid from the state, and looming negotiations on collective bargaining agreements as reasons to start the belt tightening.

"By law, the budget must be balanced this year, and it will be, but we have to make up as much of that deficit as we can in the next six months," Phelan said. "Every cent we save this year is a cent we'll have next year."

The city has roughly $5 million in the so-called "rainy day" fund which could be used to balance the budget. However, Phelan emphasized that $5 million represented two to two and one-half percent of the city's budget and that, as a rule, communities should have five per

Annual City Census Forms In Mail

The annual city census forms are in the mail.

City Clerk Joseph Shea said 43,500 of the forms to establish the population and a street listing for the year 2002 were mailed Wednesday.

Shea said the information is used for such things as checking voter lists and projecting school enrollments.

The state census taken last year showed Quincy's population at 88,025.

Shea said every household in Quincy should be receiving the forms this week. He asks that they will be filled out and returned within 10 days of receipt.

cent of their total budget in such an account.

In a statement released Tuesday, Phelan echoed remarks made during his inaugural address Jan. 7 at Quincy High School, requesting that department heads submit goals for their respective departments that align with two overriding objectives which he defined: "to provide basic city services in a cost-effective and courteous manner"; and "to determine the direct effect of each line item on the overburdened taxpayer."

During the budget process, the mayor explained, department heads will be required to justify each expenditure for all projects in a detailed and cost-effective manner, assuring that they conform to the departmental goals as well as the two broader city goals.

On June 18 of 2001, the City Council approved a budget of $193,093,967 for Fiscal Year 2002.

QMC Receives Major Gift From Respiratory Care

Quincy Medical Center's Respiratory Care Department recently received a major gift from Alliance for Respiratory Care in Braintree.

The Alliance gave QMC a Respironics BiPap Unit, or Bi-Level positive Airway Pressure Machine (BiPap).

"This unit will enhance QMC's treatment of cardiopulmonary patients diagnosed with chronic respiratory disease and will prevent many patients from having to undergo more invasive care," said Charles Arienti, Jr., director of cardiopulmonary services at QuinCY Medical Center. "We are most grateful to the Alliance for Respiratory Care for their support."

The Alliance for Respiratory Care provides a range of services to Norfolk County residents with illnesses such as asthma, emphysema and tuberculosis. The company's goal is to develop programs to promote awareness and prevention of these diseases.

Quincy Medical Center is a 282-bed acute care community-teaching hospital providing South Shore residents with comprehensive medical and surgical services. The medical center's Alliance for Quality with Boston Medical Center, formed in 1999, brings academic medicine to the community.

At Quincy Medical Center, physicians from Boston Medical Center direct the departments of medicine, surgery, anesthesia, emergency medicine and psychiatry. Additionally, physicians from BMC who are board-certified in a range of medical and surgical specialties work side-by-side community physicians to ensure the continuity of patient care.

For more information about making a gift to the Quincy Medical Center, contact Harriet Messcher, vice president of development at 617-376-5495 or e-mail mmcquire@quincymc.org.

Board Delays Vote On Video Machines Request

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board voted Tuesday to continue a hearing regarding a request from the Quincy Market, 33 Washington St. for two video machines.

Noting that the business had changed hands many times. Manager Anwar Osmani told the board he thought the machines would "draw more business" and change the face of the store.

Chairman Joseph Shea, who said he feared the close proximity to Quincy High School and said that he would only want one video machine depending on what kind of game it played.

He said he would ask Det. Lieut. Robert M. Perchard, liquor inspector and license board agent to supervise and inspect the machine to make sure it isn't in the "off color category."

He said although the city receives $100 in revenue for each machine, he nonetheless said he was concerned about "high school kids" using it.

Osmani said he would make a rule that high school students could not use the machine until school was out.

When Shea asked board members their opinions, acting Police Chief William Falco said he wanted to put off voting until it was investigated as to whether or not it would become a "potential hang-out"

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said he supported Falco's opinion.

The hearing will held at the next meeting scheduled for Jan. 29.

Dr. Spencer Power Keynote Speaker 'The Dream Is Alive Today' Theme For MLK Celebration Monday

The Quincy Human Rights Commission will hold its annual Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., celebration breakfast Monday, Jan. 21, from 9 a.m. until 11:30 a.m. at the VFW Bryan Post on Broad St.

Keynote speaker for the event will be Dr. Spencer Power of the Deliverance Revival Tabernacle of Boston. Dr. Power is active in outreach and entertainment programs at the Long Island Shelter and in the counseling of juvenile offenders in prisons.

Dr. Power's address is entitled: "The Dream is Alive Today."

Norfolk County District Attorney William Keating will attend the event and present the "District Attorney's Award for Distinguished Service" to Katherine Quigley, the director of the YMCA Germantown Neighborhood Center, and to Zaida Hassan Shaw from the Islamic Center of New England.

In addition, Atty. George Clark of the Quincy Human Rights Commission will present an award to Ann Yeomans, a member of the United First Parish Church and the Greater Boston Interfaith Organization (GBIO), for her efforts on behalf of affordable housing in the city and to former Mayor James Sheets for his contributions to commission's "No Place For Hate" campaign and other diversity-promoting projects throughout the city.

As part of the program, Nancy McDonald, chairwoman of the Quincy Human Rights Commission, will welcome guests. Mayor William Phelan will deliver a welcome address and Rev. Esther Bowen of Quincy Medical Center will give the blessing.

Members of the Quincy

High School ROTC will take part in the ceremonies led by Commander Major William Zinnell.

Gaetano DeGrazia, commander of the Cavanagh DAV Post, will lead participants in the singing of "God Bless America."

Two special guests at the breakfast will be: Teresa Ware, a poet and an artist, who will recite her poem "The Color of Love," which was specifically written for the MLK Breakfast; and the Elder Andrew Williams, a vocalist who participates in the concerts at the Long Island Shelter, who will conclude the breakfast by singing "We Shall Overcome."

Tickets are $8 per person and $6 per person for students, seniors, and the disabled. Children under five are admitted free. Tickets are available from members of the Quincy Human Rights Commission. No tickets will be available at the door.

THE QUINCY BULLETS proudly display their citations recently presented to them by the City Council in recognition of the basketball program's three state championships in various divisions at the Special Olympics. The basketball program, led by Program Director William Ketchen, is sponsored by Towards Independent Lifelong Learning (TILL), a special needs program based in Dedham. At far left is former Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott, who initiated the awarding of the citations along with Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton.

Ward 4 Democrats To Caucus Feb. 2

The Ward 4 Democratic Committee will meet Saturday, Feb. 2, at 10 a.m. to elect delegates to the Massachusetts Democratic State Convention.

The meeting will be held at the Ward 4 Community Center at the Amelio Della Chiesa Center, Brooks Ave.

All registered Democrats in Ward 4 are invited. Ten delegates and six alternates will be elected, divided equally among men and women.

For more information, call Committee Chairman Paul Connolly at 617-471-0168.

Subway Shop License Approved By Board

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

From Patriot Lunch to Daily Grind, the coffee shop on the corner at 1348 Hancock St., has changed hands again, and will become a Subway sandwich shop in early spring.

The License Board voted unanimously at Tuesday's meeting in favor of Subway and gave a common victualer license to owner David L. Phillips.

Phillips told the board that Subway is a family-oriented eatery that will serve hot and cold sandwiches, salads and fresh bread baked on the premises.

Phillips said the restaurarant will cater to lunch traffic, and 70 percent of the six-seat restaurant will be for take-out.

Phillips, who owns another Subway in Hull at Nantasket Beach, will manage the shop.

He said there are 16,000 Subways internationally.

Toni Farrell, the contact person for Subway, said there are 225 Subways in Massachusetts and another 75 under construction.

Phillips said he would apply for a building occupancy permit this week. He plans to open the restaurant by April 1. Hours will be 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

Keep The 'Peace Zone'

It has been so nice these last two months to walk or drive through the area around Quincy City Hall, the Church of the Presidents, and the Thomas Crane Public Library, and to see the simple, beautiful peace signs on the street light poles.

It has been a wonderful reminder of our calling, as members of the human family, to be peacemakers in our families, our country, and our world. Hopefully, many people have experienced a healing of their souls, a sense of inner peace as they walk or drive through this "peace zone."

And, surely, peace is needed in our world today, and in the hearts of all the members of the human family.

By

My concern is that these beautiful peace signs will probably soon be taken down. My question is: what would it take to keep those peace signs up for the whole year of 2002?

Maybe we could call or write Mayor Phelan, and our city councilors and tell them that we think it would be beneficial to all to keep this "peace zone" intact for the whole year.

It might happen! Who knows? Please give me your input! A rather small thing to make people's consciences about the ongoing need for peace.

Sharon Still A 'Profile In Courage'

Some of you may be wondering how Sharon Swatek is doing.

Well, she is still a true "Profile in Courage" determined to win her battle against that devastating blow dealt her nearly a year ago.

"I am going to lick this thing if it takes me forever," she has vowed to family members, reports her uncle, retired Quincy Fire Captain John DiPietro.

SHARON

"This thing" was the loss of both arms and legs through amputation last February, a drastic, traumatic step to save her life.

Sharon, 42, the daughter of Mrs. Rosalie (Kylar) Paolucci of Summer St., Quincy Point, and the late Albert Paolucci, a Quincy firefighter who died during the Blizzard of '78, lives in Wauwatose, WI, near Milwaukee with her husband, Lon, a firefighter and two young children, Kelly, 7, and Al, 9.

Last February, she came down with a strep throat that turned into a living nightmare: a rare and deadly type of Strep A invasive bacteria that led to the amputation.

She has since been fitted with an artificial arm and prosthesis is continuing.

The Paolucci family in Quincy keeps in close touch with her. Her mother recently spent a week with her.

Despite generous insurance benefits, Sharon's medical bills and other expenses are staggering.

The Wauwatose Fire Department has a fundraising campaign to help the family.

And here in Quincy, friends and others have rallied to their aid through a trust fund.

DiPietro says an estimated $215,000 has been sent to Sharon from that fund so far.

Donations, he notes, have slowed down since Sept. 11 but the fund is still active. And Sharon still needs financial help.

Donations may still be sent to:
Sharon (Paolucci) Swatek Fund
c/o Quincy Municipal Credit Union 380 Washington St.
Quincy, MA 02169

"Sharon's attitude remains terrific," DiPietro says. "She's still talking about coming home and hiring a hall and inviting everybody to thank them for being so nice to her."

And with that strong determination she has shown through her ordeal, family and friends think she one day will do it.

SMALL WORLD DEPT.: Paul Harold, on his way home after visiting friends in Vienna during the holidays, was surprised at the Milan airport.

HAROLD

There he bumped into retired Quincy school teacher David Erickson and his wife, Ruth, on their way home after visiting family in Israel.

"Wherever you go, you can usually find someone from Quincy," Harold notes.

Incidentally, he says he found little evidence of security at the Milan airport.

For example, he has a Pakistan visa he obtained four years ago while on an assignment for the State Department.

"That's usually good for a few questions at an airport," he says.

And with what's going on now in Afghanistan he was expecting a barrage of questions, like "What were you doing in Pakistan? How long were you there?" etc.

But no questions. "They just glanced at the visa," Harold says. He did go through a metal detector, however.

"I expected security to be a lot tighter," he says.

WARD 6 COUNCILLOR Joe Newton couldn't attend the inaugural ceremony because he was doing federal jury duty.

NEWTON

Which meant he wasn't sworn in to the 2002-2003 city council with the other eight councillors.

But he and City Clerk Joseph Shea got together that night at the inaugural reception at the Marriott-Quincy.

Shea did the honors in a corner of the room, memorizing the oath with Newton, right hand raised, repeating it after him.

So now, Newton is legally the Ward 6 councillor for the next two years.

MAYOR BILL PHELAN's daughter, Rachael, 12, has a special memento of her father's inaugural.

Rachael is a member of the Central Middle School Concert Choir, which participated in the inaugural ceremony along with the Quincy and North Quincy High Schools combined choirs.

The three choirs joined State Police Sgt. Daniel Clark, who has become a singing celebrity, in "God Bless America."

After the ceremony, Clark took off his white gloves, autographed them with the date and "God Bless America" and presented them to Rachael.

Another reason for Rachael to cherish the memory of that day.

DENIS TARDO, a member of the Quincy Board of Voter Registrars, is getting around alternating temporarily with a cane and walker.

He underwent knee surgery New Year's Eve at Massachusetts General Hospital.

"That's a tough way to spend New Year's Eve," someone said.

"It wasn't so bad," Tardo muses. "I spent the night with the nurses."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1909 POSTCARD is a view of the newly opened Lee's Inn in Squantum. It was located on what is now Parke Avenue. The dinner menu boasted locally harvested seafood and temperance drinks. Fresh shellfish, oysters and clams, was a specialty. Previously the Pratt estate, the Inn was operated here until 1916 by Mrs. Christina Lee, widow of Joseph Lee who managed the old Squantum Inn. The inn closed in 1919 and the old estate, which overlooked Dorchester Bay, was divided into house lots. Today, this building is still extant and is used as a residence. The porches, tower and other features have been removed but the house is in its original location.

Wants A Stop To Those 'Stop Signs'

Over the past few years the driving conditions throughout the City of Quincy have become utterly outrageous.

At the root of this problem is an absence of scrutiny on the part of our city councilors. The rate of new signage and restrictive ordinance approval is appalling. At current rates the citizens of Quincy are likely to have speed bumps at the bottoms of their driveways. The use of "Stop" signs, "red lights," "No Turn on Red" signs, and "One Way" signs is clearly out of control.

Attempting to control speed by implementing "Stop" signs is reflective of lazy representation. It seems our city councilors are unaware of the grief their ordinances are evoking on Quincy drivers. I invite the citizens of Quincy to visit one street, in particular. Over the past several years Standish Avenue has been transformed into what "out-of-towners" refer to as simply "a joke." Those who have driven it will concur in the sentiment. What was once an efficient thoroughfare between Beale Street and Southern Artery is now an obstacle course with two "Stop" signs in the space of a tenth of a mile

Are the city councilors taking helicopters to work everyday? Do they truly have no sense of the impact of such ordinances? Or are they simply blindly appeasing "squeaky wheels" who have only their self-interests in mind?

As our newly elected city councilors assume their positions of power I urge them to examine this important situation. I urge them to dare to dissent on the motion to pass another "Stop" sign ordinance in our city. An indefinite moratorium on all "Stop" signs is in order. The question naturally emerges as to the rate of "Stop" sign removal in our city. Indeed, it seems clear that "Stop" sign use in Quincy is a "one way" street — they never come down.

Our city councilors are charged to advocate for the safety of residents while at the same time ardently defending "quality of life." The crisis I have outlined is a clear indication that this "quality" is on its way to "coming to a full and complete stop."

Destroying Land Mines

I note that the U.S. Military in Afghanistan is using the old-fashioned method of clearing mines — use of metal detectors. One soldier has already lost one leg.

During World War II, on Omaha Beach once a foothold was gained, I saw a machine similar to a tank that had a long pole extending from the front that had flailing arms beating the ground and the mines exploded without causing any injuries. Why hasn't the military built at least one to use around the various air strips?

What the U.S. Military also has to do is use napalm (jellied gasoline) in the caves without any one going into these dangerous areas. Napalm will run for a distance of 4 to 5 hundred feet and burn everything in its path. It worked in Iwo Jima and Okinawa and Europe.

Lastly, the machine with the flailing arms can be used in Africa where so many people have lost their lives because mines were haphazardly planted in the ground.

Quincy's Yesterdays New Student Center For ENC

By PAUL HAROLD

Edward Mann, president of Eastern Nazarene College, announced plans for the construction of a new $750,000 student center on the Wollaston campus.

Mann said the student center was one of a number of new buildings planned for the college to accommodate the increase in enrollment that was at 850. As part of a $3 million master plan, projected new buildings included a gymnasium, two classroom buildings and two dormitories.

DELLA CHIESA CUTS $773,000 FROM BUDGET

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa began his review of the city's budget this weekend, cutting $773,000 from department requests. The cuts came from the "big three" — police, fire and hospital budgets.

Police Chief William Terrizzi and Fire Chief Thomas Gorman both requested a additional men, but were turned down by the mayor. The mayor said the initial cuts represented a savings of $420 on next year's tax rate.

There was one more round of reviews by the mayor before he sent the budget to the city council which is expected to meet in early February.

BUDGET INCLUDES FUNDS FOR BIRTH RECORDS

City Clerk John Gillis announced earlier this month that attempts he was successful this year in gaining the council's approval for funds to preserve the city's birth records.

Gillis said the project would include an estimated 75,000 birth certificates dating back to the period when Quincy became a city. He said many certificates were stored in file cabinets and boxes and that by binding them all in books they would be better preserved and less apt to get lost.

The total cost for the first phase of the project was $800.

QUINCY-ISM

Judge Gertrude Halloran fined four Boston men $5 each for fighting outside Elsie's on Quincy Shore Blvd. . . Quincy Junior College had its highest enrollment in history with 350 students. . . The steel frame for the new NQHS gymnasium was in place and according to Joseph Donahue of the architectural firm of Hanlon and Donahue, weather permitting, it could be ready by the spring. . . Councilor David McIntosh proposed the extension of Elm St. to McGrath Highway to serve as another cross town link. . . "Rock Around The Clock" with Chubby Checker and Fabian was playing at the Strand.

. . . Kenneth Gardner was named permanent city personnel director after serving in the post as acting head for the past four years. He previously served as assistant to city manager Edward Lewis. . . Rev. John McNamara, assistant pastor at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, volunteered to serve as military chaplain. . . Councilor Richard Barry met with residents of Holmes St. to consider making the street one-way. . . Edward Brooke, head of the Boston Finance Committee, was guest speaker at the GOP Women's Club meeting at the Woodward School. Mrs. Charles Ross was hostess for the event. . . Reservations were being taken for the dinner preceding the ordination ceremonies for Malcolm Brummitt at Houghs Neck Congregational Church. . . Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate, George Lodge, spoke at the Men's Club at Quincy Point Congregational Church. . . Irving Boyes announced that there were 108 blood donors for the Red Cross's recent drive. Donating blood from the fire department were Lawrence Perette, Vincent Currier, Nunzio Cirillo, Joseph Mossesso, Nicholas Hannon and Francis Moriarty. . . The last two icons were dedicated in ceremonies at St. Catherine's Church. William Parros was chairman of the board of trustees. . . The Quincy Historical Society purchased 1825 oil paintings of James and Lucy Newcomb. He was an early granite quarry operator who supplied stone for the Bunker Hill Monument. . . Councilor James McCormack proposed a change in residence D zones to allow for the construction of high rise apartments. . . QHS basketball team rolled to an easy 92-60 victory over Everett. Coach Marty Finnegan said with three more wins the Presidents could go to the Tech Tournament. . . NQHS basketball lost 69-57 to Somerville. Coach Ken Rickson noted that flu had benched some of his best players. . . Dickman Toy and Novelty moved from Washington St. to Sea St. . . Mayor Della Chiesa petitioned the state for a pedestrian crossing light at Newport Ave. and Beale St. The state had turned it down previously because of the danger of stopping cars at such a high grade. . . The YMCA announced it had its highest enrollment with 4,738 members.

John's Pumpkin Delight

It seems that almost all of my telephone conversations with my brother John end up being about something different each of us has cooked.

This past week, he told me about a dessert he actually invented because he had some leftover pumpkin. It sounded so easy and delicious. I decided to try it and then pass it on to all of you.

John's Pumpkin Delight

4 cups pumpkin puree
1 cup bisquick
1 egg
3.4 cup sugar

1 teaspoon vanilla
1 1/2 teaspoons pumpkin spice or cinnamon, nutmeg and ginger equivalent

Mix the pumpkin, egg, sugar and vanilla. Set aside. Mix bisquick with water until it is blended. Place on the bottom of a loaf pan as in a crust. Bake for about 10 minutes until bisquick rises a bit. Remove from oven and fill it with the pumpkin mixture. Bake in a 375 degree oven for about an hour. Cool and cut into slices....A delicious flavor just as tasty as pumpkin pie.

'Evening With Author' Series At Library

The Bookmark Café in the atrium of the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Center, will host "An Evening with the Author" series this winter.

The monthly programs are for readers and aspiring writers. The series begins Tuesday, Jan. 29, at 7 p.m. with Quincy author Jane Dews, whose first novel, Sunrise, was published last year.

Dews will read from her debut novel and chat about her writing career with the audience. She will discuss the writing process, publishing, marketing, and the book itself.

Dews, who moved from Texas to Quincy, sets her novel in Houston where the idea for the story was born. Written over a period of several years, Sunrise combines romance and murder but is essentially a story about friendship and daring to dream. The main characters are women, and their predicaments and fates keep the novel's pages turning.

The café is located on the ground floor of the main library and is accessible. There is no charge for the program.

Dinner Theatre Oldies Show Schedule

The Solid Gold Oldies Show at Quincy Dinner Theatre, 1170 Hancock St., will be held Jan. 26, Feb. 2, 9, 10, 14, and 16.

Dinner will be at 7 p.m. and the show will be held at 8:30 p.m.

On Sundays, matinee and dinner is at 2 p.m. with the show at 3:30 p.m.

The musical review will feature songs of the 50's and 60's.

Tickets are $37.50 for dinner and show. It is wheelchair accessible.

For reservations, call 781-843-5862.

Maria Droste 'Volunteer Of Year'

THE GOOD SHEPHERD'S Maria Droste Volunteer of the Year Award is presented to Richard Welch by the Quincy-based agency's executive director, Sister Joanne Westwater. Welch, president of Welch Health Care, has served on the Maria Droste advisory board for the past nine years.

Newly Renovated Auditorium At The Woodward School Honors Robert Johnston

The Woodward School for Girls in Quincy Center will hold a Celebration Program tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. to dedicate the Robert L. Johnston Memorial Auditorium in honor of the late Robert L. Johnston, headmaster of the school for nearly 20 years.

Johnston, remembered for his "Don Quixote spirit" and his belief in the importance of the arts as the center of the educational process, died Feb. 5, 1998.

The celebration program will include greetings from current Headmaster Thomas Wesner; "A Time for Remembering," by Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, who served as co-chairwoman for the more than $100,000 renovation project with Robert Ramondini; a dance presentation by the Woodward Dance Team under the direction of Jamie Gallery; "Making a Difference" performed by the Performing Arts and Athletic Departments; "The Dream Lives On" by James Flanagan, a Social Studies teacher at the school; and a musical tribute performed by Amber Minardi, Class of 2001, and Peter Johnston, Robert L. Johnston's son.

ROBERT JOHNSTON

"This is an appropriate memorial" said Barbara Segadelli, director of Admissions at the school and a member of the Woodward School Foundation, who described Johnston's two decades of devotion to the school as "legendary."

Segadelli thanked Johnston family members, committee members, fellow members of the Woodward

School Foundation, and the students, faculty, and parent volunteers of the Woodward School community for making the memorial project possible.

Construction began on the renovated auditorium in the summer of 2001 and was completed by the fall.

The Johnston Memorial Auditorium will feature:

- New, comfortable cushioned seating
- A state of the art theater sound system
- A concert grand piano
- Expanded storage for stage, piano, and chairs
- New heating, ventilation, and air conditioning
- Modular stage to allow for maximum flexibility in productions
- New window treatments to protect windows and darken the auditorium
- Newly refinished hardwood flooring
- New wall covering
- Acoustic materials to enhance sound quality
- Increased floor space for larger school functions

May all the aches and pains of 2001 become a distant memory in 2002!

The Massachusetts Cultural Council (MCC) has awarded $49,600 to the Quincy Cultural Council for redistribution.

In addition, the MCC has awarded a total of $9,820 in direct funding to two not-for-profit organizations in Quincy: a $7,570 award to First Night of Quincy, Inc. and a $2,250 award for Quincy Symphony Orchestra, Inc.

The announcement was made recently by state Sen. Michael Morrissey and state Reps. Stephen Tobin, Ronald Mariano, and Bruce Ayers.

The Massachusetts Cultural Council is the state agency responsible for administering direct grants or matching grants to the state's 335 local cultural councils.

"The funds will support a variety of cultural activities in Quincy," said Morrissey. "This funding is important in supporting local community organizations and events, which in turn improves the overall quality of life."

First Night Quincy, Inc., one of the two not-for-profits that received direct funding, is an annual event held on Dec. 31 of each year to celebrate the coming of the new year. "First Night Quincy is an annual event that thousands of people on the South Shore come to and is one of the signature events in the city of Quincy," said Mariano.

The other not-for-profit is Quincy Symphony Orchestra, Inc. The Quincy Symphony Orchestra, established in 1954, is in its 48th season of musical excellence in Quincy.

Both not-for-profits, said Tobin, were deserving of assistance from the MCC's Organizational Support program because of their "track records of excellence in cultural programming and public service."

The Quincy Cultural Council is responsible for the re-granting of the $49,600. "The Quincy Cultural Council is a local board which accepts, reviews, and grants this money to worthy local cultural events," said Ayers.

Persons interested in applying for this funding should contact Arthur Keough, the council's chairman, at (617) 376-1322.

The funding helps support existing programs as well as start new grassroots cultural programs in the community. Residents can also learn more about the Massachusetts Cultural Council services by calling (800) 232-0960.

"In times like these, when arts and culture are invoked to commemorate celebrations as well as sadness, we must remember how vitally important they are to our communities," Morrissey said. "We should all take great pride in the fact that cities and towns in this region and throughout Massachusetts have vibrant cultural organizations of all sizes."

THE QUINCY CAREER CENTER recently held dedication ceremonies to celebrate its new location at 152 Parkway. The Career Center provides a central resource for local businesses and job seekers and offers resume development services, referrals to job training opportunities, and other services. Cahill State Treasurer Campaign Meeting Jan. 23

City Councillor-Norfolk County Treasurer Tim Cahill will hold a campaign meeting Wednesday, Jan. 23, in his bid for state treasurer.

The meeting will be held at 7 p.m. at the Local 88 Tunnel Workers Union, 170 Washington St., Quincy.

The public is invited to attend to meet Cahill and learn more about his campaign.

Cahill reports he has raised more than $230,000 and has gained support across the state.

He stresses he is the only candidate in the race with direct experience as an elected treasurer.

Cahill was elected treasurer of Norfolk County in 1996 and notes he has worked to stabilize the country's financial picture and to improve county services.

He says that as of 2000, the last year in which the information is available, Norfolk County had the top regional retirement system in the Commonwealth.

For more information or to participate in Cahill's campaign, call 617-479-2428.

David Pekkinen Receives Phelan's First Commendation

Quincy Man Honored For Saving Boy Whose Clothing Caught Fire

David Pekkinen of Wren Terrace doesn't consider himself a hero.

But his quick action saved a 10-year-old boy whose clothing caught fire and is hospitalized with third degree burns.

Pekkinen, an employee of the Daniel J. Flynn & Co. Quincy-based real estate firm, was honored last week at a surprise luncheon at Captain Fishbones Restaurant in Marina Bay.

There, he was presented with the very first city commendation issued by new Mayor William Phelan and tickets to the Boston Celtics from Flynn & Company CEO Daniel Flynn. The firm's entire staff was on hand to help honor Pekkinen.

Pekkinen, an employee of the Flynn company's construction division, was working at the home of Peter and Mary Skipper in Dorchester Dec. 27 when their youngest child, Peter, 10, accidentally came in contact with a propane space heater, setting his clothes afire.

Pekkinen rushed to the boy and was able to extinguish the flames using his bare hands to save him from further burns.

Peter is still at New England Medical Center where he is being treated for third degree burns on a good part of his body.

"Anyone would have done the same thing under the circumstances," said Pekkinen modestly when presented with the commendation from Mayor Phelan and the Celtics tickets from Flynn.

But, says young Peter's father, "Dave was the perfect guy to have present for that situation. 'He knew exactly what to do. Our family thinks the world of him.'"

Pekkinen continues to check in on Peter's progress as he heals from his burns.

"It started out as a working relationship," his father says. "But Dave has become a good friend."

Pilgrim Principal Protection Fund II

For investors seeking long-term growth plus a five-year period of downside protection—guaranteed

Sound too good to be true?

Well, it isn't. The Pilgrim Principal Protection Fund II is a new equity-linked investment vehicle that provides a five-year period of downside protection. The fund's principal is guaranteed to be at least $1.00 per share at the end of the five-year period, regardless of the performance of the underlying stocks.

But, you'd better act soon. The fund is only available to investors who act before January 31, 2002.

The fund's principal is guaranteed to be at least $1.00 per share at the end of the five-year period, regardless of the performance of the underlying stocks.

*After you hold your investment until the end of the 5-year Guarantee Period, on the 5-year Maturity Date your account will be worth at least $1.00 per share and, in addition, you will receive a cash bonus of $0.50 per share. If you choose to reinvest your investment at the end of the 5-year period, the principal amount invested could be less than that invested. During the Guarantee Period, investors pay a fee equal to 0.30% of the fund's average daily net assets for the guarantee, which is included in the fund's total operating expenses. If you sell shares during the Guarantee Period, shares are redeemed at the current NAV, which may be more or less than your original investment and/or the NAV at the inception of the Guarantee Period. The guarantee is based on the NAV on the last day of the offering phase, not $1.00 and does not apply to any earnings realized during the Guarantee Period. The fund's strategy is to invest in U.S. financial and common stock, with the goal of providing long-term capital appreciation. As with any investment in stocks and bonds, the fund is subject to market risk.

SOMALI CHILDREN and United States Marine Mark Folan in a photograph taken in 1993 during international relief efforts in the impoverished country. "These kids were better off than most," remembered Folan, now a member of the Quincy Police Department.

THESE SOMALI HUTS in the foreground were where the poorest of the poor Somalis lived in the capital Mogadishu in 1993. "The wealthy were supposed to have lived in some of the buildings like those in the background, but we never saw them," said former Marine and current Quincy Police Officer Mark Folan, who took part in the international relief efforts for the war-torn, famine-struck country.

Mark Folan Has Vivid Memories As A Former Marine

Somalia Perfect Hideout For Al-Qaida Terrorists

By CRAIG SALTERS

Believe it or not, Quincy Police Officer Mark Folan, who as a United States Marine in the early 1990's served as a member of the International Peacekeeping Task Force in Somalia, has some fond memories of the place.

"Mogadishu must have been beautiful at one time," said Folan of the war-torn city which sits high upon cliffs overlooking the Indian Ocean and serves as the capital of Somalia, an impoverished nation comprising the "horn" of East Africa.

"But after 40 or 50 years of war," he continued, never quite finishing the sentence.

The country of Somalia seems to be reappearing on the nation's radar screen for two reasons: one, the recently released film Black Hawk Down, based on the book of the same name by journalist Mark Bowden, which details the heroism of U.S. Rangers during a disastrous 1993 mission against Somali warlords in Mogadishu; and two, the ongoing War Against Terrorism which is focusing more and more upon Somalia as a possible refuge for Al-Qaida terrorists fleeing Afghanistan.

Folan, who served in the Marine Corps from 1990 until 1994, said he couldn't really comment on the events depicted in the film, emphasizing that the Marine base in Mogadishu was already secure when he arrived there and that he never took direct fire, dealing only with the sporadic gunfire that marked daily patrols through the city.

MARK FOLAN

He further noted that the so-called "Battle of Mogadishu," which left 18 Rangers and other soldiers dead and eventually led to President William Clinton's withdrawal of U.S. forces from Somalia, occurred two to three weeks after he had returned stateside.

What he can say about the 1993 event, which included the haunting image of dead American soldiers being dragged through the streets of Mogadishu, was the horror he felt that such a noble mission — protecting international relief supplies intended for starving Somalis — had led to such a "tragic event."

"Anytime you try to help somebody (referring to the relief efforts), it's the right thing to do," said Folan, now in his seventh year as a Quincy Police Officer. "But seeing those guys dragged on the truck, that evoked different feelings, feelings of rage.

"I don't care if you had to send everybody back, that shouldn't have happened. For anyone serving in the Army, that must have been a nightmare."

As for Somalia being the perfect hideout for Al-Qaida and other terrorists, Folan was in perfect agreement.

"The place was crazy," Folan remembered. "There was no government, no law, really no structure at all. Everybody, and I mean everybody, chewed Khat (which Folan described as a plant containing a form of amphetamine); it was part of their culture.

"The people would steal from us or from the trucks; they'd be jumping through the barbed wire to steal and I don't blame them. These people were literally starving," he said.

Folan said the hardest part of the mission for many Marines was wanting to give some of their rations to the starving and dying Somali children but being unable to because the high carbohydrate content of the food would kill them.

"They had to be weaned on things like rice or milk," Folan explained. "It was tough seeing that, and I didn't even have children yet."

Folan, a lifelong West Quincy resident and 1986 graduate of Archbishop Williams High School in Braintree, and his wife Megan now have two children: Billy, age two and one-half, and Katie, age five months.

Folan called the structure of the Marine Corps "the best thing that ever happened to me," adding that that same structure serves him well as a police officer. He also said the relief operation to Somalia was the best part of his Marine experience.

"I was most proud of that," said Folan.

Oddly enough, Folan's experience as a United States Marine and as a Quincy Police Officer were not his first tastes of responsibility, having already served the less hazardous duty of news carrier for The Quincy Sun.

A SOON FAREWELL-Fr. Robert Monagle will be leaving St. Joseph's Parish after 5 1/2 years to serve as a full time chaplain in the Air Force.

Will Say Farewell At Masses Jan. 27 Fr. Robert Monagle Leaving St. Joseph's To Serve As Air Force Chaplain

After nearly six years of service at St. Joseph's Church in Quincy Point, the Rev. Robert Monagle is ready to say "good-bye" and begin his new assignment as a full-time chaplain in the United States Air Force.

Rev. Monagle will celebrate his last Mass at St. Joseph's Sunday, Jan. 27 at 11:30 a.m. and will speak at all Masses that weekend. In addition, there will be a reception in the parish hall following all of the Sunday morning Masses.

As of Feb. 10, Rev. Monagle will be on active duty as a chaplain assigned to Travis Air Force Base in California, to be deployed wherever and whenever needed over the next three years.

Rev. Monagle said he has always been interested in becoming a full-time chaplain but that his recent decision was predicated on two factors: the upcoming end of his six-year term at St. Joseph's, which would have necessitated a relocation; and the growing need for clergy in the military following the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks.

"There's a real need for chaplains and for priests in the military, especially after Sept. 11," said Rev. Monagle, who was ordained as a priest in June of 1991 by Cardinal Bernard Law, serving five years at the Immaculate Conception Church in Everett before coming to St. Joseph's.

Rev. Monagle has served as a chaplain in the Air Force Reserves for the past six years and, while a seminarian, attended the Chaplain Candidates Program at Maxwell Air Force Base in Alabama. As a reservist, he served this past summer as a chaplain at the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Co.

He has also served at Bolling Air Force Base in Washington D.C. and was scheduled to be in the Pentagon during the Sept. 11 attacks before receiving a change of orders.

"In all likelihood, I would have been in a different part of the Pentagon," said Rev. Monagle, who also serves as Catholic chaplain to the Quincy Police Department. Still, he said, he knew many affected by the Sept. 11 attack on the Pentagon and has led prayer services in the area.

Rev. Monagle, who will wear the rank of captain while on active duty, said that he will miss the many friendships he's made in Quincy over the last five years.

"The people have been just great," said Rev. Monagle, giving special thanks to the Rev. Daniel Graham, pastor of St. Joseph's, and the parishioners. "St. Joseph's has been just a terrific place to serve."

Rev. Graham spoke for many when he said Rev. Monagle's presence would be sorely missed in the community.

"He's been a great associate pastor during his tenure here and did an extreme amount of work, especially with the youth of the parish," said Rev. Daniel Graham, noting Rev. Monagle's efforts organizing both religious and social events for middle school and high school students as well as his work with young adults in their twenties and thirties. "He has a great gift of being able to organize and excellent leadership skills.

"He'll do a fine job in the military but he'll be greatly missed."

Quincy High School Athletic Director Ed Miller praised Rev. Monagle for his consistent support of QHS athletics and its student athletes, an opinion echoed by QHS Football Coach Bob Noble.

"He's been a great friend to us and that's win, lose, or draw," said Noble, praising his quiet presence for years at games and his "shoulder to lean on" support of the team. "Father Bob, as we call him, has been always been there for our program."

In addition to attending most home games for the past several years, Noble said, Rev. Monagle has led team invocations on many occasions and has presided over a Mass at St. Joseph's for the team on the evening before the school's Thanksgiving Day game against North Quincy High School.

According to Rev. Graham, Rev. Monagle's departure from St. Joseph's Church will mark the beginning of a downsizing at the church, meaning that Rev. Monagle's position will not be replaced. Instead, some retired priests living in the South Shore area will fill in at St. Joseph's on a rotating basis.

Active until his very last day at the parish, Rev. Monagle will chaperone a St. Joseph's CYO weekend ski trip to Sunday River in Maine this weekend and will run a junior CYO dance at the parish hall the following Friday.

At Martin Luther King Ceremony Katherine Quigley, Zaida Shaw To Receive Service Awards From Dist. Atty.

Katherine Quigley, director of the YMCA Germantown Neighborhood Center, and Zaida Hassan Shaw from the Islamic Center of New England, will receive the District Attorney's Awards for Distinguished Service, announces Norfolk County DA William Keating.

The awards will be presented Monday, Jan. 21 at the Martin Luther King Day celebration breakfast at the George F. Bryan VFW Post, Broad St., Quincy. The event is sponsored by the Quincy Human Rights Commission.

"Kathy and Zaida are important parts of the fabric of the city of Quincy," Keating said. "The contributions Kathy and Zaida make to keep Quincy a strong, vibrant city deserve recognition and praise."

Quigley, who has worked at the Neighborhood Center since 1996, has helped provide hundreds of children and families with countless hours of quality services and support. Efforts she has implemented or overseen include reading programs, breakfast provision for children, after-school homework programs, and inter-generational programs.

Shaw has worked in the office of the Islamic Center of New England for 15 years. She is the secretary of the Quincy Community Action and has been active in the Ward 2 Civic Association, Human Rights Commission, the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women, Quincy 2000, and has been a stalwart of the Islamic Center for more than 60 years.

Grandmaster To Make Presentation To Rev. Alicia Corea Rev. Dr. Peter Corea To Receive High Freemason Award Posthumously

The Joseph Warren Distinguished Service Medal, one of Freemasonry's highest honors, will be awarded posthumously to Rev. Dr. Peter Corea, a prominent Freemason in the Quincy and Boston communities and a former co-pastor of Houghs Neck Congregational Church.

The Rev. M. Alicia Corea, the Rev. Dr. Corea's wife and co-pastor of Houghs Neck Congregational Church, will accept the award on his behalf Friday at the Quincy Masonic Building, 1170 Hancock St.

Installation and awards ceremonies are scheduled to begin at 7:45 p.m. The public is invited.

As an added honor, the medal will be presented in person by Grand Master Donald G. Hicks, the latest in a succession of Massachusetts Freemasons to hold that office, including Revolutionary War patriots Paul Revere and General Joseph Warren.

Dr. Corea, who died Thanksgiving of 2001 after a progressive illness, was a well-known figure in the pastoral community and held the Freemasonry position of Grand Chaplain.

A co-founder of what is now Quincy College, Dr. Corea had a long and distinguished career in education, teaching at many Boston area colleges such as Emerson College and Boston University.

The Joseph Warren Medal is awarded from time to time to those who have been outstanding in their Masonic career and have been exemplary in their service to the community. The medal takes its name from

REV. DR. PETER COREA

General Joseph Warren M.D., who was killed in the Battle of Bunker Hill in 1775 during the Revolutionary War.

Warren died in the front line of battle, having been wounded in the head by a Redcoat musket ball. He was Grand Master of Masons in North America at the time of his death which was commemorated by the erection of an obelisk by the Masons of Massachusetts. The obelisk was later replaced by the current Bunker Hill monument.

Freemasonry is the oldest and largest fraternal organization in the world. The Grand Lodge of Massachusetts was established in 1733 and is the third oldest Grand Lodge in the world. Today, there are some 50,000 Freemasons in Massachusetts that meet in more than 270 individual Lodges in cities and towns throughout the Commonwealth.

The Grotto is a social order of Freemasons which holds its meetings monthly, on the third Friday of each month, at the Quincy Masonic building. It brings together Masons from many different Masonic Lodges in eastern Massachusetts, as well as their wives.

In common with other Masonic bodies, it is well known for its contributions to charity, specifically, Cerebral Palsy and Dentistry for the Handicapped.

Two Quincy Residents Earn Jack Conway Award

Quincy residents Osman Yesilkimen and Stephanie Corkery recently earned the annual "Thanksgiving award" for their work at Jack Conway & Co. and Conway Financial Services.

Yesilkimen is sales agent at Conway's Wellston office on Beale Street. Corkery is loan processor at the Conway Financial Services administrative headquarters at Route 52 in Norwell.

Chairman Jack Conway and President Richard R. Conway of Quincy presented the awards at the company's annual Thanksgiving breakfast held at Rumpole Plantation. Each winner received a holiday turkey in recognition of their efforts throughout the year.

"What makes the Thanksgiving award so special is that the winners are chosen by their colleagues," Conway said. "The team in each office department selects the person they feel best represents the Conway spirit of cooperation, helpfulness and goodwill."

How To Furnish A Safe House

(NAPS)—When it comes to the furnishings in your home, safety does not—and should not—have to take a back seat to style.

"People should be keenly aware of safety issues when choosing furniture for their families," says Jackie Hirschhaut, vice president of the American Furniture Manufacturers Association (AFMA).

To help consumers choose safe products for their homes, AFMA offers the following tips:

- Bunk Beds: Not recommended for children under six. Top bunks should have guard rails on each side, with no more than 15 inches open at each end. Rails should be secure and sturdy (as should the ladder) and extend at least five inches above the top of a properly sized mattress. Allow only one person on a top bunk at a time and don't allow horse play.

- Upholstery: Look for the gold UFAC tag ensuring the furniture meets construction criteria outlined by the Upholstered Furniture Action Council. The voluntary UFAC program is credited with contributing to a major reduction in the number of upholstered furniture fires started by smoldering cigarettes.

- Cribs: Crib slats or spindles should be spaced no more than 2 and three eighths of an inch apart and none should be loose or missing. Make sure all screws, brackets, and other hardware on the crib are properly installed. The mattress should fit snugly, with no more than two fingers-width between the edge of the mattress and the crib.

- Dressers and chests of drawers: Drawers should slide in and out easily. Check for automatic drawer stops that prevent the drawer from falling out. Open only one drawer at a time and never let children stand in open drawers.

- Bookcases: Do not overload shelves. Consider securing the top portion of the unit to the wall to prevent tipover, especially if there are children in the home.

- Entertainment centers and TV stands: Help prevent possible tipover by using the correct size and style furniture to house your television.

- Storage and toy chests: Be sure lids are equipped with safety latches that prevent them from slamming shut. Lids should not lock automatically.

- Reclining chairs: Voluntary industry guidelines have made today's reclining chairs safer, but children should never be allowed to play or climb on the chairs—particularly when a chair is in the reclined position.

MassHousing Municipal Mortgage Program Now Available

State Sen. Michael Morrissey announces the availability of the MassHousing Municipal Mortgage Program.

Local banks on the South Shore and across the state have committed $245 million to help municipal employees buy a home in the town in which they work. The commitment of funds is a result of a new program from MassHousing, the state's quasi-public affordable housing bank.

"Too often I hear about local teachers, firefighters, and police officers no longer able to afford to buy a home in the community in which they work and were raised," said Morrissey. "I am very pleased to announce MassHousing's mortgage program, which is directly aimed at remedying this problem."

Under the Municipal Mortgage Program, local banks will commit their own funds for the mortgages. The loans will be insured by MassHousing's mortgage insurance fund, reducing the risk to the banks.

By partnering with MassHousing, banks can lend up to 100 percent of the cost of a home, which is great news for buyers with little or no cash for a down payment.

The program is open to full-time salaried municipal employees living in communities served by the banks who meet income eligibility requirements and who seek to purchase a home in the community where they work.

In addition, Salem Five Cents Savings Bank and First Trade Union Savings Bank have made statewide commitments, insuring that every municipal employee without a local participating bank can take advantage of the program.

In Morrissey's legislative district, the Massachusetts Cooperative Bank in Quincy is a Municipal Mortgage Program Lender.

State law usually limits banks to lending no more than 95 percent of the cost of a home, requiring borrowers to come up with at least a five percent down payment. But affordable housing statutes allow banks to finance 100 percent of the home if they partner with an agency like MassHousing.

Borrowers will also receive favorable interest rates and reduced closing costs. Banks can offer either adjustable or fixed rate loans. Each community bank will set its own terms and rates.

Household income cannot exceed 135 percent of median income, which varies across the state. In Morrissey's legislative district, which includes Quincy and the towns of Brantree, Hollbrook, Norwell, and Rockland, 135 percent of median income is $94,500. In Abington, which is also represented by Morrissey, 135 percent of median income is $82,755.

Most importantly, the program allows employees to buy a home without having to save the traditional five percent for down payment to be qualified for a mortgage based on how much they can afford to put down.

For more information about the Municipal Mortgage Program, contact Morrissey's office at (617) 722-1494 or call 1-877-309-HOME (4663).

Winterize Your Home With Simple Maintenance Projects

(NAPS) — Here are several projects to keep your home in top condition throughout the year.

Inside the Home:
• Clean carpet, entry rugs, and welcome mats to remove months of tracked-in dirt and grime. Your carpet may be due for cleaning. Professional carpet cleaning is one option, or you can rent a steam extraction machine and try a professional cleaning solution such as Zep Premium Carpet Cleaner, which cleans and deodorizes as well as reduces allergens.

• Treat drains and disposals to prevent build-up that can cause clogs and expensive repairs. Pipe-clogging build up of soap, oils, and hair can be tackled at this time. A specially-formulated product such as Zep Drain Care should be used monthly or at least four times a year, to keep shower and drains running smoothly all year long.

• Remove mildew from tubs, showers, walls, and window sills. Look for professional-quality products to limit your time and energy spent scrubbing. An old toothbrush can get into cracks and crevices where mildew lives.

• Clean windows inside and out. This is a chore you won't want to tackle once the weather gets too cold.

• Replace filters for HVAC and heating units. Check heating units to make sure they work properly. Clean your air ducts with a shop vac or call a professional to check and service your units.

Outside the Home:

• Pressure wash the driveway and garage floor. Splitting the rental cost of a pressure washer among several neighbors can reduce expenses. Don't forget to pressure wash vinyl or aluminum siding and decks and patios, too.

• Seal up small holes around the pipes and foundation to keep rodents and bugs outside. When the weather turns cold, many critters will seek the warmth of your cozy cottage.

Real Estate in the New Era

by Vin Mascardelli
Owner/Broker

A WORKING RELATIONSHIP

There was once speculation that the cyber-marketplace of the Internet would eventually take over the roles played by real estate agents. Real estate agents and their clients, however, have shown that they use the Internet to their advantage as an informational tool. The percentage of U.S. homebuyers who used the Internet to conduct their home searches has doubled in the past year to 37%, according to the National Association of Realtors. Only 4% of these buyers found the homes that they eventually purchased on the Internet. And even then, commissions were often paid in these cases because they were agency listings. The Internet, then, has become an adjunct to, not a substitute for, a real estate agent.

Technological advances such as the Internet have made tasks more efficient and our lives easier. However, the basics do not change. The sales expertise of the sales staff at ERA CENTRAL REAL ESTATE includes residential sales, business opportunities, and commercial and development properties. Locally owned, we live here, work here, and raise our families here. As integral members of the community, we take pride in offering personalized, thoughtful real estate service. Whether you're buying or selling, call us at 617-328-1312 to arrange a consultation. The office is located at 128 Mayor McGrath Highway.

HINT: The Internet makes it possible for consumers to gather information about listings, comparables, and financing, which can be filtered through a real estate agent to sort out the pertinent information.

Hosts Marshfield Friday At 6:30 PM

Defense The Difference
For Red Raiders

By CHRIS POISSON

If you've happened to watch just the two home games, you would think the North Quincy High School boys' basketball team was struggling this season.

Not the case, though.

After losing to undefeated Barnstable last Tuesday on Hancock Street, the Red Raiders took their show on the road last Friday night against Plymouth South. And that's a good thing.

Amazingly, North Quincy (6-3 overall, 3-2 OCL) prevailed, 62-45, to improve to 6-1 away from home this year. It hosted Silver Lake Tuesday and tomorrow (Friday) night at 6:30 it remains at home to battle Marshfield.

"I think it's because of the kids' work ethic and they've brought into the defensive concept," said head coach Ted Stevenson of his team's road success. "Defense has been our bread and butter. That's the reason why we're 6-1 on the road."

North Quincy's Steelers-esque defense has yielded an average of 48 points per game and held five teams to under 50 points. Against Plymouth South, the Panthers hit a couple of three-pointers late in the game to pass the 40-point mark.

"We've held a lot of teams down," Stevenson said.

The defensive mentality has been contagious. When the bench players step onto the hardwood to finish out games, Stevenson said the starters cheer for them to make defensive stops.

"We're taking pride in

stopping teams now," he said.

The defense has even drawn the praise from college scouts. At a recent game, Stevenson said, one scout, who was on hand to watch senior star Phil McGillicuddy, told a parent that North Quincy had one of the best high school team defenses he has seen in a while.

And the defense was in peak form against Plymouth South. Senior tri-captain Pat Bregoli, along with fellow tri-captain McGillicuddy, gave Plymouth South's top two players, Dan Walls and Pat Lucy, headaches all game.

The two shadowed the Panthers' stars so well, even a groundhog would've been afraid. Walls, who entered the game as the league's leading scorer, scored just four points, while Lucy, who came in averaging 17 ppg, tallied only seven.

Offensively, McGillicuddy poured in a game-high 25 points to go along with five assists. McGillicuddy, who has led the team in scoring the past two seasons, is within under 100 points of the 1,000-point plateau.

Senior tri-captain John O'Connell, who was a game-time decision because of back spasms, added 14 points and eight rebounds in what Stevenson said was the forward's best performance of the season.

"He's been strong all year defensively, but he came out of his shooting problems [last] Friday night," he said.

Senior guard Dan Duggan rounded out the score sheet once again with seven points, five assists and three steals. Senior forward Jack Liuzzo dominated the paint, grabbing 12 rebounds, blocking two shots and chipping in seven points. Senior center Adam O'Hara pulled down seven boards.

The Red Raiders were also aided by the return of senior guard Matt Donovan from an ankle injury. "He looked good on the court. He gives us another scorer, which we need," Stevenson said.

In the 60-44 loss to Barnstable, North Quincy led by one at halftime and had a seven-point lead in the second half.

"Then our shooting went really cold," Stevenson said. "We took a lot of jump shots and they got the long rebounds and had fast breaks. They're big and physical up front and that bothered us a little bit. They wore us out in the second half. Their defense makes you do things you don't want to do on offense."

McGillicuddy scored 20 points and O'Connell 12.

"Overall, I'm pleased with how we're playing this year," Stevenson said. "It has been an all-around team effort. I feel [last] Friday night was our best game of the year. Hopefully we've turned the corner."

Flu-Ridden Presidents
Flat, Fall To Sandwich

By CHRIS POISSON

Following the Quincy High School boys' basketball team's game last Friday night against Sandwich, head coach John Franceschini sounded like he was reviewing a restaurant rather than hoops.

Several times, Franceschini described his team's effort as stale and flat. And needless to say, those adjectives do not invoke an appetizing image, as the Presidents suffered a lackluster, 72-54 loss at home.

"We struggled," Franceschini said. "We had a tough week with people out with the flu. We did not have a full team all week practicing. I think a lot of that caught up with us, too."

"I'm not taking anything away from Sandwich, but I thought we were very stale tonight. It showed obviously in our offense, but, as you've seen before, when our defense is flat, something is wrong in the kitchen."

Quincy played without junior center Anthony Boyle (flu), while junior guards

Shawn Munchbach and Craig Keenan played despite missing the previous two practices due to sickness.

"I'm not going to say sickness is the reason, but it's hard," Franceschini said. "You have your center out sick. Three of these kids had not practiced for two days. These are kids that are a big piece of our pie. It's a lot of pressure on some of the young kids. But, hey, life will go on. We'll get ready for the next one."

Quincy (0-7, 0-4) traveled to Randolph Tuesday and tomorrow (Friday) night it remains on the road when it takes on Plymouth North at 6:30.

Despite their ineffectiveness, the Presidents were able to stay close with the Blue Knights in the first half, trailing by just five, 33-28, at the break. However, Sandwich's sluggish start may have been because of its long bus trip. "We were lucky," Franceschini said of the half-time score.

In the second half, the Blue Knights' pulled away with a 10-0 run and then a 7-0 spurt as the defense began to force turnovers. The offense also found its groove, as 13 of the 14 players scored, with five players chipping in with seven points or more.

"We knew they predicate their offense off their defense," Franceschini said. "We made bad decisions. That's my definition of flatness. The bad decisions caused turnovers, especially offensively."

Senior co-captain Adam Vecchione led Quincy with 13 points. Sophomore J.J. Niamkey scored nine points and junior John David Hyacinthe added eight, all in the second half.

North Wins Fourth Straight

A pitcher's duel in basketball? That's what the scoreboard resembled after the first five minutes of last Friday night's North Quincy-Plymouth South girls' game at Hancock Street.

After 300 seconds of play, the Red Raiders and Panthers were amazingly locked in a 1-1 tie.

"We were not playing well," said head coach Doug MacFarlane. "Fortunately, Plymouth South wasn't either."

North Quincy, though, turned things around in the second half en route to a 56-29 win — its fourth straight win since the Christmas massacre at Foxboro.

North Quincy (6-2, 4-1) played at Silver Lake Tuesday and tomorrow (Friday) night at 6:30 it travels to Marshfield.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

The Red Raiders held a 22-9 at the break, but they shot a paltry 24 percent (6 of 25). Their best player, senior tri-captain Lauren Sleeth, managed just two points as she found herself on the pine for the final eight minutes after picking up her third foul.

"We played really good defensively, but we just couldn't get on track offensively," MacFarlane said. "We had a nice little talk at halftime. And in the second half we put the game away early."

Sleeth stayed clear of the referee's whistle and rebounded with a game-high 15 points. "She bounced back," MacFarlane said.

Junior April Suprey chipped in with a double-double, scoring 14 points and grabbing 10 rebounds. Senior Kahli Dearani scored seven points and pulled down 10 boards.

"We closed the door on them in the second half," MacFarlane said. "We woke up. We grabbed a lot of the rebounds and the offense started to jell."

Last Tuesday, North Quincy defeated Barnstable, 49-45, on the road. It had a 10-point lead with about three minutes remaining in the game, but it missed 10 free throws down the stretch.

"That was not good," MacFarlane said. "But we played pretty well. The score wasn't as close as showed at the end. We maintained a seven- to eight-point lead in the second half."

The Red Raiders were strong defensively, holding the league's leading scorer, Amy Lyon, to five points in the first half. Lyon did finish with 20, hitting 12 of 14 shots from the free-throw line in the second half.

Suprey scored a team-high 16 points and Sleeth turned in another complete game with 15 points, 10 rebounds, five steals and four assists.

GET CRANKING

When choosing a new battery for your vehicle, note the cold-cranking rating. Weather extremes are hard on batteries, so it takes a stronger battery to start a vehicle in cold weather. Under cold conditions, the chemical reaction inside the battery produces voltage slowdowns. This means that more time is required to produce the voltage necessary to activate the starter. Batteries are rated 100% effective at 80 degrees F. When the temperature drops to freezing, battery output drops to about 65%; it falls to approximately 40% at 0 degrees. When comparing brands and sizes of batteries, pay close attention to the cold-cranking ratings. Batteries should have a minimum of 1 amp cold-cranking capacity for every cubic inch of engine displacement.

HINT: A battery's reserve capacity refers to its unassisted ability to power the ignition system, headlights and taillights.

6 Local Youngsters Win Elks Free Throw Contest

Six Quincy boys and girls have been crowned city champions and have taken the first step in the Elks National "Hoop Shoot" Free Throw Contest sponsored by the Quincy Lodge of Elks and supervised by the Quincy Recreation Department.

They are Mikaela Garvin and Edison Cross, 8-9 age group; Marykate Stille and Tim Stille 10-11 age group; and Aileen Croke and Dan Munkley, 12-13 age group.

There are over 5 million boys and girls involved in the first level of the shoot-offs and over 250 Quincy youngsters took part in the contest at local neighborhood gyms.

The Recreation Department has been conducting the event for the Quincy Lodge of Elks for over 20 years.

Recreation Director Barry

Welch said that he "continues to be grateful for the continued support of the Quincy Lodge of Elks. This program is a wonderful experience for the youngsters ages 8-13. The Elks always have the interest of our youth as a primary goal of its organization. I particularly want to thank Exalted Ruler Dan Keating and Hoop Shoot Chairman Ed Miller for their work on the Hoop Shoot."

The Elks presented trophies to Quincy's all center champions and the first three places in each age group. Each gym winner received a trophy and was eligible for the city championship. Keating made the trophy presentation to each youngster at the city championship.

The runners-up in each age group were Julia Nee and Paul Gould (8-9), Catherine O'Connell and Collin McCarthy (10-11), and Lauren Stille and Joe Lousararian (12-13).

The third-place trophies went to Julia White and Donovan Flynn (8-9), Elizabeth Block and Martin Bowes (10-11), and Rebecca Goreham and Glen Misho (12-13).

Other center champions were:

8-9 group: Janelle Leone, Sean Harrington, Brendan Lally, Ryan Christopher, Jonathan Luang and Liam Can.

WRESTLING

The Quincy High School wrestling team, led by an experienced group of senior tri-captains, faces a stiff test tomorrow (Friday) afternoon at 3:45 when it hosts undefeated Duxbury (11-0 overall, 4-0 Pilgrim Conference).

Quincy boasts a 13-5 overall record and also has a 4-0 mark in the conference.

"We set a goal at the start of the season to try to win a league title and we knew going in that Duxbury would be the biggest obstacle," said head coach Lou Venturilli.

In his 14th season at the helm, Venturilli said he is extremely pleased with the work of the senior class and especially the work of assistant coach Mike Gendron, who is in his fourth year at Quincy High.

"Mike has been invaluable, as has the volunteer work of Rory Lydon, last year's state champ, and Ashley Davis, himself a state champ in 1994."

The Presidents are led by senior Joe Hern, a returning sectional champ at 152 pounds, who in the words of Venturilli is "on a mission." Hern has won the prestigious Lowell Holiday Tournament, the Sanford (Maine) Tournament and is undefeated in dual meets (17-0).

Nearly as impressive is senior Mike Murphy (125 pounds), who has collected an amazing 15 pins in his 18-0 dual-meet start.

Rounding out the trio is senior Scott Kelley (160 pounds), who has put up solid numbers (14-4) for a second year in a row.

"The captains have proved to be excellent, but it has been the improvement of the supporting cast that has won us wrestling matches for Quincy High School," Venturilli said.

Sophomore Yen Truong (103) has an impressive 14-4 record, while his brother Bao (112) is 10-7. Junior Dennis Hill (135) is 8-4, junior Jason Chase (130) is 9-6, junior Jason Moore (152) is 9-4 and Andrew Cantelli (189) is 9-5. A huge surprise has been heavyweight Dan Coleman, who has an outstanding 15-2 record.

"This group has made the difference, along with the rest of the starters who may not have impressive records but keep plugging away and win a key match here or there," Venturilli said.

Sophomores Ledion Proto, Steve Hawko, Rob Chase, Chris Reggiannini, Kevin French, Mike Korman and junior Shannon MacIsaac fit that description.

After tomorrow's big match against Duxbury, Quincy wrestles Saturday in the Weymouth Invitational Tournament, where Hern seeks a third consecutive title and Murphy a second title.

Quincy will host North Quincy Monday, Feb. 4, at 7 p.m. at the Center For Technical Education gym before hosting the Division I South Sectionals Feb. 8 and 9.

Quincy JV Basketball Wins 5

After losing its first two games of the season, the Quincy High School boys junior varsity basketball team has won its last five to improve to 5-2.

"I felt with the personnel we have, we could win a majority of our games this year," said head coach Ray Paille. "But with some juggling of players from JV to varsity it took a while for us to adjust to each other."

"Again, I'm blessed with a great group of kids who work hard and want to win."

This year's JV team is made up of six sophomores and seven juniors.

They are Joe Pricella, Mike Lally, Ed DeWitt, J.J. Niamkey, Joe Johnson, Scott Flaherty, Sean Gibbs, Jeff Tam, John David Hyacinthe, Steve Ekuncsitan, Malcolm Lynn, Jim Hutchins and Mike Quilly.

Vincent Buoniconti Receives Trinity College Varsity Football Letter

Vincent Buoniconti of Quincy was awarded a varsity letter as a member of the ing in applied exercise science.

Red Raiders Tie Durfee, 3-3

The North Quincy High School hockey team traveled to Fall River Monday afternoon and skated away with a 3-3 tie against Durfee High School at Driscoll Rink.

North Quincy (4-3-2 overall, 3-2-1) went to Plymouth South yesterday (Wednesday) and Saturday it hosts Silver Lake at 7:50 in the first match of a six-game homestand.

In the final frame, freshman center Chris Tufo could not have picked a better time to score his first varsity goal. After working hard in the corners, Tufo netted the equalizer at 8:14.

Defenseman Steve Kelley, a sophomore, and Tim Duggan, a junior, turned in strong performances at the blue line. Two of Durfee's goals came on the powerplay, as the Red Raiders suffered costly penalties throughout the game.

Last Saturday night, North

Quincy fell, 2-1, in a tough game against Barnstable.

After a scoreless opening period, Barnstable's Marc Mimmo scored on the first shift of the middle frame.

North Quincy tied the game later in the period when junior center Bryan Cooper pocketed his second goal of the season with Sorrento and senior tri-captain Frank Guest picking up assists.

The backbreaker, though, came with only three seconds left in the period when Mimmo notched his second goal of the game, which proved to be the game-winner.

Junior goalie Bruce Maggio shined between the pipes once again for the Red Raiders.

CHRIS PRENDIVILLE, treasurer for the Mass. Junior Volleyball Association, presents a $1,500 check to North Quincy High School Athletic Director Brian Buckley as a donation to help purchase and install new volleyball standards, nets and equipment. The Mass. Junior Volleyball Association uses the North Quincy site when the school teams are not using the gymnasium.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Take Off Those Holiday Pounds For Life

(NU) — Statistics show that more than half of adults in the United States are overweight and obese. If you have resolved to lose weight after the holidays, be prepared to back it up with a lifelong plan that includes healthy eating and regular physical activity.

Remember that dramatically reducing portions or depriving yourself of certain foods does not work in the long term. Instead, aim for a gradual weight loss of no more than one-half to one pound per week. The key to losing weight and keeping it off is to make changes to your eating and physical activity habits that you can follow for life.

Here are some tips for a healthier eating plan from Weight-control Information Network of the National Institutes of Health (NIH):

- Get the daily recommended amounts of vitamins, protein, carbohydrates and fiber. Women 25 and older should get about 50 grams of protein each day; men should get 63 grams. Protein sources included lean meat, poultry, fish, beans, eggs and nuts. To prevent fatigue and fluid imbalances, eat at least 100 grams of carbohydrates per day, found in breads, cereals and grains. For proper bowel function, nutrition experts recommend 20 to 30 grams of fiber, found in vegetables, fruit, beans and whole grains.

- Limit your fat intake. Your body needs fat to survive, so be sure to include some fat in your diet. However, no more than 30 percent of calories should come from fat per day. Fat intake should be a maximum of 60 grams for an 1,800-calorie diet and 67 grams for a 2,000-calorie diet.

- Drink water. Your body needs at least eight to 10 glasses of water a day.

- Keep moving. Research shows that people who exercise are more likely to keep the weight off than people who only change how they eat. Exercise reduces stress and can help control blood pressure and type 2 diabetes. Remember, a little bit of physical activity is better than none, so do what you can at first and work up to the recommended levels.

In general, most people should exercise for 20 to 30 minutes at least three times a week and do muscle strengthening at least twice a week. Consult your health care provider or fitness professional for the best exercise regimen for you.

For more information call 1-877-WIN-4627.

Tips To Help You Feel Good And Live Longer

(NU) — If you want to look good, feel good and live longer, health experts recommend eating a balanced diet and good old-fashioned exercise.

Although it can be tempting to go on the latest fad diet and easy to watch television on the couch instead of working up a sweat, this type of lifestyle can be detrimental to your health. Fad diets are quick fix-it solutions that probably won't keep weight off in the long term.

For healthy eating, choose a diet low in fat and cholesterol and high in vegetables, fruits and grains.

Exercise, besides helping

- Health Experts Recommend Eating A Balanced Diet And Good Exercise
- Fad Diets Quick-Fix Solutions That Won't Keep Weight Off In Long Term

you lose weight, can improve your health, lift your spirits, give you more energy and reduce stress. For overall fitness, experts recommend at least 30 minutes of moderately intense physical activity (such as walking, cycling, swimming or yard work) on all or most days of the week.

So how do you get motivated? Remember that small changes add up, so you don't have to tackle everything at once. Concentrate on one thing at a time and you will gradually develop a new, healthy lifestyle. Here are some tips on how to incorporate healthy nutritional and fitness changes into your daily life:

- Look ahead. Plan your meals ahead of time to avoid eating on the run and making poor food choices.
- Shop wisely. Hit the outside aisles first. That's where the vegetables, fruits and grains are usually found.
- Order carefully. In restaurants, ask for foods that are broiled, grilled, baked or steamed instead of fried.

- Substitute healthy alternatives. For example, use lowfat yogurt instead of mayonnaise and sour cream, flavor vegetables with lemon juice and herbs instead of salt, and use two egg whites instead of one whole egg in your favorite recipes.

- Do chores yourself. Mow your own lawn, rake your own leaves and carry your own groceries.

- Make exercise fun. Choose an activity you enjoy and one that fits your lifestyle. Find an exercise partner for motivation and socialization.

- Set realistic goals. If you miss a day, just get back on track the next day and don't give up if you don't see immediate results. Be sure to work some rest days into your schedule.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

BLEEDING, INFLAMED GUMS

Gingivitis, inflammation of the gums (gingiva), is usually caused by plaque buildup. Dental plaque is a sticky deposit of bacteria, mucus, food particles, and other irritants found around the base of the teeth. The toxic effects of the bacteria cause the gums to become irritated, red, and swollen, and the gums may bleed easily. In fact, red, tender gums, as well as gums that bleed easily when brushing or flossing, are signs of gum disease. Gingivitis can develop into the more serious condition called periodontitis, inflammation of the membranes around the base of the teeth. Periodontitis can lead to erosion of the bone holding teeth in place, resulting in tooth loss. To avert these problems, brush and floss daily.

Regular dental care is one of the best investments you will make. We recommend regular check-ups, periodic cleanings, and x-rays when needed. We stress preventive dentistry for all members of the family. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we strive to teach you good oral hygiene. In the long run you will have better dental health. Good experiences with dentistry are based on making the right choice in a family dentist and in taking steps to keep dental costs at a minimum through self-care at home between visits. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment.

P.S. Brushing and flossing disrupt the formation of plaque, which occurs on a daily basis.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

The Golden Rule is only meaningful if we apply it in all our interactions with other people. In our busy and hectic way of living there are times in everyone's life that we may not understand why people do what they do.

There are times in our lives when we become upset about family, work or health challenges. We become impatient with others at these times. Couldn't it be said that these are times when we should especially try to use the Golden Rule so that we do not take out our frustration on others?...

In applying the Golden Rule as a guide to living and working in harmony with another, we are giving others the understanding and kindness that each of us wish to receive.

"Whatever you wish that men would do to you, do so to them." - Matthew 7:12

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your batteries should be fully recharged by now, making you more than eager to get back into the swing of things full time. Try to stay focused so that you don't dissipate your energies.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You're eager to charge straight ahead into your new responsibilities. But you'll have to paw the ground a little longer, until a surprise complication is worked out.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Rival factions are pressuring you to take a stand favoring one side or the other. But this isn't the time to play judge. Bow out as gracefully as possible, without committing yourself to any position.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Reassure a longtime, trusted confidante that you appreciate his or her words of advice. But at this time, you need to act on what you perceive to be your own sense of self-interest.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You need to let your warm Leonine heart fire up that new relationship if you hope to see it move from the "just friends" level to one that will be as romantic as you could hope for.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) There's still time to repair a misunderstanding with an honest explanation and a heartfelt apology. The sooner you do, the sooner you can get on with other matters.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Expect a temporary setback as you progress toward your goal. Use this time to re-examine your plans and see where you might need to make some significant changes.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Some missteps are revealed as the cause of current problems in a personal or professional partnership. Make the necessary adjustments and then move on.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Jupiter's influence helps you work through a pesky problem, allowing your naturally jovial attitude to re-emerge stronger than ever. Enjoy your success.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Set aside your usual reluctance to change, and consider reassessing your financial situation so that you can build on its strengths and minimize its weaknesses.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Some recently acquired information helps open up a dark part of the past. Resolve to put what you've learned to good use. Travel plans continue to be favored.

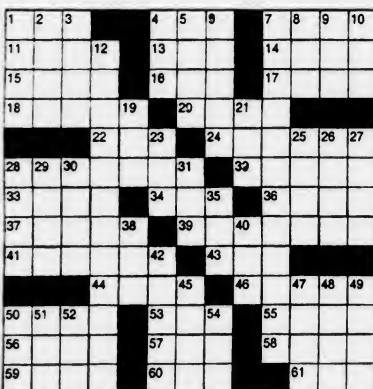

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Act on your own keen instincts. Your strong Piscean backbone will support you as someone attempts to pressure you into a decision you're not ready to make.

BORN THIS WEEK: You embody a love for traditional values combined with an appreciation of what's new and challenging.

A Message From Impact Quincy

Bringing Our Community Together

By VICKY MacCARTHY

Impact Quincy is celebrating its 10th anniversary this year as an active fighter against underage drinking in the city of Quincy. I would like to congratulate Alejandro Rivera, Impact Quincy program manager, and Lilly Michnik, Impact Quincy program director, for the cutting-edge work that they have done, bringing the problem of drinking among youth in our community into the forefront of our consciousness.

The environmental strategies implemented by the mass call initiative and carried out by Impact Quincy during the last three years were accomplished by using a multitude of media values in order to relate positive messages aimed at the reduction of underage drinking to the Quincy community.

These positive messages appear on billboards located in close proximity to middle schools of the city, on overhead bus posters (mounted on 100 Quincy buses) and in TV commercials (played on eight channels of AT&T Cable TV, strategically placed in between favorite youth programs). Local newspapers print bi-monthly Impact Quincy "Tips For Parents," editorials and other articles. "Community Hero Award" an annual celebration by Impact Quincy of activists of the city for their stand on anti-substance abuse issues, among youth and adults alike. These and many other related activities are all an intricate part of Impact Quincy's media campaign.

Impact Quincy involved all segments of the local population into their honorable fight, and brings all segments of the community together (students and teachers, clergy, elected officials, law enforcement officers, service providers, medical establishments and many other grassroots groups). It has been a wonderful, enriching experience for all of us who have been involved in this endeavor.

Look forward to the Impact Quincy "mini-conference" scheduled for April, highlighting the concept of social norms which Impact Quincy has been working on during the last few years. This event is planned for the community at large, and will present the nationally recognized writer, instructor and accomplished researcher Jeff W. Linkenbach, Ed, director of the Montana Social Norms Project, assistant professor in the Department of Health and Human Development at Montana State University in Bozeman, Mt.

This mini-conference will include a presentation by Linkenbach on the concept of social norms, and also a presentation by Impact Quincy on the underage drinking campaign utilizing the concept of social norm marketing examples and approaches. The main goal of this mini-conference will be to educate the members of the community, community leaders, along with the participants in attendance in this exciting new approach.

Vicky MacCarthy is co-president of the Inter-Agency Council of the South Shore, and a resident of the South Shore community as well. She worked with Impact Quincy in many different capacities and in different groups for a number of years. She is a member of the Impact Quincy Advisory Board Committee.

OBITUARIES

John C. Riley, 75

Retired Engineer

A funeral Mass for John C. Riley, 75, of Chelmsford, formerly of Quincy, a retired engineer, was celebrated yesterday (Wednesday) at St. Mary's Church in Chelmsford.

He died Jan. 12 at the Heritage Nursing Care Center in Lowell after a brief illness.

Mr. Riley worked in GTE's Waltham office before his retirement in 1993. He previously worked for GTE International in Burlington, Wang Laboratories in Tewksbury, Synergistics in Sudbury and H.H. Scott Inc. in Maynard.

Born in Milton, he was raised and educated in North Quincy. He attended Quincy Trade School, then left school to apprentice at the Quincy Shipyard.

He enlisted in the Marine Corps in June 1944, served with the 4th Marine Division, and was awarded the Purple Heart for wounds received in the battle of two Jima. He spent more than two years at St. Albans (N.Y.) Naval Hospital recuperating from his injuries.

After his discharge, Mr. Riley returned to North Quincy High School to earn his high school diploma. He graduated from Boston University in 1950.

He was a member of the Elks Club and the 4th Marine Division Association.

He regularly attended his Marine Corps Division reunions, both locally and nationally.

He is survived by his wife, Marcy R. (Mauen) Riley; five sons, Kevin M. Riley of Plymouth, Marc J. Riley of Duxbury, Colin D. Riley of Weymouth, Christopher W. Riley of Quincy and Eric J. Phelan Visits Neighbors Of New QHS Proposed Site

Mayor William Phelan said recent door-to-door visits to residents potentially affected by the proposed construction of a new Quincy High School on Faxon Field was productive and that he would make a similar visit in the near future.

"It went great," said Phelan, who was accompanied on the visits by Ward 1 Councillor Gregory Hanley and Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro. Some of the streets visited included Southern Artery, Edgemere Rd., and Woodward Ave.

"Generally speaking, the residents were not adamantly opposed to a high school being built there," continued Phelan. "They had legitimate concerns primarily regarding flooding and traffic which need to be addressed and which I intend to address."

Phelan said he, Hanley, and Gutro visited most of the residents who are currently being impacted by flooding in the area and by those potentially impacted by the proposed school construction.

Although emphasizing what he called a "People First" policy with regards to negotiations on the specific location, design, and traffic concerns at the site, Phelan has repeatedly stated that Faxon Field is the city's chosen site for the new Quincy High School.

CERT 'Train The Trainer' Class Jan. 26

The Quincy Emergency Management Agency's Community Emergency Response Team (CERT) will hold a "Train the Trainer" training class Saturday, Jan. 26 from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. at the Quincy Emergency Management Agency, 55 Sea St.

After completion of the course, participants will be able to train others to help protect themselves, their families, their neighborhoods, and their communities, said Anthony Siciliano, acting director of the Quincy Emergency Management Agency.

"This training program is a perfect program for people helping people," said Siciliano, adding that the need for prompt emergency response has become more of a focus in the wake of Sept. 11.

All student training manuals, instructor guides, and videos will be provided.

Limited seating is available. To make a reservation, call (617) 376-1205 or (617) 376-1210.

CERT training instructs the community in disaster preparation response and recovery skills.

Children Of Aging Parents Support Group To Meet Feb. 6

The Children of Aging Parents Support Group (CAPS) will meet Wednesday, Feb. 6 from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. at the River Bay Club, 99 Brackett St.

'In The Aftermath Of Sept. 11 We Can't Sit Back'

Raymondi: Fire Dept. Upgrade Needs Urgent

Council President Daniel Raymondi planned to introduce a resolve at Tuesday night's City Council meeting calling for a report by the mayor's office on the capital, personnel, and training needs of the Quincy Fire Department.

The resolve, which Raymondi anticipated would be referred to the Public Safety Committee, also calls for the Public Safety Committee to hold public hearings on the very same issues.

"It's time for the city to take a good, hard look at our fire department in terms of facilities, equipment, personnel, and training," said Raymondi. "We need our firefighters trained with the best training, equipped with the best equipment, and housed in the best facilities."

Specifically, the resolution, which is co-authored by Ward 1 Councillor Gregory Hanley, calls for Mayor Phelan to provide the council with a report no later than the April 1 meeting of the City Council on "the capital needs of the Quincy Fire Department to include building renovations, apparatus, equipment, and uniforms" and the "personnel and training needs of the Quincy Fire Department to include enhanced emergency preparedness for both natural and man-made disasters."

Raymondi said the proposed public hearings could make use of readily available sources of information in the city, including Quincy Fire Chief Thomas Gorman and other department leaders, the firefighters themselves, and the National Fire Protection Association, an internationally known organization which is based in Quincy.

Raymondi voiced skepticism on a long-awaited Fire Needs Study but said such a study, if and when completed, could augment the council's own findings.

"In the aftermath of Sept. 11, we can't sit back," said Raymondi. "The needs of the Quincy Fire Department are just too great."

Particular issues to be addressed, Raymondi said, included the condition of firehouses across the city, the age and condition of equipment and uniforms, and a much discussed additional ladder truck for the city.

Temporary Reprieve On Tax Bills

The due date on estimated third quarter tax bills mailed Dec. 31 by the city is not enforceable because the estimated tax bills were sent prior to approval from the Massachusetts Department of Revenue.

Legal notices to that effect are currently being published by the city, including one which appears on page 26 of this week's Sun.

The temporary reprieve, said Mayor William Phelan, essentially means that the city will not be able to assess penalties or interest if payment is past the stated due date; it does not mean that the estimated tax amounts are incorrect or that people will not have to pay their bills at a later date.

"The bills are the bills," said Phelan. "The real crux of the matter is that the city will not be able to enforce for non-payment until the state gives us a due date."

Phelan said such a date (Cont'd On Page 28)

Seeks Bond Issue

Phelan Asks $5.8M For QSD Sewers

Mayor William Phelan introduced a $5.8 million bond at Tuesday night's meeting of the City Council to appropriate funds for Phase One of the Quincy Shore Drive Sewer Improvement Program.

The money would be used for sewer and drain work along Wollaston Beach.

The mayor's office said the low-interest loan will come from the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection's Clean Water State Revolving Fund.

Wollaston Beach has been a targeted area for cleanup since the early 1990's. Ensuring progress in the cleanup requires the city to conduct a multi-phased program to eliminate pollution sources to Quincy Bay.

The funds sought by Phelan will be used for the replacement of sewer and drain lines from Bayfield Rd. to West Elm Ave. along Quincy Shore Drive.

Several side streets that lead onto Quincy Shore Drive will also be included in the work scope.

Says City Can't Afford Two Chiefs Salaries

McCauley Wants Frane's Duty Status Resolved

Mayor William Phelan is scheduled to meet next week with Quincy Police Chief Thomas Frane, who has been on leave since undergoing triple-bypass surgery in Jan. of 2001, to discuss Frane's health status and future plans.

The meeting comes on the heels of a Jan. 14 letter written to Phelan by Councillor Frank McCauley, who noted the cost to the city of paying salaries for both Frane and an acting police chief and requested a resolution of the matter, be it Frane's return to active duty or possible retirement.

As of press time, The Sun was unable to reach Frane for Police Chief THOMAS FRANE comment.

"I haven't had the opportunity to speak with him (Frane) yet," Phelan told The

Approximately 400 Attend Breakfast Tribute

Make His Dream A Reality Urges MLK Day Speaker

By CRAIG SALTERS

Pastor Spencer Power of the Deliverance Revival Tabernacle of Boston told the roughly 400 guests at the city's annual Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Breakfast Celebration, held Monday morning at the VFW Bryan Post, that Dr. King's dream of equality and justice was very much alive.

The next step, said Power, who served as keynote speaker for the event, which was sponsored by the Quincy Human Rights Commission, was to take action to make sure King's dream became an American reality.

"Dreams remain dreams unless they are pursued," said Power. "We want this dream to come true."

Power urged audience members to first visualize "a society of people working together as brothers and sisters" and then work to make that vision a reality, beginning with their family members, friends, colleagues at work, and so forth.

Power also urged listeners "to realize that we're all just people" with many more similarities than differences.

"If we put our arms around this dream and embrace it, then we will see change," Power promised.

Power's remarks were one highlight of the two-hour breakfast, which also included the presentation of the District Attorney's Award for Distinguished Service to Katherine Quigley, director of the Germantown Neighborhood Center, and Zaida Hassan Shaw from the Islamic Center of New England and the presentation of Quincy Human Rights Commission awards to former Mayor James Sheets and Ann Yeomans, a housing advocate working with the United First Parish Church and the Greater Boston Interfaith Organization (GBIO).

The event, attended by many local officials and even gubernatorial candidate Warren Tolman, also featured an interfaith blessing by the Rev. Esther Bowen, the presentation of the colors by the Quincy High School ROTC Color Guard, the singing of "God Bless America" by Cavanagh DAV Post Commander Gaetano DeGrazia, the singing of "America the Beautiful" by Joan Pimental, a poetry presentation by the Snug Harbor/GNC Homework Club, the singing of "We Shall Overcome" led by Elder Andrew Williams, and a reading by poet Teresa Ware of "The Color of Love," a poem written especially by Ware for the occasion.

"It was fantastic," said Nancy McDonald, chairwoman of the Quincy Human Rights Commission, of the annual interfaith celebration. "It was months of planning and, in the end, it was amazing how all the little problems just melted away."

In his welcoming remarks, Mayor William

Phelan called Dr. King one of his personal heroes and praised King's non-violent approach to problems, citing the slain Civil Rights leader's phrase that non-violence was "the sword that heals."

Norfolk County District Attorney William Keating told listeners of how nervous he was on his first flight after Sept. 11, connecting his own fears to the fears at the root of racism and hatred.

"Dr. King taught me how to fly that day, how not to fear," Keating said.

In presenting the District Attorney's Award to Quigley, Keating praised her efforts at the Germantown Neighborhood Center, adding that Quigley "lives the spirit of Dr. King day in and day out."

In presenting the award to Shaw, Keating made note of the spate of threatening phone calls received post Sept. 11 at the Islamic Center of New England, calls handled by Shaw.

"We all benefited from the person who happened to be there to pick up those phone calls," said Keating, who commended Shaw for her willingness "to take calls of hate and turn them around with actions of love."

Atty. George Clark of the Quincy Human Rights Commission presented the commission's awards to Yeomans, a longtime advocate of affordable housing and diversity, and Sheets, who was recognized for his years of commitment to tolerance and diversity in the city.

Broad Meadows seventh grader Olivia Lynn, who attended the breakfast with family and classmates, called Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Day "a day for freedom, a day to celebrate that people aren't that separated anymore."

Her friend Daniela

Hyacinthe, a seventh grader at the Sacred Heart School in North Quincy, agreed.

"I think that it's really surprising that one man could do so much," Hyacinthe said, "and I think the day means coming together to celebrate that."

Dr. King would have been 73 years old Monday.

To Plan Yard's Future

Raymondi Calls For Shipyard Tri-Town Development Committee

Daniel Raymondi, the new president of the City Council, plans to move aggressively on the redevelopment of the old Fore River Shipyard, which has been in limbo since it was closed by General Dynamics more than a decade ago.

Raymondi was scheduled to introduce into the Council Tuesday night a resolution creating a tri-town development committee to plan the future of the Yard and an ordinance rezoning it from an Industrial B classification to one of Planned Unit Development.

The 12 members of the Fore River Development Committee would include representatives of the towns of Braintree, which owns a small section of the Yard, and Weymouth, which shares a coastline with the shipyard on the Fore River.

"The Yard has been little used for more than a decade," said Raymondi. "It's about time Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth provide the leadership to redevelop it."

Parts of the shipyard property are owned by the town of Braintree, the Mass Water Resources Authority and Mass Heavy Industries, which is now in bankruptcy court seeking to reorganize after defaulting on a loan.

Raymondi proposed that the development committee remain active in the future of the Yard even if Mass Heavy Industries is permitted by the court to reorganize and continue with its plan to build ships at the Yard.

The committee would include State Reps. Joseph Sullivan and Braintree and Ron Mariano of Quincy and Weymouth Planning Directors Richard Meade of Quincy, Peter LaPolla of Braintree and Jim Clark of Weymouth; Selectman Chairman James Casey of Braintree; Quincy Point Business Association President Thomas O'Brien; Ward 2 Civic Association President Zaida Shaw; representatives of the East Braintree Civic Association, the South Shore Chamber of Commerce and the South Shore Building Trades Council; and Raymondi.

"The committee would have the best interests of the region in mind," said Raymondi. "The Shipyard is the historic engine that has driven the economy of the South Shore as well as Quincy. It is a major asset for employment and the tax base."

Raymondi said he has contacted everyone concerned except the East Braintree Civic Association and that "everyone is excited about the idea."

As a resolution, Raymondi's proposal would require only a favorable vote of the City Council to be put into action.

The proposed zoning change from Industrial B, under which heavy industrial use is a matter of right, to Planned Unit Development (PUD), which allows for public input into a wide range of uses, would have to go the Council's Ordinance Committee and the Planning Board for public hearings.

"Planned Unit Development is best for the city," said Raymondi. "It calls for greater public input and gives the city greater leverage in the redevelopment of the land."

DIRK LORENZ (center), an adjunct instructor at Quincy College, and his wife Marian (second from right) recently presented Quincy College with a $5,000 donation to establish an annual award to honor deserving adjunct faculty at the college, recognizing the recipient's dedication and pursuit of academic excellence. Both Mr. and Mrs. Lorenz have been adjunct instructors throughout their careers. Accepting the donation from the couple are, from left, Quincy College Governors Thomas Fabrizio and Daniel Raymondi and Dean of Liberal Arts and Sciences Susan Harris.

McCauley Would Give Traffic Engineer Final Say On New Street, Stop Signs

Councillor Frank McCauley was expected to propose a new city ordinance at Tuesday night's council meeting mandating that no traffic ordinances involving street and stop signs shall be passed without the affirmative recommendation of the city's traffic engineer.

McCauley, who proposed a similar ordinance which was defeated in August of 1999, said the proliferation of signs across the city, some against the recommendation of Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon, made such an ordinance necessary.

Emphasizing traffic decisions were best left to a professional traffic engineer, McCauley said. "When he (Gillon) does say no, we ought to listen."

Raymondi, Cedrone Want Feb. 11 Convention

One question is still hanging from last November's city election.

Who will get to sit in William Phelan's school committee seat now that he is sitting in the mayor's seat?

A joint convention of the city council and the school committee will decide that -- apparently in February.

City Council President Dan Raymondi and School Committee Vice Chairwoman Christine Cedrone are teaming to try to get it set for Monday, Feb. 11 at 7 p.m. in the council chambers.

CEDRONE

A joint resolution by them was to be introduced by Raymondi at Tuesday night's council meeting.

And Cedrone was ready to bring it before the school committee Wednesday night for its approval.

The resolution calls for candidates interested in filling the remaining two years on Phelan's school term to so inform School Supt. Richard DeCristofaro in writing by 4:30 p.m. Friday, Feb. 1.

DeCristofaro would then present the list of names and addresses to City Clerk Joseph Shea by 10 a.m. Monday, Feb. 4 to verify they are registered voters.

Copies of the documentation of the "certified" candidates would then be forwarded to members of the city council and school committee for study.

The candidates would have up to three minutes each to make their presentations at the joint convention. They would also take questions from members of the convention.

A number of candidates -- reportedly between 15 and 20 -- have indicated interest. And some of them have been quietly and actively campaigning among school committee and city council members for their votes.

At this writing no one appears to have it locked up. Phelan, who as mayor is also chairman of the school committee, will have a vote at the convention. Observers are wondering -- if not curious -- who will get that vote.

Although he won the election in November, the seat did not officially become vacant until he was sworn in as mayor Jan. 7.

If all participate, there will be 14 other votes besides Phelan's: nine city councillors and five school committee members. The successful contender would need eight of the 15.

Phelan had completed only two years of his first four-year term when he decided to challenge James Sheets and pulled off one of the biggest upsets with a thin 17-vote margin win in the closest mayoral election in the city's history.

Not the closest election, however.

You couldn't get any closer than the one between Sean Barry and Christine Cedrone for school committee in 1993.

One that was finally settled at a city council-school committee convention.

On election night, the returns showed Cedrone the winner by eight votes -- 5,716 to 5,708 -- for the third seat on the school committee that year.

A recount requested by both candidates and which took four days to complete, resulted in an election dead heat: a 5,734 to 5,734 tie.

The city charter called for the deadlock to be broken by a convention of the city council and school committee.

tee.

Cedrone preferred a special election, arguing that the voters should make the decision. Barry favored a convention, noting that a special election would open the field to other candidates when the matter was between him and Cedrone.

A home rule petition for a special election made it to Beacon Hill but died there.

So, the stage was set for the convention.

Mayor Sheets opted not to participate, noting that he was on leave as a teacher at Quincy College which was then under jurisdiction of the school committee.

Councillor Ted DeCristofaro also abstained because his son, Richard DeCristofaro, was then an assistant superintendent.

At the convention, Barry came out the winner on a 9-4 vote.

Voting for him were: Council President Michael Cheney, Councillors Bruce Ayers, Larry Chretien, Peter Kolson and Charles Phelan; then School Committee Vice Chairman Daniel Raymondi and school committee members Steve Durkin, Ronald Mariano and Linda Stice.

Cedrone's votes were from Councillors Tim Cahill, Thomas Fabrizio, Joseph LaRaia and school committee member Jo-Ann Bragg.

Barry is now president of Quincy College and Cedrone, of course, is vice chairwoman of the school committee and trying to get this year's convention firmed up.

The only school committee candidates in last November's election were the three incumbents: Michael McFarland, Bragg and Mariano.

Had there been a runner-up contender, he or she could have had the edge at this year's convention. But, no guarantee. The seat can go to someone who has never run before -- if the votes are there.

Names being mention as interested -- definitely or maybe -- include:

Stephen Durkin, Ron Iacobucci, Atty. Jay Davis (also speculation he might be appointed to the solicitor's office), John Cain, Rev. John Swanson, Sal Giarratani, Brian McNamee, Mary Collins, Atty. William Keener, Atty. Kathryn Gralton Hobin, David McCarthy, Julie Berberan, Christopher McCarthy, Robert Foley, Susan Milone, Elaine Dwyer and there may be more.

This year's convention won't match the drama of the Barry-Cedrone contest.

But it will probably take a little longer.

The Barry-Cedrone convention was over in just 20 minutes.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1907 postcard view of the old Squantum Inn which opened in 1899 at Squantum Park, just off Shoreham Street in Squantum. Dorchester Street is in the foreground. The inn was built by Nelson V. Titus who owned most of the land in this part of Squantum. It was managed by Joseph Lee who made it famous with his shore and game dinners. In addition to its main dining room and sweeping veranda, it featured private dining rooms overlooking Dorchester Bay. In later years it became known as the Wan-eta Inn. And in 1929 it became the transmitting location for radio station WAAB, one of the first in the Boston area. In 1943 the building was razed and the five-acre site was divided into house lots.

Any Housing Lifelines At City Hall?

As I read Craig Salters' story on Davy Murphy's success on Who Wants to be a Millionaire, I wondered when I might appear on TV answering questions from Regis.

Murphy, who works for Quincy's Park and Recreation Department, tells The Quincy Sun that his $125,000 winnings will help him and his wife get closer to their dream of buying a home in Quincy.

Isn't it sad that homes in Quincy have become so unaffordable for so many hard-working folks like Dave and his wife? With the costs of homeownership soaring to the moon and the prices of rents getting higher and higher, can only contestants on TV game shows afford to live in Quincy?

Dave Murphy didn't know who General George Armstrong Custer was but with the price of buying or renting in Quincy getting harder and harder for working families, we all are starting to feel like it's our last stand.

We can only guess where the housing roller coaster ride is taking us. It just keeps going up and up and up. It may never come down soon enough for most of us. It is time for our elected officials to start looking how to do something about making housing affordable for working folks.

We need more affordable housing for home owners and for renters too.

Are there any lifelines at Quincy City Hall?

Big Bear Hugs To Everyone In Quincy

The Teddy Bear Foundation (TBF) sends big bear hugs to everyone in the Quincy community whose volunteer efforts enabled us to collect and distribute 25,000 new teddy bears to children in need in 2001!

The TBF, an Ipswich-based non-profit organization, provides new, cuddly teddy bears to help comfort children who may be struggling to find peace and happiness in their lives.

The mission of the Teddy Bear Foundation is to unite people within their communities and inspire them to care for others, specifically those who are financially compromised.

For the past five years, the TBF and hundreds of caring individuals, businesses, Brownie Troops, and schools have reached out to show thousands of children that people care about them. In some cases, TBF bears were the only gifts the children received all year.

Once a small charity run by a handful of volunteers, the TBF continues to expand its outreach thanks to the generosity of big-hearted people willing to give.

While the fifth annual

Teddy Bear Drive was our most successful yet, the Teddy Bear Foundation is experiencing financial hardship to keep its programs funded and the organization operating. To learn more about the TBF, please visit www.teddybeardrive.org.

Quincy's Yesterdays

City Manager Harry Tirrell Dies

By PAUL HAROLD

Quincy's first and only city messenger, Harry Tirrell, died this week at age 85. He had served in the post for 62 years, beginning in 1889 the year that Quincy became a city up until his death.

His death was called the "end of an epoch of old Quincy." It was noted that he was the first and probably the last city messenger since it was expected that the position would be eliminated or consolidated. He was honored in 1941 when the council chamber was named in his honor on the motion of Councillor Joseph Kendrick.

He served under every mayor from Charles Porter to Thomas Burgin, and jokingly said he rated mayors by the quality of the cigars they kept in their desk, ranging from 5 to 10 to 25 cents cigars.

Until his wife's death he had been a resident of Houghs Neck.

4,500 TOUR THE 'INDEPENDENCE'

An estimated 4,500 people inspected the recently completed Independence, many of them employees of the Fore River shipyard and their families. The $25 million passenger liner of the American Export line was scheduled to leave Quincy for South Boston's Commonwealth Pier where its crew would be completed. Many of the 176 member crew arrived in Boston from New York by train and bus.

Some 350 travel agents were scheduled to sail on the trip from Boston to New York with the ship's European maiden voyage set for Feb. 10.

PETITIONS OPPOSE BELLEVUE PROPERTY FOR NICKERSON POST

Petitions signed by 194 Squantum residents were presented to City Manager William Deegan opposing the Nickerson American Legion Post's use of a home on Bellevue Road for their meetings.

Signers said they supported a proper location for a post in Squantum, but argued the use of a home on Bellevue Road violated city zoning, health and safety codes. The controversy arose recently when the post took over a summer residence on Bellevue Road.

QUINCY-ISMS

Judge Kenneth Nash was elected vice president of the Shipbuilders Co-operative Bank. . . Horace Crocker died this week at age 84. He was DPW commissioner under Mayor Gustave Bates and was a world champion high-wheeler bicycle racer. He was a friend and associate of Dr. Walter Kendall, the famed Quincy sportsman. . . Louis Werner, president of the Quincy Master Barbers, said Quincy barbers would not follow Boston in raising prices. In Quincy, the price of a haircut would remain at $1 with a shave costing 75 cents. . . Peter Ramponi was QHS basketball's top scorer. He tallied 75 points in the first five games of the season. . . Russell Albrow was chairman for the 75th anniversary celebrations at Wollaston Congregational Church. . . Red Sox traveling secretary Tom Dowd and Braves' scout Harold Greenough spoke at the sports nights of the Holy Name Society at Our Lady of Good Counsel. . . Councillor Frank Orcutt asked for estimates on the cost of draining Tel Pond where conditions were getting worse. . . Police safety officer William Spencer was the guest speaker at the Hunting School PTA where Theodore Fleming was president. . . Twenty-four men were installed into the B'Nai B'rith Lodge at the Jewish Community Center. The installing team included Bentley Kurtis, Dr. Charles Thorne, Maurice Rifkind and Lester Glasser. . . Central Baptist sponsored a week of prayer in conjunction with the Houghs Neck Gospel Chapel. . . The March of Dimes kicked off its $40,000 fund-raising campaign at a luncheon at the Fox and Hounds restaurant. Those attending included Merle Sawyer, principal of the Merrymount and Coddington Schools, Dr. Charles Djerf, Dr. Walter Ciani, and William Curtin of the fire department. . . Frederick Cutler of Wollaston, executive auditor for the Howard Johnson Company, was named chairman for the Red Cross fund-raising campaign. . . The new Memorial Cemetery was dedicated this week. Formerly it was the Sailors' Home Cemetery. The new owners, the Congregation of Brotherly Love of Quincy, said it would remain non-sectarian. Landscaping was scheduled for the spring. . . Robert Faxon and Atty. Robert Zottoli were named to the reorganizing planning board. Re-appointed were Walter Schmitz, Ernest Gillette and Fred Berghors.

Harpist Aine Minogue At Crane Library Feb. 3

Harpist Aine Minogue will perform at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Square, Sunday, Feb. 3, at 2 p.m.

She has participated in the library's summer concert series, at Quincy's First Night, and in many other venues in the United States and Ireland.

Minogue was born in Borrisokane, County Tipperary to a large, musical family. While attending boarding school at age 12 she was introduced to the harp, the official national symbol of Ireland, and decided to master this instrument.

Since coming to the United States she has concentrated on the traditional music of her homeland not only in concert appearances but also on recordings, music videos, and soundtracks. In addition to playing the harp, Minogue sings with great delicacy and clarity. She is, also, an arranger and songwriter.

Minogue has several albums including To Warm the Winter Night, a Celtic holiday celebration; The

AINE MINOGUE

Mysts of Time, which deals with Irish mysticism through the ages; Between the Worlds, about living between two worlds; and Circle of the Sun, the Celtic round of the year. One reviewer described Circle of the Sun as "exquisite Celtic music that encompasses the old and the new in a jaunt through the seasons."

The Quincy Symphony Orchestra, under the director of conductor Yoichi Udagawa, will present the third concert of its 48th season Sunday, Feb. 3, at 2:30 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center at North Quincy High School, 316 Hancock St.

The program will feature Elizabeth Morse, harpist, performing Debussy's "Danses Sacré et Profane" written for Harp and Orchestra.

The orchestra will also perform the Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro" by W.A. Mozart, and Symphony No. 2 in D Major by Ludwig van Beethoven.

Tickets, available at the door, are $12 for adults and $8 for students and seniors. Admission for a child, 12 and under, accompanied by an adult, is $5.

North Quincy High School is located across the street from the North Quincy "T" Station. The school is handicapped accessible. Parking is free. For more information call 781-961-3790.

'Discover Art In Nature' At Merrymount Park

The Environmental Treasures Program of the Quincy Park Department will sponsor "Discover Art in Nature" Saturday from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. starting at the Richard J. Koch Family Park and Recreation Center, One Merrymount Park.

Quincy Art Association Instructor Michael Domina will begin the event by leading a one-hour walk through Merrymount Park, describing nature through the eyes of an artist and highlighting those natural areas that artists are "drawn" to.

The second hour of the program will be spent inside, drawing the natural scenes that have been visited and photographed by Domina.

Paper and pencils will be provided.

No artistic skills are necessary. The walk welcomes people of all ages and abilities. The Park and Recreation Complex is handicapped accessible.

Organizers urge participants to dress warmly and bring a favorite leaf, pine cone, or other natural object to draw.

For more information, contact Dave Murphy at the Quincy Park Department at (617) 376-1254.

Lions Breakfast Raises $6,200 For Eye Research

The Quincy Lions Club raised nearly $6,200 for eye research and health services for local residents at its annual Pancake Breakfast.

"This was one of our most successful breakfasts yet," said Club President John Pickering, noting that dozens of Lions Club members donated their time to make and serve breakfast, wait on tables and assist at the event.

Highlight of this year's breakfast was the presence of the Lions Club Eyemobile, which provide free vision, blood pressure and general health screenings to 55 attendees.

Funds raised at the annual breakfast are used to provide free eye exams, eyeglasses and other vision services to local residents in need.

The club also provides four annual $1,000 scholarships to graduating seniors from Quincy and North Quincy High Schools. Quincy Lions over the years also have donated more than $100,000 to eye research.

"The Quincy Lions Club is just one of thousands of Lions Clubs around the world, but by working together we have made a tremendous difference in the lives of millions of blind and visually impaired persons," said Pickering.

"By supporting the Lions Club pancake breakfast, our annual spring Run/Walk and other fundraisers, Quincy residents are helping to support these worthy causes, too."

Jewish War Veterans To Honor Six High School Students

The Quincy Jewish War Veterans Post will honor six area high school students at its 48th annual "Classmates Today-Neighbors Tomorrow" breakfast.

The breakfast will be held Sunday, March 3 at 9:30 a.m. at Beth Israel Synagogue, Grafton St., Quincy Point.

The six students, selected by their classmates as exemplifying brotherhood in their daily activities are:

Thomas W. Shruhan, Quincy High School; Jillian Mullen, North Quincy High School; Erin Ryan, Weymouth High School; Julie Ann White, Hull High School and Lauryn McCarthy, Hingham High School.

Citations will be presented to the six by local officials, leaders of local veterans organizations and officers of the Jewish War Veterans post.

Harvey Solomon, past commander, is chairman of the Brotherhood Program. Serving with him on the committee are Commander Bertrand Shaffer, Past Commanders Irving Isaacson and Dave Minkofsky and members Sidney Shapiro, Bernie Schaper and Herb Fontaine.

Roche Bros. Fundraiser Jan. 31 To Benefit NQHS Senior Stay-Out

Volunteers from the North Quincy High School Senior Stay-Out 2002 will be collecting cash register receipts Thursday, Jan. 31 from 5 p.m. until 8 p.m. at the Roche Brothers Supermarket, Falls Blvd.

In turn, the supermarket chain will donate five percent of the total cash register receipts collected during that period to NQHS Senior Stay-Out, organizer of a substance-free, post-prom party for NQHS seniors.

NQHS Senior Stay-Out encourages residents to shop at the Quincy store during that time period, including those wishing to stock up for upcoming Super Bowl parties.

Gift certificates purchased during the Jan. 31 fundraiser will also be credited to the NQHS Senior Stay-Out.

Tours Firm Recipient Quincy 2000 Secures First Sept. 11 Disaster Logan Program Commitment

The Quincy 2000 business technical assistance program has secured Quincy's first commitment of low interest loan funds from the SBA under the September 11 Economic Injury Disaster Loan Program.

Joseph Mannarino, executive director of the Quincy public-private development partnership, said the recipient is Don Quijote Tours, 445 Willard St.

The 10-year-old tour operator organizes vacations in New England for tourists from Latin American, Portugal, Spain and Italy.

"On Sept. 12, the cancellations started to roll in and it may be some time before our business returns to normal," said Rafael Torres, owner of Don Quijote. "Quincy 2000 has been extremely supportive offering both a loan from its own loan fund as well as assistance with the SBA loan program."

The final amount and terms of the combined SBA and Quincy 2000 loans are presently being negotiated and Quincy 2000 will continue to work with Don Quijote through the closing and with subsequent technical assistance with the responsibility of the company, Mannarino said.

The SBA program offers direct working capital loans as low as 4 percent for up to 30 years to small businesses directly affected by the terrorist attacks. The entire travel industry has been devastated by the attacks with direct federal subsidies now being made to the airlines.

"We still have until April 22 (the SBA deadline) to present applications to the SBA on behalf of Quincy businesses," said Mannarino, "and nothing in the SBA program precludes our augmenting the SBA loan with our own Loan Pool funds."

"Quincy 2000's loans are typically used to provide funding to small and mid-sized business which are not eligible for sufficient commercial bank financing."

Serving as liaison with the SBA for the Economic Injury Disaster Loan Program is Richard Sweeney, regional director of the Massachusetts Office of Business Development.

Quincy 2000 is an economic development non-profit organization which partners Quincy business organizations with municipal leadership to create a business-friendly environment. In addition to attracting new employers to the city and planning its business districts, Quincy 2000 provides business loans and free management training and consulting services to large and small businesses located in Quincy.

Its loan funds come from the city's federally-funded Community Development Block Grant program and the 11 area banks which comprise its Loan Pool, including Century Bank and Trust Company, Citizens Bank, Colonial Federal Savings Bank, Eastern Bank, FleetBoston Financial, Massachusetts Co-operative Bank, Rockland Trust Company, South Shore Co-operative Bank, South Shore Savings Bank, Sovereign Bank of New England, and The Bank of Canton.

THE HOLIDAY SPIRIT was evident recently when students and parents of the Pre-School Program at the Quincy Temple Corps of the Salvation Army made a surprise donation of $400 to offset the loss of kettle funds stolen from a safe inside the organization's Baxter St. headquarters. Accepting the $400 donation during a holiday party at the school was Major Doug Jones (center), commander of the Quincy Temple Corps, flanked by, from left, Program Assistant Rose Dicesare and Pre-School Program Director Cathy Warren. Will Meet With President Bush Phelan To Attend Mayors' Conference In Washington DC, New York City Mayor William Phelan was scheduled to leave Wednesday to join mayors from around the nation at the 70th Winter Meeting of the United States Conference of Mayors in Washington D.C. and New York City.

The focus of this year's annual Winter Meeting, entitled "Cities Unite America," is to provide the tools that the nation's mayors must have to fight the war against terrorism and to implement the National Action Plan adopted by the US Conference of Mayors in October of 2001.

The safety and security of citizens and the economic safety of cities will be the focus throughout the conference, which runs Wednesday through Friday.

Phelan will be welcomed in Washington by Senator John Kerry and his wife Teresa with dinner at their Georgetown home.

Phelan plans to attend the opening plenary session presided over by Marc H. Morial, mayor of New Orleans and president of the US Conference of Mayors. Other events of the Washington session include a number of roundtable discussions focusing on safety and security issues and the introduction of a new housing agenda advocated by Boston's Mayor Thomas Menino.

Phelan and his peers are scheduled to meet President George W. Bush at the White House today (Thursday).

The second half of the conference will be held in New York in order to give the mayors the opportunity, on behalf of their cities, to honor those who died on Sept. 11.

The New York City session will begin with a day-long meeting tomorrow (Friday) regarding economic security issues of cities and the nation as a whole.

In addition, Phelan and his colleagues will attend a reception at Gracie Mansion hosted by New York Mayor Michael Bloomberg.

A breakfast honoring the victims of Sept. 11 is planned for Saturday morning followed by a visit to the World Trade Center area.

McCauley Resolve Seeks QMC Fiscal Year 2001 Report

Councillor Frank McCauley was scheduled to introduce a resolve at Tuesday night's meeting of the City Council requesting that Quincy Medical Center furnish copies of its Fiscal Year 2001 annual report to councillors when it became available.

The medical center, McCauley said, is required to submit its annual report to the Office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Office of Administration and Finance.

Councillors received copies of the hospital's Fiscal Year 2000 annual report in March of 2001, McCauley said.

Formerly Quincy Hospital, Quincy Medical Center is now a private hospital affiliated with Boston Medical Center.

Quincy's Braintree Dam Project Near Completion

The U. S. Army Corps of Engineers has begun a carefully controlled refilling of a reconstructed Braintree Dam, also known as the Quincy Reservoir, a man-made lake in Braintree that once supplied a good deal of Quincy's drinking water.

Reconstruction of a 2,100-foot-long, 42-foot-high earthen dam and dike, part of a project that includes a 4,100-foot tunnel under Quincy Square, was begun in September, 1998, and substantially completed in January, some 40 months later.

The completed structure will be refilled to its normal pool level at elevation 73.4 feet above mean sea level to provide storage for a 100-year flood event with the capability to provide some 250 acre-feet of storage between normal pool level and spillway crest.

The original dam, 600 feet long, was built by a private firm, the Quincy Water Company, in 1886-87 on Town Brook in the Five Corners area of Braintree to supplement two wells that had proven to be inadequate as a water supply for the growing community.

The city of Quincy took over the Quincy Water Company in 1892 and seven years later began purchasing its water from the Metropolitan Water District, now the MWRA, whose source of drinking water is the Quabbin Reservoir in central Massachusetts.

Quincy retained ownership of the Braintree Dam as a supply of industrial water for the Fore River Shipyard and the now-defunct Old Colony Laundry. Over the years, the structural condition of the dam deteriorated and encroaching development made it inadequate.

The reconstruction of the dam is the last phase in the federally authorized Town Brook Local Protection project.

The first phase involved channel work and construction of new culverts under Route 3A; the second phase a 4,100-foot-long tunnel under Quincy Square. These phases were substantially completed in 1994 and 1997 respectively.

D & C Construction of Rockland performed the reconstruction work on the dam under contract to the Army Corps of Engineers. The Metropolitan District Commission provided most of the funding for this phase of the Town Brook Local Protection project.

Final work on the project will include plantings, fencing and reconstruction of Howie Road in Braintree, all of which is planned for completion in the spring or early summer of 2002.

Refilling of the reservoir has started but if lack of runoff from rainfall and snow melt prevents it from reaching normal pool levels during February, refilling will cease until late May so as not to interfere with smelt spawning in the lower reaches of Town Brook.

Cadets Earn Gold Medals At Northeast Drill Meet

The Quincy High School Air Force Junior ROTC won several gold medals at the Northeast Drill Meet held recently in Peabody.

Cadets Kyle Daniels and

Dan Hays received gold medals for "Individual Drill with Rifles."

Daniels was also awarded a gold medal for "Individual Drill without Rifles" as were Cadets Thomas Fox and Amanda Willard.

BEECHWOOD PRE-SCHOOLERS took part recently in an intergenerational celebration of Human Rights Day held at the Beechwood Community Life Center. The worldwide event, organized locally by Beechwood Center parent Stacey Kabat, celebrated the rights of children, adults, and families and featured folk guitarist the Rev. Laura Biddle, a former Beechwood Center parent herself. Co-sponsoring the celebration with Beechwood Community Life Center and providing the special Human Rights coloring books seen in foreground was Peace At Home, Inc., a not-for profit organization dedicated to human rights.

AUTHOR AND ILLUSTRATOR Jan Brett autographs copies of her books for Bernazzani second graders Michael Casinelli and Victoria Mayo, both age 7. Brett's recent visit was made possible by Bernazzani Grade 1 Teacher Kathleen Creedon, who convinced her sister, Jean Barnes, to donate a "A Day With Jan Brett" event, which she had won, to the school.

Award-Winning Illustrator Jan Brett Visits Bernazzani School

'Hold On To Your Dreams', Author Tells Students

By CRAIG SALTERS

Award-winning author and illustrator of children's books Jan Brett repeatedly urged young audience members to hold on to their dreams during last Thursday's day-long visit to the Bernazzani Elementary School.

Good advice, no doubt, but made more compelling by Brett's declaration that she had started working to make her own dreams come true before she had reached the first grade.

"I was in kindergarten when I decided to become an illustrator," Brett told the Bernazzani students, thanking her parents for their encouragement when others said her dream was too difficult.

"If you want to be something, you just remember that and keep that hope alive, because that's probably what you'll become when you grow up," said Brett, whose dreams and hard work have brought her international recognition as an author and illustrator, including more than 60 awards for such classics as The Mitten and over 21 million books in print worldwide.

Brett, accompanied by her husband Joseph Hearne, himself a bassist for the Boston Symphony Orchestra, spent the day at Bernazzani talking to students in their own language about the processes of writing and illustrating, emphasizing the use of elements from real life, the importance of research, and the need, especially when drawing, to constantly practice.

"It took me a year to do this book," Brett told students while drawing "Hedge-gie the Hedgehog," the main character from her book The Hat, the story for which, she said, came from experiences with her own pet hedgehog, "Butty."

As a rule of thumb, Brett told the students, it takes one hour of work for every one inch of illustration.

"Drawing takes practice," said Brett, a Hingham native now living in Norwell. "The more you practice, the better you'll be."

Bernazzani Principal Richard Hutchison, who presented Brett with a Bernazzani Medallion to commemorate her visit, thanked the Bretts for visiting the school.

"We have an ongoing 'Meet the Author' series, but this is truly a bonus," he said.

Hutchison's reference to "bonus" is accurate: Brett's visit was not part of Bernazzani's regular "Meet the Author" series — funded by the PTO as part of a literacy program promoted by the School Council — but came about after Bernazzani Grade 1 Teacher Kathleen Creedon convinced her sister, Jean Barnes, to part with her "Day with Jan Brett," which the latter had won last year during a fair at Thayer Academy in Braintree.

"The kids are excited, but not as much as the teachers," joked Creedon, noting the staff room buzz surrounding Brett's visit.

In addition to speaking before two sessions of Bernazzani students, Brett autographed books for the students and later workshoped specifically with students from the Grade 1 classes.

"She's wonderful with the students," said Helen Lousarian, a school volunteer who serves as coordinator of the "Meet the Author" program. "It makes it special for the students to see a real, live author."

Brett took time both before and after her reading to greet the lines of Bernazzani students, each of whom received commemorative bookmarks courtesy of the Bonanni family.

"I tell students that they should be reading omnivores," said Brett, likening the reading process to a bear devouring berries, roots, fish, and anything else it can lay its hands on.

Offering suggestions which had instilled a love of reading in her own daughter Lia, now fully grown, Brett advised a consistent reading of time with children even after they become self-sufficient readers: an unlimited budget for paperback books of interest; and no television.

"We don't watch television; we read," Brett said.

Brett, whose personal favorite books as a child included Tom Kitten from the Beatrix Potter series and Millions of Cats by Wanda Gag, was constant in her encouragement of the Bernazzani youngsters, peppering her remarks with phrases like "that's a great idea," "what a good question," and "what a good idea for a story."

"How many of you want to be illustrators or authors when you grow up?" Brett asked the students at the end of her remarks, eliciting a gymnasium full of raised hands from her audience.

Hutchison's follow-up question of "How many of you want to grow up to be principals?" drew a mixed response.

'HEDGIE THE HEDGEHOG,' the main character of Jan Brett's children's book The Hat, begins to emerge from the paper during Brett's recent visit to the Bernazzani Elementary School. "Drawing takes practice," Brett told the students. (Quincy Sun photos/Trish Bossart)

JAN BRETT, award-winning children's author and illustrator, paid a visit last Thursday to the students of the Bernazzani Elementary School, reading and showing a slide presentation of her book The Hat to the children and answering questions about her unique occupation. Brett, whose day-long visit included remarks to the students and the autographing of books, urged students to let nothing get in the way of their dreams.

JOB WELL DONE: Daniel Giraldo, a fifth grader at the Bernazzani Elementary School, shows his artwork to visiting author and illustrator Jan Brett, who praised Giraldo's talent and encouraged him to keep working on his natural gifts.

REAL ESTATE

Sean Rizzo VP At Tiger Home Inspection

Sean Rizzo of Quincy has been named vice president of business development at Tiger Home Inspection, the region's largest, independently owned home and commercial inspection firm.

In his new role, he will assist the growing company with marketing and sales, and will guide the marketing and development of the company's new commercial division as it expands.

Rizzo is the second gen-

SEAN RIZZO

eration in his family to play a leadership role in the company. His father, Joseph, is the CEO of the firm which he and partner Carl Pucci founded in 1987.

Rizzo, a Braintree native, has worked in the home inspection industry for more than 15 years. In addition to serving as a home inspector, he has worked extensively in the field of lead inspectors.

His work experience also includes two years with EMC in Dallas, Texas, where he worked with re-sellers. He graduated from the University of Connecticut with a degree in economics.

Rizzo is a member of the National Association of Home Inspectors, the Massachusetts Council of Independent Home Inspectors and the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

Top Quality Paint Is A Smart Investment

(HIT) — Does quality really matter when selecting interior latex paint? You bet it does, say experts at the Paint Quality Institute. And the benefits are apparent from the time you pick up your brush or roller.

One of the first things you'll notice is that high quality interior latex paint goes on smoothly and evenly, so that brush and roller marks "flow out" and virtually disappear. You will also notice this type of paint will have little or no spatter as you apply it with a roller, avoiding those droplets that could splash on your face, clothes or other nearby surfaces, and also saving time on cleanup.

Something else is apparent as you apply a quality latex paint — what the experts call "sag resistance." Sagging occurs when paint droops between the time it is applied and the time it dries, leaving an uneven coating with a thick lower edge that can make the paint job look sloppy. Quality paints contain special ingredients that minimize this sagging tendency.

High quality interior latex paints also tend to hide well, so you frequently can get good coverage with just one coat, compared with two or more coats that may be needed when using ordinary interior paint, particularly satin and semigloss types. As a result, even though better quality latex paints cost more per gallon, you might actually spend less on the job — and save time and labor — by applying a somewhat costlier, but higher quality coating.

As time passes, you'll appreciate the fact that quality latex paints — especially those with higher sheen or gloss — are exceptional at resisting dirt and stains. And they stand up, even after repeated washing and scrubbing. So, an interior painting project done with high quality paint will continue to look great, year after year.

To determine which interior latex paints are top quality products, just ask the salesperson for the best grade of paint in your favorite manufacturer's product line. This will normally be the most expensive paint in the line, but it will also provide the best long-term value.

WINTER! CAR CARE

Tips On Safe Winter Driving From AAA

Winter driving is tough on motorists and vehicles.

To help drivers make it through the toughest winter conditions, AAA Southern New England offers the following tips:

Charge: Cold weather is tough on batteries. At zero degrees, a car's battery loses about 60 percent of its strength. At a comparatively mild 32 degrees, a battery is 35 percent weaker. Keeping battery terminals clean helps, but a load test performed by a qualified technician will help determine whether a car's battery is strong enough for winter starts.

Get A grip: Make sure your car is equipped with tires that are able to handle New England's winter weather. For most motorists, all-season tires are adequate. In more northern or mountainous regions, switching to snow tires may be needed.

See And Be Seen: Danger must be seen to be avoided. Driving with a snow-covered windshield, windows, side-view mirrors or lights invites a crash. Clear windows, mirrors and lights with an ice scraper, brush or spray de-icer. Make certain windshield wipers and defrosters are in good working order and that washer reservoirs are filled with no-freeze windshield washer fluid.

Slippery When Wet: In temperatures at or just above 32 degrees, a thin layer of water can cover the ice, causing extremely slippery conditions. The distance needed to stop on ice at 32 degrees is twice as long as at zero degrees.

Keep Your Engine Cool: Make certain cooling system antifreeze is mixed with an equal portion of water for maximum protection.

Fast Solution: A squirt of de-icer spray is a quick method to overcome frozen door locks.

Air It Out: Don't let frigid temperatures tempt you into starting your car in a closed garage or idling your engine for long periods with the windows closed. Carbon monoxide, present in exhaust fumes, is almost impossible to detect and can be fatal when breathed in a confined area.

Finish Up: Road salt, slush and grime are especially hard on a car's finish. To help prevent rust and paint damage, keep cars washed and waxed. A full- or self-service car wash makes the job easier when temperatures are low.

Slick Facts About Oil

It's time to change the oil on your trusty car and you decide to do it yourself.

You find yourself at the auto parts store staring at the assortment of oil on the shelves, trying to decide which one to buy and trying to decipher all the numbers and letters on the containers.

Cracking the oil code requires some basic understanding of what your vehicle requires. In every owner's manual there is a chart with a recommendation of oil type for that car.

The right engine oil is important to cold weather starts, says AAA. Oil can become thick and gluey when cold and can make it difficult for engine parts to move. Some oil grades are thinner than others, and thinner is better for winter weather.

The Society of Automotive Engineers (SAE) rates oil for its viscosity in both cold and hot conditions. The first number, usually a 5W or 10W, is an indication of how thin the oil stays when cold. The second number is an indication of how thick it stays when hot and usually ranges from 30 to 40. This means that 5W-30 oil is thinner than 10W-30 when cold.

AAA advises motorists to refer to the SAE oil rating to decide which oil grade is best, and to look in the owner's manual for the viscosity recommended for the vehicle.

Driving Tip

(NU) — Always check the air pressure in your tires before you travel.

Improper inflation can damage your tires. Tire pressure changes as outdoor temperatures change. Use a good quality air pressure gauge and refer to the proper tire inflation information from your automobile's manufacturer, commonly listed on the door jamb or in the owner's manual.

Properly inflated tires also can save you several hundred dollars annually at the gas pumps.

Winning Streak Reaches 6 For North Quincy

By CHRIS POISSON

Another week, another pair of wins for the North Quincy High School girls' basketball team.

Although they weren't pretty, North Quincy hung on for a 48-39 win at Marshfield last Friday night and rallied for a 43-29 victory at Silver Lake last Tuesday, extending its winning streak to six games.

The Red Raiders (8-2 overall) have a 6-1 mark in the Old Colony League, which places them in a first-place tie with Bridgewater-Raynham. But they hold the tie-breaker, having defeated the Trojans, 53-37, at home on Jan. 4. The two teams will meet next Tuesday, Jan. 29.

North Quincy hosted Taunton Tuesday and tomorrow (Friday) night at 6:30 it travels to Falmouth, which beat them, 53-49, earlier in the season. If it can win both games, it will clinch a spot in the state tournament.

"We have two big games this week," said head coach Doug MacFarlane on Tuesday. "We can qualify for the tournament, which was our first goal at the start of the season."

The Red Raiders' recent run is eerily similar to last year's squad, which reeled off eight straight wins from Jan. 12 to Feb. 2 as it captured its first-ever OCL championship.

"Yeah, it's really weird," MacFarlane said. "We're doing everything the same as last year's team. Our last four wins haven't been pretty, but they're wins. I guess that's a good sign: when you're winning when you're not playing well. Hey, if we keep winning, I can't complain."

True, but North Quincy will need to play better basketball when it faces stronger team, or else it will find itself eliminated in the first round of the tourney like the past two seasons.

"That's my only fear," MacFarlane said.

Against Marshfield, North Quincy jumped out to a 29-15 lead at halftime and appeared to be cruising toward an easy victory.

"In the first half we played a decent half," MacFarlane said. "We pretty much controlled the game."

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

But as it has done recently, it couldn't put together a complete game.

"That concerns me a little bit," MacFarlane said. "I don't want to continue that trend."

North Quincy went cold in the second half, hitting just 5 of 24 shots. It held a 4-point lead with about six minutes left before it was able to net a couple of big hoops, including a huge 3-pointer from junior forward Kristen DiMattio (nine points).

"We couldn't put the ball in the ocean and all of a sudden they're back in the game," MacFarlane said. "We were getting the shots but the ball just wasn't dropping. Those games happen."

Junior forward April Suprey scored a team-high 13 points and grabbed six rebounds. Senior co-captain Lauren Sleeth finished with nine points, 11 rebounds, four assists and three steals.

Against Silver Lake, North Quincy struggled in the first half this time. It shot a paltry 24 percent (6 of 25) as it trailed, 15-14, at the break.

In the second half, the Red Raiders picked up the pace as they shot 55 percent to run away with the win. Sophomore guard Ashley Ridge scored all nine of her points in the final 16 minutes, while senior center Kahli Dearani tallied eight of her 10 points after the break.

"The ball just started going in," MacFarlane said. "Ashley had a nice second half. Not only did she have nine points, but she also had a couple of big assists and three steals."

Although Sleeth has had a tough time shooting recently, she showed why she's considered the most complete basketball player in the league. She totaled eight points, eight assists, six rebounds and four steals.

"She's my all-around player," MacFarlane said.

basketball and softball programs. Each coach and member received a proclamation signed by Ayers and House Speaker Thomas Finneran for their accomplishments during the season.

Red Raiders Rally Past Marshfield

BOYS' BASKETBALL

If the North Quincy High School boys' basketball team watched the Patriots last Saturday night, it probably appreciated New England's thrilling comeback.

That's because the Red Raiders orchestrated a similar second-half rally of their own the night before.

After a sluggish, uninspiring first half in which they trailed, 20-16, head coach Ted Stevenson called for a full-court press in the second half — a defensive scheme the Red Raiders have rarely used this year.

Stevenson's switch had similar effects to a P.J. Stock fight, as North Quincy came out with more explosiveness than a shaken soda can en route to a 51-43 home triumph over Marshfield.

"We didn't play well in the first half," Stevenson said. "That's two games in a row that we've come out flat. I thought we played much better in the second half. We picked our intensity level up a 100 percent."

North Quincy (7-4, 4-3) traveled to Taunton Tuesday and tomorrow (Friday) night it returns home to battle Falmouth at 6:30. Barring an incredible game against Taunton, Friday should be a memorable night for senior Phil McGillicuddy, who is expected to reach the 1,000-point plateau.

"We have Falmouth at home Friday, hopefully that's when Phil will get 1,000," Stevenson said. "After tonight, he's about 40 points away."

The tri-captain paced the Red Raiders with a game-high 21 points to go along with nine rebounds. Senior guard Dan Duggan added 13 points and handed out nine assists, while senior forward Jack Liuzzo chipped in eight points despite playing sick.

In the second half, you could see the Red Raiders were re-energized on the opening trip down the court when they grabbed two offensive rebounds that eventually led to a pair of Duggan free throws.

Utilizing the press, Duggan followed with a steal and fed Liuzzo underneath for a layup, forcing the Rams to call a timeout. On Marshfield's subsequent possession, Liuzzo stole the ball and scored a layup. And McGillicuddy then buried a 3-pointer.

Marshfield scored the next five points before Duggan answered with a long ball and senior tri-captain and defensive wizard Pat Bregoli scored another layup off a steal, forcing the Rams to call their second timeout.

So after just 3:34 seconds, North Quincy forced two timeouts and three turnovers that led to six points, and outscored Marshfield, 14-5, for a 30-25 lead.

"They kind of got read the riot act at halftime, and they responded to it," Stevenson said. "We changed it up a little. We haven't pressed much all year. We felt this was a team that we could press. And it worked. We had to do something to get our intensity level up. I think that's what did it."

The defense created seven more turnovers and finished with 16 for the game. North Quincy held a 47-36 lead with about a minute left, but Marshfield was able to score seven late points as it sent North Quincy to the free-throw line.

In the first half, the Red Raiders shot about 35 percent. They led, 10-9, on a Duggan jumper, but they managed just six points over the final nine minutes.

"Our kids responded in the second half. That's what counts," Stevenson said. "It's a win. That's all we care about. It's our first home win. We have seven wins toward the tournament and we only need three more. Things are going good. We have no complaints."

BY THE NUMBERS

With today's ever-fluctuating gasoline prices, car buyers are focusing on fuel economy numbers on the sticker. To arrive at these numbers, auto manufacturers put a vehicle on a dynamometer, which simulates driving conditions while the car remains stationary. The vehicle runs an average of 48 miles per hour to represent highway performance and 20 mph for city driving. The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) then takes these company tests and verifies them against their own. Mindful of the fact that the dynamometer tests assume optimum driving conditions, the EPA then subtracts 10% from the city miles-per-gallon rating, 22% from the highway results, and 15% from the average, to take into account road conditions that can hurt fuel efficiency.

Keeping your engine in tune can help save fuel. Our ASE Certified service technicians at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO will do their part in making sure your car is properly maintained for maximum performance and efficiency, as well as safety. Here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550), we look forward to meeting you and to giving you the same level of personal attention that we give our own. We're "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Are you your local source for propane for grills, motor homes, and converted vehicles.

HINT: The EPA-approved mileage numbers of the stickers are intended to be a rough measure of fuel economy and generally allow within 2-3 mpg of real-world performance rates.

Soccer Skills Program

The Quincy Recreation Department will offer a soccer skills program for girls, announces Recreation Director Barry Welch.

The program will be offered on two separate days and for two separate age groups. Both programs will be held at Broad Meadows Middle School gym.

On Mondays, beginning Jan. 28, the program is for girls in grades 5-7. There is a session from 5:45 to 7 p.m. and from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Both sessions will offer the same instructional material. Participants may register for only one session.

On Thursdays, beginning Jan. 31, the program is for girls in grades 8-11. There is only one session from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Registration will be held on the first night of each program. After registration there will be a full program of skills on the first night.

Each program will feature activities and instruction designed to improve the fundamental soccer skills of each youngster. Participants will also take part in mini-games and contests. The program is offered free to Quincy residents.

The program will be directed by Paul Bregoli, North Quincy High girls' soccer head coach, and Don Martin, Quincy High girls' soccer head coach. They will be assisted by members of the Recreation Department staff.

Participants are requested to wear sneakers and appropriate gym attire. For more information call 617-376-1394.

Quincy Comeback Gives Presidents First Win

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy High School boys' basketball team, which has been plagued with injuries and sickness this year, may have turned the corner after last week's performances.

The Presidents picked up their first win of the season last Tuesday with a thrilling, 49-45 comeback win at Randolph. And although they fell at Plymouth North, 54-50, last Friday, they continued to show improvement after their 0-7 start.

Quincy (1-8, 1-5) hosted Whitman-Hanson yesterday (Wednesday), which it played well in the first meeting, a 69-63 loss on Jan. 4. It will travel to Dennis-Yarmouth next Tuesday.

In the loss to Plymouth North, the score was tied at 46 with about 2:30 left in the game. But the Presidents remained in their funk at the free-throw line, missing the front ends of several one-and-one's.

"Our shooting continued to be good from the floor, but our free-throw shooting let us down," said head coach John Franceschini. "That was the difference."

Indeed, the Presidents shot a dismal 29 percent (5 of 17) while the Blue Eagles shot a scorching 87 percent (20 of 23).

Both teams overcame a sluggish first half in which the score was tied at 16 at the break. In the second half, Quincy's defense began to create turnovers (29 for the game) which led to some easy transition baskets.

Junior guard Shawn Munchbach led the defensive attack, while junior guard Matt Ramponi scored 14 points and senior co-captain Adam Vecchione chipped in 11.

For Plymouth North, Jason Thompson scored 15 points with eight rebounds and Kevin Swinarski had 13 points and eight boards. Rory Plant added 10 points.

In the triumph over Randolph, the Presidents fell behind, 21-4, to start the game, and then engineered a furious comeback led by its defensive pressure. They closed within four points (27-23) at the half.

In the second half, the defense continued to cause problems for the Blue Devils, which committed 30 turnovers in the game. Quincy wound up shooting a season-high 46 percent.

"The biggest difference is we're getting more from the field now," Franceschini said. "Our defense created a lot of transition baskets, which we had been counting on since day one. Our defense continues to get better. Everyone is getting more familiar with the presses, which have been effective."

Down the stretch, Ramponi and Vecchione came through at the foul line to seal the victory. Ramponi finished with a team-high 12 points and senior guard Dan Cosgrove tallied 11 points. Senior co-captain Mike Lorenzano and Vecchione each scored nine points.

Shawn Davis paced Randolph with 12 points and 18 rebounds.

"The real big difference, obviously, was the ball fell for us, especially in key situations," Franceschini said. "The defense continued to do a good job and in the end we made clutch free throws."

BOYS' BASKETBALL

North Quincy's Latest Setback: 3-2 To S-L

By CHRIS POISSON

Coming into the season, head coach Bob Doyle said he expected some grown pains — early on — as his North Quincy High School hockey team lacked experience.

Surprisingly, the Red Raiders got off to a 3-1 start, outscoring their opponents, 18-5.

Two of those wins, however, came against a poor Taunton squad. To prove its start was real and not a result of a light schedule, North Quincy pointed to its next game — the city showdown against powerhouse Quincy on Jan. 2.

Again, the Red Raiders continued to amaze by grinding out a 3-3 tie against the undefeated Presidents. The sluggish starts from the previous two seasons...no more. At the season's quartermark, they looked like a lock for the postseason.

Surprisingly, the Red Raiders (4-5-2) have hit a late growth spurt. Pulling out a win recently has been harder than pulling out a tooth. Since the Quincy game, they have gone 1-4-1 in their last six games.

"I thought after the Quincy game, the 3-3 tie, we'd be off and rolling," Doyle said.

Their latest setback was a 3-2 loss to Silver Lake last Saturday night at Quincy Youth Arena, which kicked off a six-game homestand. It was their second straight one-goal defeat, third in the past four games and fourth overall.

Including the Marshfield game yesterday (Wednesday), North Quincy needs to gain 10 points in its final 10 games to reach the state tournament. And it won't be easy. It faces Quincy Saturday, New Bedford Monday and Falmouth next Wednesday.

"We can't take anyone lightly," Doyle said. "We have 10 games left and we need to get 10 more points — somehow, someday."

In the Silver Lake game, the Lakers led 1-0 after the first period when Anthony Donnelly scored with an assist from A.J. Marchionne at 13:19.

"It was a pretty even period," Doyle said. "Both goalies played well and we had about the same number of shots."

In the middle frame, North Quincy evened the score on senior tri-captain Joe Fitzpatrick's goal at 9:14. Junior right wing Mike McGonagle picked up the assist. It was the first goal of the season for Fitzpatrick, who has missed most of the year recovering from a broken bone in his right leg that he sustained in the Thanksgiving Day football game.

"It was exciting for him," Doyle said.

But all that excitement turned to disappointment when Silver Lake's Ryan Flaherty scored the go-ahead goal with only 10 seconds left in the period.

"That was a abackbreaker," Doyle said. "It's been one of our problems lately, giving up goals at the beginning and at the end of periods."

Early in the third frame, senior tri-captain Charlie Sorrento had an excellent chance to tie the game, but came up short on a breakaway bid.

"We had several scoring chances," Doyle said. "We're just snakebitten right now."

Soon after, Andy Mitchell extended Silver Lake's lead to 3-1 when he scored on a wrist shot from just inside the blue line.

"That just deflated us," Doyle said.

Presidents One Win Away From State Tourney Berth

The Quincy High School hockey team's game at Dennis-Yarmouth last Saturday night was postponed due to the snowstorm.

As of Tuesday, a makeup date had not been scheduled. The Presidents (8-1-2 overall, 6-1-1 Atlantic Coast League) traveled to Plymouth North yesterday (Wednesday). In the first meeting on Dec. 29, they knocked off the Blue Eagles, 6-2.

And on Saturday night they will battle cross-town rival North Quincy at 7:50 at Quincy Youth Arena. Next Wednesday, they travel to Whitman-Hanson in a game that may have the league championship on the line.

With 18 points, Quincy is one win away from clinching a berth in the state tournament.

In previous action, Quincy battled Hanover to a 2-2 tie on Jan. 10. Having beaten Sandwich the night before, the Presidents came out flat against the Indians and trailed 2-0 after the first period before rallying back for the point.

"I think we felt the effects of the game the night before," said head coach Bob Sylvia. "We just weren't in stride. The good news is we got progressively better as the game went on."

In its next two games, Quincy cruised to a 12-0 win over at Randolph on Jan. 12 and a 10-1 victory over Nauset on Jan. 16.

Tim Fernandez's Hat Trick Gives Quincy White Tie

Tim Fernandez scored a hat trick in Quincy White's 3-3 stalemate with Quincy Maroon in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Presidents Division play.

Cory Bythorn added the other goal. Steve Madden tallied three assists. Joe Connolly and Anthony Fernandez each had one.

For Quincy Maroon, James Spellman (assist), Andrew Cardarelli (assist), Evan Harrington (assist) and Chris Haldoupis all scored. Quincy Black edged Hyde Park, 3-2, as Mark Decoste scored a goal and had an assist. Jarrod Abbott and Steve Keith also scored. Mike Barter had two assists and Steve McGrath one.

For Hyde Park, Ryan Oliver and Jeff Massery scored. Nick Sampson, Tim Galvin and Nick Verity had assists.

Steve McGrath and Steve Keith each scored a pair of goals as Quincy Black battled Quincy Blue to a 5-5 tie. Mark Decoste tallied the other goal to go along with two assists. Jarrod Abbot and Mike Barter had assists.

For Quincy Blue, Joe Ferris (assist), Andy McDonough (assist), Tim Sommers (assist), Andrew Connolly (assist) and Sean Warwick all scored.

NQHS Coaching Vacancies

Two coaching positions are open in North Quincy High School fall sports programs, announces Athletic Director Brian Buckley.

They are a head coach for boys' soccer and an assistant coach for girls' soccer.

All applications are due in the athletic office, 316 Hancock St., by Friday, March 1, by 4 p.m. Applications are available at the athletic office or call 617-984-8912.

All coaching appointments in Quincy Public Schools are for one season only.

Applications are accepted anytime, with resumes and letters of interest placed on file for vacancies that may occur in the future.

Raiders Even Mark With Win

The North Quincy High School girls' track team recently evened its dual-meet record at 2-2 with a 66-23 win over Taunton.

North Quincy competed in the state relays Sunday, the Martin Luther King Freshman-Sophomore Meet at Franklin High School Monday, and faced Barnstable Tuesday. On Sunday, Jan. 27, it will participate in the McIntyre Elite Relays at the Reggie Lewis Center.

In the win over Taunton, Evan Allen (mile), Natalie Caron (1,000), Erin McFarland (300), April Rodgers (55), Kate Timmins (two mile), Katy Mercurio (high jump) and Katie Morgan (shot-put) all placed first. North Quincy also won both relays.

Second-place finishes were Courtney Breslin (mile), Brenna O'Brien (600), Laura Wells (hurdles), Krystle Neves (high jump) and McFarland (long jump).

Third-place finishers were Lauren Ready (1,000), Christi Haines (600), Molly Griffin (300), Sarah Gregory (55), Paula Morgan (shot-put) and Jessica Jacques (long jump).

Taunton's talented Jen Dias won the long jump and 600, pulling O'Brien, a sophomore, to her best time ever (1:46.2) in the 600. "Brenna didn't run near those times until state meet last winter," said head coach Geoff Hennessy. "We have a month more to work with and improve. Nobody in Class A is under 1:40 yet."

GIRLS' TRACK

In a 59-41 loss to Bridgewater-Raynham, it was a see-saw battle until the relays, where the Trojans' depth and talent were just too much. They won the 4x200 relay by less than a second, and then due to an official's error B-R and North Quincy ran in different heats in the 4x400 and B-R bested the Red Raiders by three seconds.

Winners for North Quincy were Caron (mile), O'Brien (600) and Katie Morgan (shot-put), Allen (two miles), Timmins (mile), Eileen Price (1,000), Rodgers (55), Mercurio (high jump), McFarland (long jump) and Paula Morgan (shot-put) all finished second.

Ready (1,000), McFarland (600), Jen Venuti (300), Gregory (55), Wells (hurdles) and Maria McGinness (high jump), and Jacques (long jump) all finished third.

At the Dartmouth Relays, McFarland leaped a personal best 15'5.5" to finish 12th in the long jump. She led off the 4x100 relay with a 64.8 and along with Caron (67.4), O'Brien (66.8) and Kate McDonald (67.2) finished 11th overall (4:26.2), the second best Mass. team in the meet, which featured schools from New England, New York and Canada.

Quincy's Bonnie Hirtle Sets Basketball Record

The Quincy High School girls' basketball team snapped its three-game losing skid Monday night thanks to a record-setting performance by Bonnie Hirtle.

The sophomore shooting guard drilled three treys, breaking the school record for most 3-pointers in a season, and finished with a career-high 30 points to lead the Presidents to a 58-52 win over Plymouth South at home.

Hirtle has made 24 3-pointers this season, surpassing Kerri Connolly's previous record of 22 established in the 1994-95 season.

Sophomore guard Sarah Shea chipped in nine points and freshman center Alysia DiMuzio pulled down 12 rebounds. Senior captain Christine Niosi turned in a solid defensive effort.

Quincy (7-5 overall, 3-4 Atlantic Coast League) will travel to Whitman-Hanson tomorrow (Friday) night. The Panthers, which are undefeated in the league at 5-0, knocked off the Presidents, 46-30, Jan. 4 in Quincy.

Quincy needs to win just three more games in its final eight games to qualify for the state tournament, which would be a tremendous accomplishment after winning no games last season.

Before Monday's victory, Quincy had lost to Plymouth North last Friday, Randolph last Tuesday and Sandwich on Jan. 11.

Prior to that losing streak, the Presidents had pulled out a 38-36 comeback win at Nauset on Jan. 8. Trailing 23-12 at halftime, they rallied back in the second half as the defense turned it up a notch.

Hirtle buried three from long range in the second half to help fuel the comeback and finished with 13 points. Down the stretch, junior guard Jennifer Groppe made a clutch layup. Shea drilled a 3-pointer and junior forward Shannon Paine scored in the post to propel the Presidents.

Curves For Women Owner Honored As Top Franchisee

Brenda Pearson, owner and operator of Curves for Women, Cottage Ave., Quincy Center, was named the number one franchisee of the year at a recent Curves International Convention in Las Vegas.

Pearson's newest fitness and weight-loss center may be new to Quincy Center but it is part of the fastest growing world-wide fitness-franchise group.

Their 30-minute workout theory is obviously a winner -- currently a new location opens every 18 hours in the 50 United States, Canada and Spain. It is a new concept, one that puts a package of fitness facets together with exercise and weight-loss guidance in one location. Most of the Curves' centers are small and comfortably intimate, less than 1,500 square feet; not bustling, tightly scheduled mega facilities.

BRENDA PEARSON

The complete workout takes 30 minutes with a system of specifically patented hydraulic resistance machines a focal point. Additionally, you can make a needed visit when it best fits into your own schedule and proceed through the routine at your own pace in a women's only environment.

Men's Health Issues:

Overcoming Barriers To Good Health

In 1920, the life expectancy of the average American man or woman was just over 53 years. Since that time, advances in medical science, healthier lifestyles, higher safety standards in the work place and other factors have increased life expectancy for both men and women.

However, where men and women had nearly the same life expectancy back then, today a woman can expect to live to be close to 80, or almost six years longer than a male, according to the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) and the National Center for Health Statistics.

Massachusetts Medical Society Initiates Study

To better understand issues related to physical and mental health of men, the Massachusetts Medical Society (MMS) recently created an Ad Hoc Committee on Men's Health to analyze the health issues of men.

"Not a lot of attention has been paid to men's health in recent years," said Arnold Robbins, M.D., a psychiatrist who chairs the committee. "Research in this area has been under funded. I don't know what our analysis will show, but we need to start now."

The CDC has published a number of statistics showing that men aren't using the health care system that is available to them to the extent that women do. Some of the supporting data from 1999 include the following:

- Men make fewer physician visits than women do. Males of all ages accounted for 311 million, or 41 percent, of the total visits to physicians compared to 446 million, or 59 percent, of the visits by women. This is despite the fact that men make up 49 percent of the total population.

- Men make fewer hospital outpatient visits. Women made 60 percent of all outpatient visits.

- Even though more men than women work in higher risk jobs such as mining, fire fighting, construction and fishing, they are less likely to make emergency room visits. The number of visits for men was 49 million, while for women it was 54.2 million.

Dr. Robbins suggests the overall numbers may be misleading because of the high number of physician and outpatient visits women make during pregnancies.

One of the most extensive polls on men's health issues was a 1998 telephone survey conducted on behalf of the Commonwealth Fund by Louis Harris and Associates. Approximately 1,500 males and 2,850 female respondents between the ages of 18 and 65 were questioned. The results showed that one-third of the men said they did not have a regular physician compared to 19 percent of the women. Twenty-four percent of the males of all ages said they had not visited a physician in the preceding year compared to 8 percent of the women.

Committee To Look Beyond Physical Factors

According to Dr. Robbins, the MMS will look at the physical and psychological factors associated with men's health and how stress and societal issues affect men's health. He also suggests that study should be done on designing urologists as primary care physicians for men, as obstetricians and gynecologists are for women.

Most physicians agree that an effective step men and women should take to maintain good health is to schedule an annual physical examination with their physician. The American Medical Association's New Family Medical Guide includes the following recommendations specifically for men:

- A blood pressure measurement every year for men over age 50

- Check cholesterol levels at least every five years and more often if there is a family history of coronary heart disease.

- Begin colon exams at age 50 with a flexible sigmoidoscope. If the findings are normal, the procedure should be repeated every three to five years and more frequently if there is a family history of colon cancer, polyps or colitis.

- Undergoing a prostate exam beginning at age 40. African-Americans and those with a family history of prostate cancer should have the exam scheduled sooner.

In all cases the patient should consult with a physician on the frequency of the exams.

For more information concerning men's health, the American Medical Society offers the AMA Complete Guide to Men's Health. The book can be purchased online at www.ama-assn.org.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

LAST, BUT NOT LEAST

While our ancestors' larger jaws could accommodate all 32 teeth, including third molars (wisdom teeth), our smaller jaws usually have trouble fitting them in. Thus, the last-to-develop wisdom teeth often become impacted (blocked from erupting). Dentists sometimes recommend pulling wisdom teeth to prevent potential problems. If wisdom teeth are partially erupted, they can trap food and bacteria to cause gum infection (pericoronitis). If they are fully impacted, surrounding tissue can form cysts, which can lead to bone destruction around the tooth. Even fully erupted wisdom teeth can be difficult to floss and brush. The easiest time to have them pulled is usually just after they develop, in the late teens or early twenties, before roots are fully formed.

Wisdom teeth are a valuable asset to the mouth when they are healthy and properly positioned. We invite your questions about the health and positioning of your wisdom teeth. We have the friendliest, warmest staff and environment. We have many years of experience and hundreds of satisfied patients. We are caring, compassionate, highly skilled professionals who are dedicated to providing you with high-quality dentistry and service. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. We are located at 44 Greenleaf Street. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule your next oral health appointment. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com

P.S. If your wisdom teeth are fully erupted and do not cause problems, there is no reason to have them extracted.

Medical Secretary

A funeral Mass for Helen M. Murphy, 85, of Squantum, a retired medical secretary, will be celebrated at 9 a.m. Friday at Star of the Sea Church, Squantum.

Mrs. Murphy died Monday at Milton Hospital in Milton.

Born in Boston, she had lived in South Boston before moving to Squantum 30 years ago.

She was employed as a medical secretary for 50 years at the Long Island Hospital in Boston. She retired in 1973.

She also worked at the Chelsea Naval Hospital.

Mrs. Murphy was a member of the Catholic Daughters and the Castle Island Association of South Boston.

She also enjoyed traveling.

She is survived by two nephews, Stephen A. Wright of Pembroke and William Wright of Squantum; and a niece, Dorothy Grimes of Indiana.

HELEN M. MURPHY

She was the daughter of the late Martin J. Murphy and Margaret A. (Kelly), sister of the late Mary Wright and the late George Murphy, USAF Ret., and aunt of the late Donald Wright.

Visiting hours are 4 to 8 p.m. today (Thursday) at the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Burial will be in Forest Hills Cemetery, Boston.

Virginia Welliver, 77

A funeral service for Virginia "Ginny" (Bremner) Welliver, 77, of Quincy, a homemaker, was held Monday at Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

She died Jan. 17 at home.

Mrs. Welliver past president of the Mothers Club in Houghs Neck and was active in the Houghs Neck Congregational Church bowling league.

Born in Waltham, she lived in Hyde Park before moving to Quincy 51 years ago.

She is survived by her husband of 54 years, Norval "Obie" Welliver of Quincy; two daughters, Michael M. Cowan of Plymouth and Kathleen N. DiBona of Quincy; a sister, Mary Kurpeski of Hyde Park; four grandchildren and a great-granddaughter.

Burial was private.

James 'Ray' Fallon, 65

Owned Fallon Ambulance, Community Activist

A funeral Mass for James "Ray" Fallon, 65, of Milton, retired owner and president of Fallon Ambulance Service, was celebrated Wednesday at St. Agatha's Church, Milton.

Mr. Fallon died Jan. 18 at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute in Boston.

His parents, the late James R. Fallon Sr., and Eileen Fallon, started the ambulance business in 1936. Mr. Fallon joined the family business in 1956, and with the exception of several years spent in the United States Army (1958-1960), worked in the family-owned ambulance company until his retirement in 2000.

He became the company president in 1970. During his tenure as president, the company expanded from a fleet of six ambulances and limousines to more than 100 vehicles and 550 employees, serving Metropolitan Boston and a number of South Shore communities, including Quincy.

In March 2001, Mr. Fallon was honored by the Kiwanis Club of Milton which presented him a Special Community Service Recognition Award. He had served on the Carney Hospital Foundation, Milton Residents for the Elderly, and was the former vice president and treasurer of the Massachusetts Ambulance Association.

Mr. Fallon's children said they were honored to see their father receive this special recognition and a privilege "to be able to follow in his footsteps and continue to build the company that has been so much of his life. Those of us closest to him have always known what a wonderful man he is; it is gratifying to see others share that view."

Mr. Fallon was a member of the Wollaston Golf Club in Milton and the Friends of Poland. He was also a past president of the YAZ League.

JAMES FALLON

a softball organization. He was well-known for his compassion and was a generous benefactor to the needy and to many charities.

"Anybody who knew him was touched by him, whether it be financial generosity or just guiding somebody between right and wrong," said one of Mr. Fallon's sons, Peter Racicot, a senior executive at Fallon Ambulance.

Born in Boston, he lived in Milton most of his life. He had retired in Wareham and also spent time in Bonita Springs, Fla.

He was a member of the first graduating class of St. Agatha's School in Milton, in 1949. He was a 1953 graduate of Boston College High School and attended St. Michael's College in Vermont.

Mr. Fallon is survived by his wife, Carol Ann (St. Pierre) Fallon; four sons, Timothy J. Fallon of Milton, James R. Fallon of Chestnut Hill and Peter C. Racicot and Norman J. SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

What is the greatest asset we have in our town? Industry? Business? Homes? Money? Possessions? Take your choice from this sort of list, or any similar list, and you will have made a wrong selection.

Time and again it has been shown in every town that the greatest asset is friendly people. Friends and neighbors differ in type, of course. Some are solemn, serious. Others are cheerful, entertaining. Some are frivolous. Most are hopeful, sincere. Every town, of course, has some evil people. Spiteful people. They are FEW however, compared with the helpful, kindly, neighborly, dependable type. The sympathetic, merciful, considerate people try to keep friendships in constant repair.

Perhaps unaware of it, are not these friendly people of innate goodness demonstrating an acceptance of God's friendship? Can there possibly be any greater asset anywhere for anyone?

To our friends and neighbors... we welcome any thoughts and comments you might have concerning the thoughts you read here...

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Is that Arian self-esteem in need of shoring up? Best advice: Do something that will make someone feel good about him- or herself. It will make you feel proud that you did it.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's time to prove to your detractors that you're way ahead of them when it comes to getting things done. So, be sure to avoid surprise distractions and complete that project as soon as possible.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Be careful not to waste your precious energy on frivolous matters that don't advance your goals. Stay focused. There'll be time enough for fun and games after you reach your objective.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You've done well on your own. But now could be a good time to consider advice from confidantes, as long as you continue to let your own instincts be your primary guide.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A belated New Year's "gift" could create a problem if you feel unwilling or unable to adjust your plans to accommodate the new development. Check all options before deciding.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) There's a possibility that you could be goaded into making a statement you might regret. It's important to try to stay cool no matter how heated the conversation gets.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A recent sad experience can become a valuable lesson. Examine it well and take what you've learned to help you make that important upcoming decision.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Lingering problems in a personal or professional partnership still need to be resolved so you can move on. Insist on more cooperation from everyone.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) That recent problem that made you feel emotionally trapped and physically exhausted is gone. Don't dwell on it. Instead, make new plans and set new goals.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Your creative talents combine with a strong domestic aspect, which means you can start on those home-improvement projects you've been planning for a long time.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) It's a good time to anticipate an upcoming change in the near future. This could mean taking on a new career, going off to a new city or moving into a new home.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Soon, you should be learning more about the motives of those who continue to pressure you into making a decision you're still not sure about. Use this information wisely.

YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK: The flow of your generosity seems to have no limit. But you're smart enough to know when it's time to cap it.

Sun Tuesday, adding only that he hoped Frane, who Phelan said had requested next week's appointment, was doing well in his recovery.

Calling Phelan's attention to what he called "a serious problem in the Quincy Police Department," McCauley's letter states:

"Quincy Police Chief Thomas Frane has been out on sick and injured leave the entire calendar year 2001. His position has been filled by various acting chiefs who have been receiving the chief's salary.

"The cost to the taxpayers of Quincy for the payment of two chiefs of police for 2001 was approximately $315,000. Given the deteriorating financial position of the city of Quincy, I believe that this situation be resolved as soon as possible.

"If Chief Frane is unable to return to active duty as Quincy's Chief of Police, I believe it would be advisable for him to seek retirement."

Frane, who underwent triple-bypass surgery Jan. 3 at Boston Medical Center, joined the Quincy Police Department as a patrolman in December of 1971. He was promoted to sergeant in January of 1980, to lieutenant in April of 1987, and to captain in November of 1992.

Frane took over as chief of police in September of 1997, succeeding Francis Mullen, who retired.

Frane's duties were performed during part of 2001 by Captain Terence Kelly.

Captain William Falco has served as acting chief since May of 2001.

Coughlin Resolve Seeks 'Producer Take Back' Law On Electronic Waste

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin was expected to introduce a resolution at Tuesday night's meeting of the City Council calling upon the Legislature and Acting Governor Jane Swift to enact legislation which would mandate that producers of certain products and packaging take financial and physical responsibility for their products after they are discarded.

Called "Producer Take Back," Coughlin said the system would address electronic waste such as computer monitors and televisions as well as household hazardous waste products such as paints, cleaners, and pesticides.

"This issue is a poster child for the philosophy of 'thinking globally, but acting locally,'" said Coughlin, who said he had discussed the issue with fellow councillors and was confident the resolve could be passed Tuesday night. "We need to address this issue both from an environmental and fiscal perspective.

"Producers of these products are well equipped and positioned to reclaim, reuse, and recycle them. Shifting the burden from local taxpayers back to producers will provide a market incentive to produce products that are more durable, less toxic, and recyclable."

As of April 1, 2000, the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, because of the toxicity of such waste -- which contains lead, mercury, cadmium, and other toxic materials -- prohibited the disposal of discarded cathode ray tubes (CRTs), such as those found in television and computer monitors, in municipal landfills or incinerators, thereby increasing local government costs for recycling the waste.

According to Coughlin, Massachusetts cities and towns have to deal with more than 75,000 tons of electronic waste each year, a figure which is expected to increase to 300,000 tons by 2005.

Coughlin said the city of Quincy expended over $36,000 this past year solely to transport this type of waste collected at the DPW site, not including personnel and other ancillary costs.

"These costs amount to an unfunded mandate upon the residents of Quincy which will continue to grow and siphon off taxpayer dollars that are needed for education, public safety, and other quality of life issues," Coughlin said.

would be known within three weeks and would also be made public via legal advertisements.

Phelan said he expected no short-term borrowing on the part of the city as a result of the problem but added payment of the bills would help the city.

"It would be helpful for the taxpayers to pay it as soon as possible, as it would any other bill," Phelan said.

Third quarter tax bills are usually based on actual "tax rates" set in December of the previous year. This year, however, the city was unable to set actual tax rates because of state budget delays and the fact that the state has yet certify financial figures provided by the city and has, in fact, requested additional data.

Marion Fantucchio, chairwoman of the Board of Assessors, and Laurie Allen, executive secretary to Mayor William Phelan, were scheduled to make a presentation on the issue at Tuesday night's meeting of the City Council prior to a proposed adoption of a state extension for mailing actual FY 2002 tax bills.

Snug Harbor To Host Winter Festival Of The Arts

The Snug Harbor Community School will host its second annual Winter Festival of the Arts Saturday from 2 p.m. until 5 p.m. at the school.

The event -- a celebration of the arts programs of the school made possible by Snug Harbor parents, teachers, and the students themselves -- will feature performances by the school's choir and band, poem readings, and a puppet show.

There will also be ice sculpture demonstrations from Atlantic Ice and entertainment by Suspenders, a juggling troupe.

The school's gymnasium will be adorned with student artwork and offer games, activities, and refreshments.

The Snug Harbor Community School is located at 333 Palmer St.

For Outstanding Community Service Henry (Hank) Bradley Selected Quincy Sun 'Citizen Of The Year'

Henry P. "Hank" Bradley, Director of Quincy Veterans' Services, who has given freely of his own time in that post and to veterans, charitable and civic causes, is The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year for 2001.

Bradley was selected for the honor by a panel of judges from a field of 25 nominees submitted by Quincy Sun readers.

The 17th annual recipient of the award for outstanding community service, he will be honored at a reception at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center, the date to be set.

Active in the American Legion as a veteran of the Vietnam War era, serving as a past National Vice Commander, past state commander and commander of Quincy's Morrisette Post, he was nominated by his wife, Rosemarie, who said of him:

"He is a very special person. Always giving to others. Not only is he a generous man, he is always putting himself last. Never takes time for himself."

"I'm really surprised," Bradley said when informed by Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth and Editor Robert Bosworth that he had been selected for the award. "It is a great honor."

They congratulated him and also the other nominees. "Being nominated is an honor in itself," they said. "Again this year, we had a number of outstanding nominees."

As his wife says, Bradley does find time for others. Especially for veterans and their families and for hospitalized children and other youngsters.

Among those children was Claudius Burrows, a

Looking For February Date Phelan Says He Will Call Convention For His School Seat

By CRAIG SALTERS

Mayor William Phelan reaffirmed his intention to call a joint convention of the City Council and the School Committee to name his successor to the School Committee before the end of February.

The exact date, said Phelan, whose recent mayoral victory created the vacancy on the School Committee, will be determined after discussions with the councillors and School Committee members who will comprise the joint convention "out of respect for their schedules and their positions."

That process of outreach, the mayor added, had already begun.

Phelan added his surprise at a Jan. 23 meeting of the School Committee, which Phelan was unable to attend because he was in Washington D.C. for the annual U.S. Conference of Mayors, which adopted a resolution establishing its own procedures and timetables for the joint convention.

"It surprised me in that I had made myself clear at the previous meeting of the School Committee," said Phelan, the ex-officio chairman of the School Committee, referring to his decision to call the convention in February. "To me, it's not an issue. The charter is clear that the mayor calls the convention because there are two bodies (the City Council and School Committee) involved."

A joint resolution authored by Council President Daniel Raymondi and School Committee Vice Chairwoman Christine Cedrone which also spelled out the process for filling the vacant School Committee seat was tabled at the council's Jan. 22 meeting by Councillor Frank McCauley.

McCauley said he tabled Raymondi's order after testimony by Attorney Joseph MacRitchie of the Solicitor's Office stating that only the mayor was authorized to call the convention and that even discussing the matter without the School Committee might represent a conflict in the Open Meeting Laws.

McCauley's formal objection automatically puts the matter before the council at its next meeting, which is scheduled for Monday.

Cahill Heads Finance, Four Freshmen Get Committees Raymondi Names Council Committees, Chairmen

City Council President Daniel Raymondi has named his council committees, tapping veteran Tim Cahill as chairman of the powerful finance committee and appointing the four new councillors to head important committees.

Cahill, who is also Norfolk County treasurer, succeeds Francis McCauley who headed that committee under former Council President Paul Harold.

The chairmanship of two other major committees, Ordinance and Oversight, went to Ward 1 Councillor Greg Hanley and Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton.

The three committees are the only council full-membership committees.

Vice chairmanships of the Finance, Ordinance and Oversight committees went to Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro, Newton and McCauley, respectively.

"What I attempted to do is meld the experienced city councillors with the not-so-experienced city councillors and try to develop a fairly equitable distribution of leadership positions and the makeup of each and every committee, recognizing the strength and abilities of the city councillors," Raymondi said.

The other committees and chairmen:

New Restaurant Approved For Quincy Center

The License Board Tuesday granted a common victualer/all alcoholic license to the Borneo Corporation for its planned restaurant, The Half Door, at 1514-1516 Hancock St.

The license was conditional upon final occupancy and build-out at the 2,100 square foot site, formerly the election headquarters of former Mayor James Sheets.

Carolyn Conway, attorney for principals Patrick O'Sullivan and Kevin McGrath, who were also present at the hearing, said the Half Door would be a "mid-scale American bistro" with a large emphasis on food, citing similar ventures by O'Sullivan such as Portabelli's in Brighton.

Conway, who said plans were still in their preliminary stages because of a desire for input by groups such as the Quincy Historical Commission, set 160 patrons as the ceiling for occupancy but agreed with board members that that figure could decrease after plans were finalized.

Speaking in favor of the license was Maralin Manning, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA), who called the

Phelan, Gutro, Hanley To Attend QHS Site Meeting

Mayor William Phelan, Ward 1 Councillor Gregory Hanley, and Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro are scheduled to attend the Quincy Center Neighborhood Association's next meeting to be held Sunday, February 10 from 2 to 4 p.m. in the first floor meeting room of the Thomas

Crane Public Library.

Focus of the meeting will be the city's plan to construct the new Quincy High School on Faxon Field and possible effects of construction on the neighborhood.

The QCNA, which has expressed opposition to the city's plan, citing flooding concerns, urges residents to attend the Feb. 10 meeting.

Collaborative Effort

QARI New Non-Profit To Serve Asian Community

The Quincy Asian Resources, Inc., is the newest addition to the city of Quincy's human services, not-for-profit community and will soon be providing services to Quincy's substantial Asian-American community.

The recently incorporated Quincy Asian Resources, Inc., abbreviated QARI, is the result of a joint effort of Quincy Asian residents and human service providers servicing Quincy with support from the United Way of Massachusetts Bay, whose funding and technical support, say QARI officials, was critical in spearheading Asian residents' desires for human services targeting the Quincy Asian community.

QARI's origin is based on a collaborative effort of Quincy Asian and non-Asian residents, human service agencies, and local officials. The collaborative produced a forum where people freely discussed the concerns and interests of the Asian-American community, which in turn produced QARI and its mission to help address the needs and concerns of Asian-Americans living in Quincy.

"Asian residents do want their voice better heard, and not just heard but action taken to develop leadership and to be informed about what is out there for the community," said Tackey

Chan, QARI president. "QARI is about focusing at the grassroots level and building towards the greater good."

In response to the message sent by Asian residents, the United Way of Massachusetts Bay, Inc., and the Harold Brooks Foundation have generously provided the necessary start-up funds for QARI to begin work in early 2002.

The QARI board of directors represents a wide range of social-economic backgrounds as well as personal and professional experiences. Twelve of the 16 board members are Asian-Americans.

In addition to Chan, its president, the officers of QARI's board are as follows: Peter Jae, vice-president; Sheri Adlin, treasurer; and Nasreen Shibli, secretary.

The board was selected through a steering committee established by a collaborative process.

"The board truly reflects a diverse set of backgrounds and ideas. Each person has a different life experience and it promotes an opportunity for QARI to develop in new and innovative ways," said Jae. "Each board member is connected to Quincy in some intimate way and really cares about Quincy as a whole."

QARI currently has two objectives: hiring an executive director and establishing a membership base. QARI board members are currently engaged in seeking out an individual who will be able to engage the community at a personal level and face the challenges of a start-up not-for-profit.

"Thanks to United Way of Massachusetts Bay, Inc. and the Harold Brooks Foundation, we have funding for QARI's point person," said Adlin. "He or she will be instrumental to the growth of this new and innovative entity."

Secondly, QARI is in the process of building a membership base which will contribute to the growth of QARI. The membership base will also be the source of future board members.

"QARI is unique in that while there is a focus on human services, there is a strong emphasis on the importance of Asian residents to be part of that service and be the architect for future services," said Shibli.

Once an executive director is hired, there will be greater discussion at QARI about both immediate and long-term goals. Persons interested in joining or applying for the executive director's position should send a cover letter and resume to Quincy Asian Resources, Inc., Attention: Board President, 1509 Hancock St., Third Floor, Quincy, MA 02169.

Pioneer Investments Donates Office Furniture To QPS

Pioneer Investments of Boston recently donated nearly $10,000 worth of surplus office furniture to the Quincy Public Schools.

"It was a win-win situation," explained John Kucinski, Pioneer's vice president for Corporate Services, during a recent tour of the various Quincy Public Schools' administrative offices. "We had office furniture we could no longer use and the school system was able to put it to good use."

"In fact, seeing how good it looks now, I almost wish we could get some of it back."

James DeSaulniers, Pioneer's Corporate Services manager, proposed the idea of donating the items to the schools and coordinated the delivery.

"Everything we sent over was received with incredible enthusiasm," said DeSaulniers. "It feels good knowing Pioneer was able to have a positive effect on the community."

Supt. of Schools Dr. Richard DeCristofaro thanked Kucinski, DeSaulniers, and Pioneer Investments for their friendship with the Quincy Public Schools and their willingness "to give to our community."

Pioneer Investments is the fourth oldest mutual fund company in the United States.

Phelan Tours 'Ground Zero' With Giuliani Public Safety Top Priority At U.S. Conference Of Mayors

The increased need for security post Sept. 11 and ways to fund that security were two major issues of last week's United States Conference of Mayors, held in both Washington D.C. and New York City and attended by Mayor William Phelan.

"Sept. 11 really had an impact across the nation — across the world for that matter — and the folks feeling it now are the people running municipal governments all across the country," said Phelan, who also met with Senators Edward Kennedy and John Kerry and Congressman William Delahunt during his first-ever visit to Washington D.C.

Phelan said he was encouraged by President George W. Bush's remarks to the mayors in which Bush discussed the roughly $3.5 billion aid package before Congress, which would be administered through the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) and provide funds for "first response" providers for cities and towns.

The proposed funds, Phelan said, show a recognition at the federal level of the necessity "to provide relief to local authorities, which are really the front lines of Homeland Defense."

In New York, Phelan joined other mayors in a tour of "Ground Zero" at the World Trade Center led by former New York City Mayor Rudolph Giuliani.

"It was truly moving," Phelan said of the makeshift memorials covering the former World Trade Center site and Giuliani's moment-by-moment account of what took place Sept. 11.

"The amount of people who were saved is really the story behind Sept. 11," said Phelan. "There was no panic, which is what the terrorists had hoped for."

Both Bush and Giuliani, Phelan said, made separate appeals for the nation's mayors to go back home and thank their local first response providers such as EMT's, firefighters, and police because the events of Sept. 11, they said, could have happened anywhere in America and would have been met with the same heroism as was displayed in New York.

Phelan said he relayed Bush's and Giuliani's message of thanks Saturday night at an installation of officers for the Quincy Firefighters Association, adding his desire for a more public expression of thanks in the near future.

Firefighter Examination Applications Available

State Rep. Ronald Mariano announces applications for the entry-level Municipal Service Firefighter examination are available.

"I encourage anyone interested in becoming a firefighter to contact my office for an application," said Mariano.

The deadline to file applications for the examination is Friday, Feb. 1. The examination will be administered Saturday, April 27.

Applications or information sheets that detail the requirements for the examination are available by calling Mariano's office at (617) 722-2220 or through the Massachusetts Human Resources Division, One Ashburton Place, Boston.

"It is important to file your application early. Many people are eager to serve their community so you don't want to miss out on the opportunities available," Mariano said.

Quincy Democrats Set Ward Caucuses

Quincy's six Ward Democratic Committees will caucus — five of them Saturday and one Feb. 5 — to elect delegates and alternates to the Democratic State Convention.

The Saturday caucuses are:

Ward 1: Thomas Crane Public Library, 3 p.m.

Ward 2: Fore River Clubhouse, 16 Nevada Road, 10 a.m.

Ward 3: Work Inc. headquarters, 30 Fayette St., 1 p.m.

Ward 4: Amelio Della Chiesa Center, Brooks Avenue, 10 a.m.

Ward 6: Adams Inn, 1 Hancock St., 8:30 a.m. breakfast, 10 a.m. voting.

Ward 5 will caucus Tuesday, Feb. 5, at 7 p.m. at Beechwood Knoll elementary school, 225 Fenno St.

Any registered Quincy Democrat is eligible to be a candidate for delegate to the Democratic State Convention to be held Saturday, June 1, at the Worcester Centrum.

"With a governor's race on the horizon, this year promises to be an exciting year," said Michael Cheney, chairman of the City Democratic Committee.

He urged registered Democrats to participate in the election of the delegates.

For more information, he can be contacted at 617-471-1493.

Sunbeams

They Were Disappointed

We don't usually pay much attention to letters that come in without the name of the writer.

But, now and then, we do make an exception.

Like the one the other day expressing disappointment of North Quincy High School students over the Quincy Sun's coverage of the Olympic torch carriers Dec. 27.

The writer, who signed the letter only as "Representative of NQHS Students" feels we slighted two of the Quincy torch bearers: Dan Coughlin, North Quincy dean and Geoff Hennessy, North girls track coach. Especially Dan Coughlin.

The letter reads:

"Many of the citizens and especially the students in Quincy, were very disappointed in your coverage of the torch carriers for the Olympics.

"A Quincy teacher and a Quincy coach of track were both carriers.

"Did you notice the number of young people along the route? They nominated the Dean of North. Yet you hardly mentioned either one.

"This is a once in a life-time event for the route to go through Quincy and you never even ran a picture of either one. Mr. Hennessy didn't run through Quincy, but Mr. Coughlin did.

"Your photographer took many pictures of all the runners separately and jointly and the only Quincy resident slighted was Mr. Coughlin."

Well, we are sorry the writer feels that way but we did not intentionally slight anyone that day.

Maybe we deserve some criticism for not getting photos of all the torch carriers. We had two photographers assigned -- in addition to a reporter.

But we had no firm schedule of where which carriers would be at what time.

We did get photos of Karen Cashman-Lehman, a bronze medal winner in team speed-skating in the 1994 Winter Olympics; her brother, Ron; Ray Cattaneo and Gaetano Spinelli with the torch. And a photo of Guy Spinelli -- but not carrying the torch.

We did not get Geoff Hennessy, a long-time friend during his many years as coach and director of the Quincy Track Club, because he carried the torch in Boston. We covered only Quincy.

Two other Quincy residents not mentioned in the letter -- David McCarthy and Donald Cornell -- also carried the torch in Boston.

All of the residents who carried the torch here in Quincy and in Boston were so reported in two advance stories and the one of the actual event.

Since receiving the letter, we have re-checked the photos taken that day. And found a photo of him with Karen Cashman-Lehman and Cattaneo at the ceremonies in Quincy Center.

So, we are using both of them here to sort of make up for things.

Our thanks to the letter writer for calling our attention to the matter.

And our apologies to Dan Coughlin for the oversight on a big day in his life.

DAVE MURPHY didn't get to be a millionaire but he has accomplished what he hoped to do.

Murphy, program director for the Quincy Park and Recreation Department, walked off with $125,000 on the Who Wants To Be A Millionaire program shown in January.

Some of the money, he said, would help him and his wife, Amy, buy their own home in Quincy. They had been renting an apartment in Wollaston. Mission accomplished.

They have signed a purchase and sales agreement on a two-family house on Trafford St., South Quincy and expect to be settled in by February.

Regis would be happy to hear that.

HERB FONTAINE could be pretty persistent when he was news editor at WJDA. He never gave up chasing a news story even if it meant rousing a city or town official out of bed at 5 a.m.

Now in retirement, they can sleep longer but he's still persistent.

He and John Noonan, chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging, are both members of the Beechwood Community Life Center advisory board.

The other day, Fontaine was trying to reach Noonan by telephone regarding a Beechwood meeting. And he kept getting a busy signal. Over an hour and a half period.

So, he called the telephone company to have them check on Noonan's line. They checked and informed him "the phone is off the hook."

Undaunted and determined to reach Noonan, Fontaine called the police department and asked if they could send a cruiser to Noonan's Alton Rd. home.

They did. A police officer knocked on Noonan's door. He told him his phone was off the hook and to call Fontaine which he did.

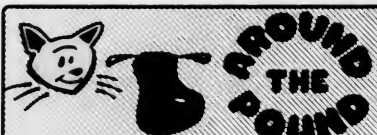

Nice to know you haven't lost the old touch, Herb.

PERSONAL: A BELATED thank you to Edith Matthes of Calvin Circle, Weymouth, former Quincy resident and a long-time reader for her kind words.

She likes "Sunbeams" and the Quincy news but mostly enjoys "Quincy's Yesterdays" and Tom Galvin's "Scenes from Yesterday."

"With the picture's I've put together a family scrapbook so that they can always see and remember how Quincy changed and grew," she writes.

She adds: "Please never change. We love you (The Sun) as you are."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS AN early 1950s postcard view of the downstairs Cocktail Lounge at Walsh's Restaurant on Billings Road in Norfolk Downs. Walsh's had a bar and restaurant on the first floor and in the basement this lounge was open Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings with live piano entertainment. This room was also a popular spot for private parties. A Norfolk Downs landmark this restaurant was opened just after prohibition ended in the 1930s by Michael J. Walsh who had been a Quincy sign painter. At first he named it the Norfolk Tap and Cafe, and changed the name to Walsh's in 1938. The Walsh family ran the business until they sold the building a few years ago. It is now the home of the corporate office of the Norfolk Electric Company.

Preventing Suicides: What Can We Do

The first call of 2001 came on New Year's Day.

The second on Jan. 7. Then on Jan. 22. Two more calls came in February. Six came in March — the last for a young man who would never turn 22, never live to comb gray hair.

There were an astounding eight suicides in Norfolk County in September of this year. Then another five in October — the youngest a girl who might have blown out 15 birthday candles just a few days later.

As District Attorney, I am charged under statute with investigating all unattended, unexplained deaths in Norfolk County — including suicides.

It is impossible to explain the frustration of being called to step in, time and again, when it is too late.

Earlier this year, I asked physicians, a specialist from the Samaritans, and a public health worker who specializes in self-inflicted injury to a meeting of the Norfolk Anti-Crime Council. What they said was surprising — even to the seasoned public safety, social service and business professionals who belong to the council.

Massachusetts residents take their own lives as frequently as they die in automobiles. And for every completed suicide, there were roughly 25 others who attempted to take their life but did not. For each youth suicide, that number swells to roughly 100 attempts for each completion.

In the three years that I have served as Norfolk District Attorney, my office has investigated more than 90 suicides — and that number does not include drug overdoses where no note is left, one-car "accidents" where there are no skid marks indicating any effort to avoid impact, or other ambiguous cases.

Those of us charged with public health and public safety have to do more, and we have to do it together.

Suicidal behavior is strongly linked to depression, substance abuse, sexual assault and domestic violence.

We must improve accessibility to mental health services. This includes developing an easier mechanism for parents to find age-appropriate professionals as well as more alcohol treatment facilities and psychiatric beds for adolescents.

Public education on warning signs and risk factors, training programs for school guidance counselors, and means restriction are also needed.

Local communities have to do their part. That is why I have moved to make my office and our Anti-Crime Council part of the growing network of medical, education and public health professionals working to stem this sad waste of human life.

There are already several well-established programs in this area. Dr. Barbara Green and colleagues at the South Shore Hospital have a program that helps high school and middle school students explore the silences surrounding suicidal thinking and the isolation and abuse that often underlies it. One lesson they stress is teaching students that — contrary to what they may believe — true friendship sometimes means sharing the secret that a friend is considering suicide.

Another program, the Signs of Suicide (SOS) High School Suicide Prevention Program based in Wellesley, has an excellent video designed to educate students on what to do should they see warning signs of suicide in a friend.

And the Suicide Prevention Task Force formed by the Anti-Crime Council this spring has developed a comprehensive resource guide and a brochure on suicide prevention among adolescents.

During the holiday season, when the days are grayest and the nights are longest, we have mailed over 800 of these publications across Norfolk County — to schools and adults who work with children, from clergy and coaches to guidance counselors and school nurses.

Parents also have to take notice, both of their child's behavior and environment.

Nearly 60 percent of successful suicides involve a firearm. Parents who keep guns need to recognize that it is just as important to properly lock and secure that firearm with a teen in the house as it is with an inquisitive toddler — whether your teen is on the dean's list or struggling socially or academically.

But teens are just one population. The suicide rates are also high for adults ages 25-44 and for males over 75.

There was a time when families did not talk about domestic violence. Or child abuse. Or even mental illness. They usually didn't talk about it with each other, much less with authorities they did not believe would understand.

That is changing. Police and district attorneys in Massachusetts and other states are aggressive in the way we support victims of domestic violence, physically and sexually abused children and victims.

Domestic violence, alcoholism and mental illness are sometimes described as "elephants in the middle of the living room" that no one can miss, but everyone pretends not to notice.

Suicide is an elephant in America's living room. We need to see it, understand it, and act.

Quincy's Yesterdays Causeway To Thompson's Island Discussed

By PAUL HAROLD

The construction of an 1800-foot causeway from Squantum to Thompson's Island was discussed this week by Thompson Academy officials and local business leaders.

William O'Connell, executive vice president of the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce, traveled to the island to discuss the proposals with the headmaster and other academy officials. Currently, the 100 students at the school were transported by boat from Boston. The academy headmaster noted the causeway would benefit Quincy businesses who supplied goods and services to the school.

SHIPBUILDERS VOTE TO WITHDRAW FROM UNITED FUND

Shipbuilders' Local 5 President James McGonnigal announced his 9,000-member union voted to seek a separate fund from the Quincy United Fund and expected that Locals 90 and 151 would follow suit.

The new fund would be dispersed by a board made up of union and management personnel. McGonnigal noted that under the current set up, shipyard employees contributed to the Quincy United Fund, but were only eligible for help from the Boston United Fund.

DELLA CHIESA BOOSTS STATE POLICE AT WEST QUINCY

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa testified before the legislative committee on public safety in support of his plan to build a state police sub-station in West Quincy. The proposed location was the site of the first railroad incline.

Della Chiesa said the station would be adjacent to the new Southeast Expressway and would serve the entire South Shore area. He pointed out the police barracks in Norwell and Foxboro were too far away to provide for immediate police services.

Rigatoni Supreme

At a dinner party we attended recently, my brother John and wife Anita told us about a great entree they had at a friend's house. They raved about it so much, I decided to try it out and it is an unbelievable dish. And so easy to make. I usually do not use jarred or canned foods when I cook, but I made an exception and was glad I did. It also contains my favorite pasta, rigatoni!

Rigatoni Supreme
1 pound rigatoni
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 jar Alfredo sauce
1 can cheddar soup
Fresh tomato for the topping grated parmesan cheese for topping smidgen of fresh parsley for topping

Cook the pasta so it is al dente, because it has to bake. While that is cooking, mix all the rest of ingredients together except those listed for topping, until well blended.

In a slightly greased baking or casserole dish, place in layers, the rigatoni, the cheese mixture and then the rigatoni. On top, place the sliced tomatoes on top, then sprinkle the parmesan cheese and some minced parsley on top. Bake in a 375 oven covered for about 40-45 minutes. Cool for a few minutes and then serve. It's an entree you can prepare ahead of time and then pop in the oven.

Registration is made at the Center and should be done quickly because space is limited.

History-Making Productions (HMP) recently presented Talk It Out, a play demonstrating ways for children to turn conflict into cooperation, to the students of the Atlantic Middle School.

The performance teaches students the five steps they can use to keep conflicts from escalating: stop, step back, cool down, apologize, and talk it out.

The performance was sponsored by the Quincy Public Schools Department of Health and Physical Education and was sponsored by a grant from The Quincy Foundation for Excellence in Education, Inc.

HMP is an educational touring theater company that produces original plays dramatizing history. The organization is funded in part by the Massachusetts Cultural Council, a state agency.

HMP tours its productions in schools, libraries, colleges, museums, retirement communities, and other organizations throughout the Northeast.

Other HMP productions include Amelia Earhart: Courage is the Price; Abigail Adams: Remember the Ladies; Abigail Adams, A Revolutionary Mom; Let's Go West; and Theater to Do.

Joseph Ceurvels Sworn In As Fire Lieutenant

Swearing-in ceremonies for newly appointed Quincy Fire Lt. Joseph Ceurvels were held recently in the mayor's office at City Hall.

Lt. Ceurvels, who has nearly 25 years experience on the Quincy Fire Department, was sworn-in Dec. 31 by City Clerk Joseph Shea. City officials attending the ceremonies included then Mayor James Sheets and Quincy Fire Chief Thomas Gorman.

Lt. Ceurvels lives in Wollaston with his wife Kathleen and their three children: Jessie, age 23; Katie, age 20; and Joseph, Jr., age 14.

Of the many family and friends of Lt. Ceurvels who attended the ceremonies were his mother, Ann Ceurvels, and his brother, Quincy Firefighter Gerard Ceurvels.

Lt. Ceurvels is also the son of the late Arthur L. Ceurvels, who served as a member of the Boston Fire Department.

Over 300 Volunteers At Cahill Campaign Meeting

State Treasurer candidate Tim Cahill held a campaign organization meeting last Wednesday night which drew more than 300 volunteers to the Tunnel Workers' Union Hall.

"I am honored and humbled to have over 300 volunteers attend the first campaign meeting," said Cahill. "The energy in the room that night was amazing. People are excited about my race for the treasurer's seat and are ready to put their skills to work on my campaign. With support like this, we are well on the road to victory this fall."

The meeting provided volunteers with specific campaign information and a timeline for the next month of field activities. Volunteers were plugged into phone banks and Democratic caucus activities.

Cahill has been traveling around the state lining up support for his candidacy. He finished last year with over $230,000 in his campaign fund, he reported.

In 1987, Cahill was first elected to the City Council for an at-large seat and has been re-elected every two years since. This past year, he was re-elected to his eighth term, topping the ballot in both the primary and general election by a wide margin. In 1996, Cahill defeated Norfolk County's only Republican elected official, Treasurer Robert Hall. Cahill topped a field of four in the Democratic primary and then defeated the incumbent treasurer by more than 50,000 votes in November.

Cahill lives in Quincy with his wife of 18 years, Tina (Falco) Cahill, an elementary school gym teacher, and their four daughters Makena, Nicole, Devin, and Kendra

South Shore Co-Op Donates $2,000 To Lincoln Hancock

South Shore Co-operative Bank recently donated $2,000 to the Lincoln-Hancock Elementary School as part of its "Checking for Charity" program, a bank-wide initiative to assist in funding various educational and charitable organizations within local communities.

"South Shore Co-operative Bank is extremely enthusiastic about these projects and eager to make such significant contributions toward their success," said South Shore Co-operative Bank CEO John O'Brien, who made the check presentation to Lincoln Hancock Principal Dennis Carini. "We are pleased to have an opportunity to assist our schools in reaching their goal of providing the best equipment and educational materials possible for the children in our community."

As part of the program, bank offices in Quincy, Weymouth, and Bridgewater each selected a school or local charity to which $10 would be contributed for every new checking account opened.

In partnership with Lincoln-Hancock, the bank's contribution is directed to the parents' group to support the activities of the school, in keeping with the program's goal to "enhance the quality of education in area communities by making funds available to teachers for the purchase of necessary educational materials."

Last year, for instance, the funds were used for new books to support the reading program.

The bank's East Bridgewater office helps support The East Bridgewater Partners in Education, Inc., a non-profit organization which provides teaching materials, lecturers, and additional materials for the schools. The Weymouth office contributes to "Dream Come True Fund," a local foundation that functions in the same fashion as the national "Make A Wish" Foundation.

Sponsorship of special community programs like that of Lincoln Hancock's is South Shore Co-operative Bank's way of demonstrating its commitment to supporting the people in the communities it serves. Those interested in receiving more information or making a contribution to any of these organizations may contact Steve Sousa at South Shore Co-operative Bank at (781) 337-1300.

Woodward School Dedicates Johnston Memorial Auditorium

The Woodward School in Quincy Center recently held dedication ceremonies for the Robert L. Johnston Memorial Auditorium, a renovated center for both the performing arts and athletics.

Johnston, a headmaster at the school for nearly 20 years who died in 1998 from ALS, also known as "Lou Gehrig's Disease," was remembered for his "indomitable 'Don Quixote' spirit" and his years of devotion to the school.

Ceremonies included a dramatic presentation entitled "Temples and Tombs" written and performed by the sixth grade class under the direction of Sheila Ray, a Social Studies Teacher and Lower School Director. There was also a choral presensation — which included "The Impossible Dream" from Broadway's Man Of La Mancha — performed by the sixth and seventh grade choruses under the direction of Joann Rugg, a French Teacher, and accompanied on piano by Peter Johnston, son of Robert L. Johnston.

At the conclusion of the ceremony a portrait of Johnston, painted and donated to the school by artist Donald Dickinson, was unveiled.

In addition to Peter Johnston, the family was represented at the ceremonies by Carol A. Johnston, Brenda Johnston Cuneo, and Jennifer Cuneo.

Also participating in the ceremony were: Robert

Raimondi, president of the Woodward School Foundation and co-chairman of the Auditorium Committee; current Headmaster Thomas Wesner; Laura Eastwick, Class of 2005, soloist; Kenneth Butler, Social Studies department head and director of Performing Arts; Robert Giordano, coach and athletic director; and Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, co-chairwoman of the Auditorium Committee.

The new auditorium features new theater lighting and sound systems, a new hardwood floor, a modular stage that can be stored to increase the room's capacity, air conditioning, new seating, new wall and window treatments, and increased storage space.

The NQHS Senior Stay-Out Committee will meet Tuesday, Feb. 12, at 7 p.m. in the Media Center at North Quincy High School.

All NQHS senior students, whether they attend the prom or not, will be invited to the Senior Stay-Out 2002 — an all-night, substance-free party. The Stay-

Out offers food, fun and a safe place to spend the night — all at no cost to the student.

Because parents of seniors are not allowed to attend the actual event, parents of freshmen, sophomores and juniors are especially needed to volunteer to work at this all-night party. The Senior Stay-Out will take place May 10 following the Senior Prom.

For those unable to attend the meeting, but still wish to be involved in the planning of this year's party, contact Jean Mackey at 617-479-9084 or by e-mail, Rngmstr25@aol.com.

Bruce Ayers Receives Top Audubon Society Ranking

State Rep. Bruce Ayers has received for the second consecutive year a 100 percent rating from the Massachusetts Audubon Society based on his voting record in support of critical environmental issues during the 2001 session.

The Society's Director of Advocacy, Jack Clarke, who recently reported the legislature's voting record, said, "Massachusetts Audubon Society congratulates Rep. Ayers on another great year of voting on environmental issues."

"If legislators don't advocate for the protection of the environment now, the natural character of Massachusetts will be jeopardized," said Ayers.

The vote included subject matter such as Community Preservation Act, volunteer donation check-off boxes on property tax bills, and a vote to override acting Gov. Swift's veto to a line item which would provide $1.2 million for maintenance and improvements of certain MDC parks and facilities.

Since 1985, the Society has compiled the environmental voting records of the Massachusetts legislature to inform citizens about the performance and accountability of their elected officials.

The Care. You Want. Close to Home.

WINTER! CAR CARE

Your Car — Braced For Cold Weather?

(NAPS)—If you hate cold weather, imagine how your car feels. Fortunately, most preparation is very simple to do and costs very little. The first step is to be aware of the age of two key car functions, report experts at Jiffy Lube.

Battery And Radiator Check

The two-year mark is an important anniversary for both the battery and radiator system. Safe battery service and inspection should be part of routine maintenance. Batteries that are 24 months or older should be monitored for warning signs such as sluggish starting and the accumulation of a corrosive powder on and around the terminals. These are warning signs of corrosion and age, but it may fail even without such indications.

Average battery life can range from about three years up to four to five years. And the antifreeze/coolant in some cooling systems may not provide adequate protection past the two-year mark, so it may need to be replaced.

Windshield Washer

Fluid Tip

Speaking of fluid, if you are one of the many that mixes water with windshield fluid during the summer to save a little money, you may have a big mess on your hands when the temperature drops below the freezing mark. It is also important to make sure all fluid levels are topped off prior to a deep freeze.

Good Gas Tank Manners

If you keep your gas tank closer to empty instead of full, you could be in trouble, suggests Lucille Treganowan, the spokeswoman for Jiffy Lube and one of America's most trusted car care authorities. "By keeping more gas in the tank, you can help avoid the formation of condensation in the gas tank that occurs when temperatures fluctuate widely as they do during the winter months," she said. "This condensation drips down in the gas and can freeze and/or prevent the car from starting."

Look At Lines And Hoses

Cold weather can also cause lines, hoses and other parts to become brittle and break, causing some larger problems down the road. If you are unsure what to look for under the hood, take your vehicle to a convenient auto service center, such as Jiffy Lube. Along with changing the oil, following manufacturer's recommendations, they will check the level of other vital fluids, like antifreeze/coolant, transmission brake, differential oil, power steering and windshield washer. They will also check on the condition of such devices as belts and wiper blades.

Now that you have made sure that your engine will be on your side even if the weather isn't, it may be good to give it a good wax before you city begins using rock salt on the road. And during a trip to the supermarket, buy a bag of your own rock salt to keep in the trunk in case of an overnight sleet. You never know then it will come in handy.

Montessori School For Early Learning Receives NAEYC Accreditation

The Montessori School for Early Learning was recently granted re-accreditation by the National Association for the Education of Young Children (NAEYC).

This recognition has been achieved by approximately seven percent of early childhood programs nationwide -- some 8,138 programs as of Jan. 1, 2001, serving 722,009 children.

"We are extremely proud to be part of the NAEYC accredited programs," said Dominique Mouthon, director of the school, which is located inside Bethany Congregational Church, 18 Spear St. "We are additionally proud to be the first Montessori school in the South Shore to have been accredited twice by NAEYC."

The school serves children ranging in age from two years, nine months to age seven.

"The heart of NAEYC accreditation focuses on the child's experience," said Mouthon. "The process carefully considers all aspects of a program including health and safety, staffing, staff qualifications, and physical environment."

"The greatest emphasis is on the children's relationships with the staff and how the program helps each child grow and learn intellectually, physically, socially, and emotionally. All the criteria established by NAEYC are at the heart of the Montessori philosophy developed over 100 years ago."

NAEYC accreditation is a rigorous, voluntary process by which early childhood programs demonstrate that they meet national standards of excellence. Child care centers, preschools, kindergartens, and before and after school programs are eligible to seek NAEYC accreditation. Approximately 15,000 programs are engaged in seeking accreditation.

Programs seeking accreditation undergo an intensive self-study, collecting information from parents, teachers, administrators, and classroom observations. They receive an on-site visit, conducted by early childhood professionals especially trained by NAEYC, to validate their self-study results.

According to Mouthon, research supports the value of accreditation for children. Children's language skills and social skills especially benefit from the better quality found in NAEYC-accredited programs.

"These are critical areas for children's success in school as well as in life," said Mouthon.

Open Space Acquisition Topic Of QEN Meeting

Council President Daniel Raymondi is scheduled to attend the quarterly meeting of the Quincy Environmental Network Monday, Feb. 4 at 6:30 p.m. in the main conference room of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

General discussion will focus on the topic of open space acquisition in Quincy.

The public is encouraged to attend. For more information, call Gail MacDonald at (617) 773-5120 or visit the QEN website at venture "a welcome addition" to the downtown and good use of the property.

O' Sullivan told board members that renovation would take roughly four months and Manning added the restaurant hopes to be up and running by June.

The restaurant also received a Cabaret License which allows entertainment of "three pieces or less" on the premises.

Other Tuesday actions by the License Board included:

- The approval of a transfer of a Motor II Used Car License from Harvey Kertzman to Matthew L. Ward of Quincy Auto Sales, Inc., 451 Quincy Ave. The license permits space for nine used cars as well as two additional spaces for employee or customer parking.
- The acceptance of a

"withdrawal without prejudice" of a pinball/video license request by Quincy Market, 33 Washington St. Anwar Osmani, the store's manager, withdrew the store's request after Acting Police Chief William Falco and other board members voiced concerns about the license, citing the potential problem of crowds of middle school and high school students in the area.

24 Other Nominees For Sun 'Citizen Of The Year'

There were 24 other nominees for the Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year for 2001.

They are, in alphabetical order:

Paul Baharian for all the good work he has done for the City of Quincy and the elderly as executive director of 1000 Southern Artery.

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti who has initiated many new programs to assist and improve quality of life for many people in the community.

Joseph Brooker, commander of the Quincy Veterans Council and many other veterans groups — silently helping others in need and a good neighbor.

George Burke, "his heart is all Quincy."

Ray Cattaneo: role model for youth, American Legion baseball supporter, many youth activities and charities.

Betty DeCristofaro, a willing and gracious volunteer for such organizations as the USS Salem, the Maria Droste Agency and numerous other volunteer organizations.

Joseph Desmond who has served the City of Quincy for over four decades through leadership, generosity and selfless contributions in education, church and community.

Imam Talal Eid, tireless in his effort to help Americans understand the Islamic religion and to dispel prejudice.

Barbara Gilliland, one of Quincy's unsung ambassadors who has shared her love of Quincy with all who will listen.

Al Grazioso, president of the Quincy Youth Hockey Board of Directors, for his total commitment to a program that prepares young boys and girls for life.

Officer Robert Hanna, Quincy Police Department, who cares about children's safety.

Geoff Hennessy, director of the Quincy Track Club, for his years of volunteer service and dedication to the youth of Quincy.

Cathy Jacques, volunteer for the Germantown community for over 15 years and a member of the Quincy Citizens' Police Academy.

Tom Koch, a very hard working guy who works diligently to be helpful to all.

The late Francis J. LaPierre who spent a lifetime for the youth of Quincy, giving hundreds of girls and boys the opportunity to have fun playing baseball, hockey or skating.

Susan McKeon, an unsung hero, neighbor and friend to the families of children with disabilities in the City of Quincy.

Fr. Bob Monagle, who serves the city in many ways — the youth, elderly — over and above what is expected.

John Noonan, who as chairman of the Council on Aging, has done so very much for senior citizens and others.

William Phelan for "displaying the determination, courage, and will to stand up for what he believes in."

Uncle Sam Rounseville for his generosity and dedication to charities and for his love and dedication to this country.

Zaida Shaw for exemplifying "what it means to be a good citizen and a good American through the spirit of tolerance and volunteerism."

Joseph Shea, who provides a fairness attitude towards all decisions and issued related to the weekly council meetings.

Linda Stice, executive director of the Quincy Commission on the Family, who sincerely cares for the people she assists on a daily basis.

Anthony Wolowicz, a strong active member of the Robert I. Nickerson American Legion Post 382 in Squantum who has been involved in organizing special children's programs and a dedicated volunteer for veterans' activities.

Henry (Hank) Bradley Sun 'Citizen Of The Year'

Bahamas 9-year-old in 1993 who suffered third-degree burns over most of his body when his crepe paper costume caught fire at a church Christmas festival.

Bradley's close friend, John "Jake" Comer, American Legion past national commander and the latter's late wife, Elaine, happened to be in the Bahamas at the time.

The priest said the church told them about the boy and said he feared he might not survive.

Comer gave the priest Bradley's telephone number and told him to call. "If anyone can do something for him, this man can," Comer said.

The priest called. And Bradley went into action.

Bradley put Dr. Robert Sheridan of Quincy, a doctor at the Shriners Hospital for Children Burn Unit, in contact with a doctor in the Bahamas who said Claudius would die if not given the special treatment he needed.

Sheridan said they would take him at the Shriners Burn Unit if he could somehow get to Boston.

Bradley's daughter, Annette, a registered nurse at the hospital, had the telephone number of the Alleppo Temple headquarters in Tampa, Fla.

Bradley called there and told them of Claudius's plight. Would they pay for a medical equipped plane to fly him to Boston? Yes, they would and allocated $9,000 needed.

It was all accomplished in a couple of days. Comer and his wife were still in the Bahamas and on a bus when word came over the radio that Claudius was on a plane heading for Boston. The passengers cheered.

Bradley and Comer later raised $10,000 to provide air conditioning for the boy's home and school classroom because he had to wear a weighty rubber jobst to prevent heavy scarring while recovering from the severe burns.

Claudius, who recovered from his burns, later visited Bradley, Comer and Mayor James Sheets a year later with his mother, Dolly, and frolicked in the snow in front of City Hall — a rare experience for a boy from the Bahamas.

Bradley is chairman of the Shriners Carnival held since 1993 at the Nickerson Legion Post in Squantum for young patients and former patients and their families at the Shriners Burn Unit. It's a fun day for them held in cooperation with the American Legion and the Quincy Fire Department.

Bradley was chairman of the Quincy-to-Quincy, Ill. flood relief program that sent seven trailer loads of food, water pumps and other needed supplies and money to the flood ravaged sister city in 1993.

He has been director of the Quincy Veterans Department since 1990, working with veterans organizations to assist veterans and their families.

He coordinated the development of the VA Community Based Outpatient Clinic that opened at the Quincy Medical Center in July, 2000. Since then the clinic has served an estimated more than 1,000 veterans who no longer have to travel to Boston VA hospitals.

Bradley is a member of the American Cancer Society's South Regional Board of Directors and chairman of the Daffodil Day program to help raise funds in the battle against that disease.

Bradley even knows Santa Claus and the Easter Bunny personally.

A former police officer he has had Santa visit families of police officers, the grandchildren of residents at Christmas parties in senior facilities and hospitalized youngsters for 31 years. And for the past six years has made sure that Santa made it to Quincy in time for the Christmas parade.

He has had the Easter Bunny visit brain injured children at the Franciscan Hospital in Brighton.

"You get a wonderful feeling in those hospitals," he says "when you see the big smiles on these youngsters when they see Santa and the Easter Bunny coming to visit them."

He also has Santa visit the Alzheimer ward at the VA

Hospital in Bedford.

Bradley's military service spans 36 years — active and inactive — including the 8th Air Force Europe - 102nd Technical Fighter Wing in 1961-1962 during the Vietnam War era. He graduated from both the Army Basic and Senior Non-Commissioned Officer Academy.

He received the Meritorious Service Medal, Army Commendation Medal and Army Achievement Medal.

Now a member of the American Legion National Legislative Committee and editor of the Massachusetts Department's newspaper, The Legionnaire, he has served as National Executive Committee member, commander of the Milton Legion Post, Quincy Veterans Council, Thomas J. Fitzgerald VFW Post in South Boston, and past president Massachusetts Veterans Service Officers Association.

He is a member of the Redberry Knights of Columbus Council in Dorchester, Joseph Webb Masonic Lodge in Boston, Aleppo Shrine, and is an Eagle Scout, St. Ann's Troop, Dorchester.

Bradley was presented with the South Shore Chamber of Commerce Spirit Award for the "Quincy-to-Quincy" flood relief program and was the Quincy Jewish War Veterans "Citizen of the Year" in 1999.

As a police officer, he received the Milton American Legion Law and Order award for capturing a holdup suspect armed with a shotgun in a drugstore. He also received the American Legion Medal of Valor for apprehending another suspect carrying a shotgun in Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

The son of Helen Bradley and the late George Bradley of Dorchester, he is a graduate of Dorchester High School. He attended Quincy Junior College and UMass-Boston.

A resident of Quincy for 33 years, he and Rosemarie now live on Small St., North Quincy. In addition to Annette, a Quincy resident, they have another daughter, Helena Hood of Hull and consider son-in-law Peter Hood a son. They also have four grandchildren.

Something Special For Your Valentine!

Gurney's 'Love Letters' Feb. 5 At Crane Library

Belinda West and Ted Zalewski team up to present A.R. Gurney's Love Letters at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Square, Tuesday, Feb. 5, at 7:30 p.m.

Gurney, a popular and prolific playwright, resurrects a dying art form — letter writing — in this play whose entire plot is driven by letters.

West and Zalewski are best known for their one-person performances as historical characters. West portrays the beloved New England poet, Emily Dickinson, and Dorothy Quincy Hancock, wife of the famous signer of the Declaration of Independence. She has appeared in both roles at the library. Her work has been seen on PBS television and radio and at schools, museums, and special events.

Zalewski portrays President Teddy Roosevelt and Vincent Van Gogh's post-

Paramount Partners, LLC, Commercial Real Estate Service Company, Braintree, announces Maryrose Mirick has joined its staff as sales associate.

Mirick will be involved in all aspects of commercial real estate services for the South Shore area with a special focus on the City of Quincy. She most recently serves as executive director for Quincy Medical Center Foundation and Volunteers.

"I am very excited to join the professional team at Paramount Partners, LLC," Mirick said. "We are dedicated to the ethical practice of commercial real estate brokerage. Fund-raising for Quincy Medical Center gave me the opportunity to build both personal and professional relationships with business and political leaders in the South Shore community.

"I believe my previous 16 years of real estate experience and my knowledge of the business community will prove beneficial to both individuals and corporations with their real estate objectives."

Mirick is a member of the Rotary Club of Quincy, a board member for the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, a steering committee member for the Marie Curry Walk, and fund-raising committee member for Maria Droste Services.

She serves on the South Shore Chamber of Commerce's steering committee of the Women's Business Connection and is a member of both its Ambassadors Group and Tourism Committee. She has volunteered for the National Kidney Foundation, Habitat for Humanity, Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year committee and the Quincy Senior Citizen Visitation Program.

Mirick holds a degree in business. Born and raised in Quincy, she resides in Weymouth with her husband, Wayne, and daughters, Andrea and Jacquelyn.

First-Time Homebuyers Workshop At Citizens Bank Feb. 9, 16

Neighborhood Housing Services, an approved First-Time Homebuyer Counseling Agency, will hold an accredited and MHEA-certified First-Time Homebuyer's Workshop, in collaboration with Citizens Bank, Saturday, Feb. 9 and 16.

The workshop will be held at Citizens Bank, 1200

Hancock St., (lower level), Quincy, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Attendance at both workshops is mandatory to receive your homebuying certificate, which is required by most lenders to qualify for the many different mortgage options, such as the Mass Housing Finance Agency, Soft Second Programs, down payment and closing costs grants and other special first-time homebuyer financing options.

Neighborhood Housing Services is a non-profit organization dedicated to assisting first-time buyers through the homebuying process. The staff at NHS is unique in their approach to obtaining down payment and closing costs assistance as well as rehab grants for their clients, which are available throughout the entire South Shore area.

The agenda will be comprehensive and individualized. The focus will be on the many changing aspects of homebuying, including how to locate a property within budget, how to make an offer, and determining the best mortgage program.

Advanced registration is required and space is limited. A $10 refundable registration fee is required.

To register, call Debbie Edgerly at 617-770-2227, ext. 31.

Neighborhood Housing Services Budgeting, Credit Workshop Feb. 4

Neighborhood Housing Services will offer a free budgeting and credit workshop Monday, Feb. 4, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Germantown Neighborhood Center, 333 Palmer St., Germantown.

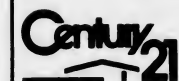

Childcare will be provided by the Germantown Neighborhood Center.

The focus will be on learning the basics of budgeting, developing good credit and consolidating credit cards and student loans.

Advanced registration is required.

For more information contact Debbie Edgerly at 617-770-2227, ext. 31.

SECONDS, ANYONE?

There has scarcely been a better time to purchase a second home. Since 1997, there has been a 10% rise in single-family second-home sales. This is due in large part to the 1997 tax law that allows sellers to reap tax-free gains of up to $500,000 per couple ($250,000 for singles) on the sale of a primary home. Thus, it enables those who trade down to use profits for a second home. The exclusion can be claimed every two years on the sale of a principal residence, which is defined as a place where you live more than half the year for two of the five calendar years prior to sale. This tax code favors those who move often.

This week's column highlights the tax incentives for purchasing a second home. ERA CENTRAL REAL ESTATE has the expertise and resources to meet all your real estate needs. We implement customized home searches designed to locate properties that will satisfy the specific requests of the buyers. We can direct buyers on legal services, mortgages, and house inspection services. Locally owned, we live here, work here, and raise our families here. For individualized and reliable real estate service, call us at (617) 328-1312. The office is located at 128 McGrath Highway.

HINT: Gains on the sale of a home above the $500,000 exclusion are taxable in the year the house is sold.

business and political leaders in the South Shore community.

"I believe my previous 16 years of real estate experience and my knowledge of the business community will prove beneficial to both individuals and corporations with their real estate objectives."

Mirick is a member of the Rotary Club of Quincy, a board member for the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, a steering committee member for the Marie Curie Walk, and fund-raising committee member for Maria Dioste Services.

She serves on the South Shore Chamber of Commerce's steering committee of the Women's Business Connection and is a member of both its Ambassadors Group and Tourism Committee. She has volunteered for the National Kidney Foundation, Habitat for Humanity, Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year committee and the Quincy Senior Citizen Visitation Program.

Mirick holds a degree in business. Born and raised in Quincy, she resides in Weymouth with her husband, Wayne, and daughters, Andrea and Jacquelyn.

First-Time Homebuyers Workshop At Citizens Bank Feb. 9, 16

Neighborhood Housing Services, an approved First-Time Homebuyer Counseling Agency, will hold an accredited and MHA-certified First-Time Homebuyer's Workshop, in collaboration with Citizens Bank, Saturday, Feb. 9 and 16.

The workshop will be held at Citizens Bank, 1200

Hancock St., (lower level), Quincy, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Attendance at both workshops is mandatory to receive your homebuying certificate, which is required by most lenders to qualify for the many different mortgage options, such as the Mass Housing Finance Agency, Soft Second Programs, down payment and closing costs grants and other special first-time homebuyer financing options.

Neighborhood Housing Services is a non-profit organization dedicated to assisting first-time buyers through the homebuying process. The staff at NHS is unique in their approach to obtaining down payment and closing costs assistance as well as rehab grants for their clients, which are available throughout the entire South Shore area.

The agenda will be comprehensive and individualized. The focus will be on the many changing aspects of homebuying, including how to locate a property within budget, how to make an offer, and determining the best mortgage program.

Advanced registration is required and space is limited. A $10 refundable registration fee is required.

To register, call Debbie Edgerly at 617-770-2227, ext. 31.

Neighborhood Housing Services Budgeting, Credit Workshop Feb. 4

Neighborhood Housing Services will offer a free budgeting and credit workshop Monday, Feb. 4, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Germantown Neighborhood Center, 333 Palmer St., Germantown.

Childcare will be provided by the Germantown Neighborhood Center.

The focus will be on learning the basics of budgeting, developing good credit and consolidating credit cards and student loans.

Advanced registration is required.

For more information contact Debbie Edgerly at 617-770-2227, ext. 31.

SECONDS, ANYONE?

There has scarcely been a better time to purchase a second home. Since 1997, there has been a 10% rise in single-family second-home sales. This is due in large part to the 1997 tax law that allows sellers to reap tax-free gains of up to $500,000 per couple ($250,000 for singles) on the sale of a primary home. Thus, it enables those who trade down to use profits for a second home. The exclusion can be claimed every two years on the sale of a principal residence, which is defined as a place where you live more than half the year for two of the five calendar years prior to sale. This tax code favors those who move often.

This week's column highlights the tax incentives for purchasing a second home. ERA CENTRAL REAL ESTATE has the expertise and resources to meet all your real estate needs. We implement customized home searches designed to locate properties that will satisfy the specific requests of the buyers. We can direct buyers on legal services, mortgages, and house inspection services. Locally owned, we live here, work here, and raise our families here. For individualized and reliable real estate service, call us at (617) 328-1312. The office is located at 128 McGrath Highway.

HINT: Gains on the sale of a home above the $500,000 exclusion are taxable in the year the house is sold.

To Keep Warm, Know Your Home's 'Heating IQ'

(HIT) — To keep your home warm this winter, you need to improve your house's "Heating IQ."

Whole-house efficiency is the key, according to Edison Electric Institute, to getting the most value from your energy dollars. You will also help protect the planet's environment.

The following four steps can help you improve your home's heating IQ:

Step 1: Tighten your home's thermal envelope.

This is a technical term for everything that separates the inside from the outside: roof, windows, walls, doors and floors over crawl spaces. You can save money by stopping or slowing down air leaks and drafts here. Adequate insulation and effective caulking and weather-stripping are essential.

Step 2: Choose high-efficiency electric appliances. When buying new appliances, or replacing old ones, it pays to buy the most efficient equipment you can afford, especially for home cooling, heating and water heating.

Step 3: Take control of your energy use. Even simple things like turning off lights when they're not needed can save energy. A programmable thermostat is another smart way to control the temperature in your home.

Step 4: Use your electric utility company as a resource. They can give you free information and advice about getting more value from your electricity bill. Check out their Web site to see what they have to offer.

Looking To Improve Your Water?

(HIT) — Water. You can't live without it, yet sometimes you wonder how you live with it. Most complaints about water surround its taste, odor, purity, or all of the above.

"Once upon a time it was taken for granted that well and city water was high quality and safe," explained Don Brockley, president of St. Paul, Minn.-based EcoWater Systems, Inc. "Unfortunately, new evidence is showing that may simply not be the case. Improper garbage disposal, industrial waste, chemical runoff from fields, and faulty septic and storage tanks over the years are just a few reasons why safe drinking water should not be taken for granted."

Reverse Osmosis Systems

Reverse osmosis (RO) is the most convenient and effective method of improving drinking water. In addition to improving taste and odor, the RO system removes up to 99 percent of chlorine, sediment, nitrates, lead, mercury and other contaminants. RO is a filtration technology that separates water from the impurities. The treated water passes through a membrane, leaving the impurities behind. Often times, bottled water is filtered using this same process. Installing an RO system provides the same quality water without the inconvenience or ongoing cost. The RO system resides under your sink and is connected to a separate faucet to run automatically and provide you with a constant supply of high quality, good-tasting water.

Distillers

Distillation is one of the most effective ways to purify water, but it is also the most time-intensive. Distillers are often purchased as stand-alone units — much like an extra large coffeepot. Water is poured into the appliance and the water is boiled in the first stage of the distillation process, killing bacteria, viruses and cysts. Next, the water is turned into steam to separate out the minerals, lead, bacteria, nitrates and other contaminants. In the final stage of the process, the steam is condensed back into water, and utilizing a carbon filter, removes as much as 99 percent of the tap water impurities.

Filter Systems

There are many different types of filtering systems available to consumers, most of which utilize activated carbon. The carbon attracts water contaminants, which then adhere to the carbon surfaces. Carbon filters are commonly used to remove unpleasant tastes and odors, as well as many hazardous chemicals. Carbon filters are often used in conjunction with other water treatment methods.

Faucet Filters: This system is easy to install directly on your kitchen faucet, requiring no counter space. It can improve drinking water taste and reduces chlorine and lead content. The filter cartridge lasts about four months.

Countertop Filter: The countertop device sets on your counter near the faucet, providing water on demand. Much like other filters, it improves drinking water taste and reduces the amount of chlorine in the water. Filters on countertop systems last approximately six months.

Undersink Filter: A common choice of consumers with limited counter space, the undersink filter is hidden from view and has a special drinking water faucet that is installed next to the main faucet. This filtering system improves taste and odors and can be customized to address specific water concerns.

If you're looking to improve your water quality, start with having your water analyzed to determine your needs. For more information on water impurities, water analyzing options, or products and methods of treating water, visit www.ecowater.com. St. Paul, Minn.-based EcoWater Systems, Inc. is the world's largest manufacturer of residential water treatment systems.

What You Should Know About Bike Safety

Everyone knows that once you learn how to ride a bike you never forget it. It's too bad, actually often tragic, that everyone doesn't know that you should never forget to wear a helmet while riding a bike.

Bicycling can be dangerous, even deadly. Last year 580,000 people received emergency room treatment for bicycle injury. Each year 1,000 people die from bicycle-related injuries, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Helmets are especially crucial for children who fall off their bikes, get hit by cars, crash into other riders and otherwise are more likely to take a tumble than older riders.

Children under 15 years old sustain the highest injury and death rates among bicycle riders. Far too often the injuries are the worst kind. Eighty percent of children who suffer multiple injuries sustain brain injuries.

Some people believe that helmets are too clunky, heavy, hot, and don't look stylish when riding. Not so. Today's helmets are sleek, lightweight and lined with ventilation holes. Shaped like an oval turtle shell, they fit comfortably on the head. Best of all, today's offer vital protection for the brain. The hard shell gives on impact. A second line of defense for the brain is the soft but durable interior liner.

It's a proven fact that helmets on children are often the difference between a fall that results in a scraped knee and a fall that causes a fatal blow to the brain. Fatal injuries are 20 times more likely when helmets are not worn.

"I cannot emphasize enough how important it is for children to wear helmets while riding a bike," says neurosurgeon Ronald Warnick, M.D., of Cincinnati, Ohio, a member of the American Association of Neurological Surgeons. "Allowing your child to ride without a helmet may result in severe head injury that will change you and your child's life forever. Parents need to serve as role models and consistently wear helmets themselves."

While wearing a helmet is crucial, a helmet itself is not enough to ensure safety. The helmet must meet safety standards. And children must learn to ride safely to maximize the chances of a fall. Wearing a helmet can provide a false sense of security if a rider has a substandard helmet or ignores safe riding techniques. It is important that riders wear the helmet correctly with a snug fit. The helmet should also offer substantial coverage of the forehead.

Since 1999, all bike helmets manufactured or imported in the United States must be approved by the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC). Helmets approved by CPSC carry a sticker of approval. Even so, some helmets with a CPSC approval sticker have later been recalled by manufacturers after failing random tests by consumer advocates or the CPSC. For more information on recalls, visit the Web site of the Bicycle Helmet Safety Institute (www.helmets.org).

Bicyclists also must follow basic safety rules to protect themselves against injury. A reckless rider, even one wearing a helmet, is asking for trouble. Be sure to use a bicycle that is the right size. Concentrate on riding and staying in control and use hand signals for turns. Make sure the handlebars, pedals, brakes and chains are in good working order. In addition, remember to wear bright colored clothing or jackets with reflector strips.

Bike riding is meant to be fun and healthy, not an occasion for injury and death. Ride cautiously while on the bike — strap on a helmet before you start pedaling.

For more information on bike safety, visit the Web site for Think First, National Injury Prevention Foundation (www.thinkfirst.org), or for more information on traumatic head injury, visit the American Association of Neurological Surgeons' Web site (www.aasn.org).

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

GETTING AN EARLY START
Parents can start their children on an oral health regimen even before their primary ("baby") teeth erupt. Take a clean, damp gauze pad and gently wipe baby's gums. This will remove any residual milk, formula, and fruit juices from the mouth. These liquids contain sugars upon which bacteria feed. They then produce acids that attack teeth. For this reason, do not allow your baby to fall asleep with a bottle of juice or formula in his or her mouth. Parents should start brushing their children's teeth with a soft-bristled toothbrush and a pea-sized amount of toothpaste as soon as the first tooth appears. Flossing should start when two teeth have erupted next to each other to prevent cavities between teeth.

We deliver a high level of quality dental care. Our recommendations for dental treatment are always in the best interest of the patient. All the members of our staff are dedicated to serving you — we will be happy to answer any questions you may have. Our concern is your comfort and confidence — our goal is to help preserve your natural teeth for a lifetime. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We have the knowledge, experience, and resources for quality dental care in a warm and friendly environment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we stress preventive dentistry for the entire family. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com. P.S. Review your baby's fluoride intake with a dentist to ensure that it is adequate, and start dental visits by a child's first birthday.

Quincy's Firepower Too Much For North

By CHRIS POISSON

The packed house at Quincy Youth Arena last Saturday night saw a mismatch between the two local high school hockey teams.

Undermanned by five starters, who were out for disciplinary reasons, North Quincy put forth a gallant effort but simply did not have the firepower, or manpower, to compete against a powerful Quincy club.

The Presidents blew open a 1-0 game with four second-period goals to run away with an 8-2 victory, taking the season series, 1-0-1, to claim city bragging rights. The two teams skated to a hard-fought, 3-3 tie in the first meeting on Jan. 2.

"We looked at it as a two-game championship," said Quincy head coach Bob Sylvia. "I'm not caught up in the city championship, but the kids get caught up in that. I am caught up in next Wednesday night against Whitman-Hanson. That's the championship."

Indeed, Quincy (9-1-3 overall, 6-1-2 Atlantic Coast League) traveled to Whitman-Hanson Wednesday night in a game that mostly like decided the league championship. If the Presidents won, they at the very least share the title providing they win their final two league games.

"If we win, we're going to get a piece of it, assuming we can beat Nauset and Dennis-Yarmouth," Sylvia said following the win over North Quincy.

Meanwhile, North Quincy (4-7-2) has stumbled across some tough times, having lost four straight games. Where once postseason hopes shined bright, they've become dark and gloomy in recent weeks.

Without five of its top players, head coach Bob Doyle praised the effort of the younger kids against the stronger and more skilled Presidents.

"I want to pay tribute to the young kids I had in that locker room tonight," Doyle said. "There was a lot of heart and character out there. The score was not indicative of the effort that I thought our hockey team gave."

BOYS' ICE HOCKEY

"We have some serious disciplinary problems that have the team in a complete upheaval. But the coaching staff is trying their best to keep things under control, stay the course and keep working hard and let the chips fall where they may."

"It gives some of the younger kids an opportunity to get some ice time. I think it's important because those are the kids that are working hard and complying with the rules. So why not reward them with the ice time. If we take our lumps, hopefully it is just going to make my program stronger down the road."

The Red Raiders hung with Quincy in the first frame. At 4:15, North Quincy had a great chance to get on the board first. Senior captain Joe Fitzpatrick rushed in for a breakaway, but goalie Shaun Flaherty turned away his bid with a great save.

Quincy wound up striking first. At 8:35, senior Dave Germain intercepted a pass in North Quincy's end and broke in alone and beat goalie Bruce Maggio top shelf.

In the middle frame, Maggio made a sensational, right-pad save on sophomore Matt Germain's breakaway bid in the opening seconds. And that was the only thing that seemed to go the Red Raiders' way.

Less than a minute later, senior Bill McKeon knocked home a perfect pass from Dave Germain at the left doorstep for a 2-0 lead. At 4:48, Dave Germain banged home his own rebound for his second goal of the night and a 3-0 cushion.

Quincy increased its lead to 4-0 when senior Kevin Patten skated into the high slot and fired a blistering puck past Maggio at 12:32.

North Quincy, though, answered 22 seconds later on junior Tim Coughlin's breakaway goal. Nearly 30 seconds later, Quincy got the goal back when Patten netted his second of the game in a scramble in front of the net to make it 5-1.

"Quincy got its lead in the second period and it kind of snowballed and we unraveled," Doyle said.

Doyle pulled Maggio before the start of the third. Not because of his play, but because he wanted to give a younger guy, JV goalie John O'Driscoll, some experience between the pipes on the varsity level.

"I'm extremely pleased with Bruce Maggio," Doyle said. "He's been a backbone for this team. I wanted to get John some varsity ice time. He's been at all the morning practices. He's basically been the goalie for three teams, doing unbelievable work. Certainly those goals weren't Bruce's fault. He's a tremendous sportsman, teamwork-oriented type of kid. I went over and thanked him for understanding where I was coming from."

In the third, junior Liam Powers, senior Bryan Scott and Matt Germain added goals to close out the scoring. Sophomore defenseman Scott Kelley scored North Quincy's other goal. In all, 10 different Presidents cracked the scoring column with either a goal or an assist.

"We got a balanced attack," Sylvia said. "It wasn't a case of individuals. You could look at all three lines. That's what we need at this stage of the game. Where we're trying to go, we need three lines humming, five defensemen and hot goaltending."

North Quincy Senior Nets Milestone For Phil McGillicuddy, A Long Way To 1,000 Points

By CHRIS POISSON

From a skinny freshman whose first shot was an airball to a bulked senior with 1,000 career points, Phil McGillicuddy has come along way in the past four years.

And the North Quincy High School standout deserves everything he has attained in his career, including last Friday night's memorable milestone.

McGillicuddy scored 19 points to finish with exactly 1,000, becoming just the fourth male athlete in school history to reach that plateau.

He joins the four-digit club that includes Doug Grutchfield, Sean Donovan and Brian Ross, a 1998 graduate who is now a senior on the Boston College hoops team.

"It's unbelievable because he's only the fourth male athlete in the school to do it," said head coach Ted Stevenson. "We've had two girls do it. It's quite an accomplishment. Well deserved. He worked very hard to get to where he is."

The Red Raiders lost last Friday's game to Falmouth, 53-47. Although he had success, McGillicuddy is the type of kid that puts the team first and individual achievements second.

"It feels good to get it out of the way," McGillicuddy said following the game. "It's a tough loss, though. It would've been better if we could've won."

After scoring 10 points in the first 16 minutes, McGillicuddy came out in the second half and drained a 3-pointer and scored a layup in the first minute to move within four points of 1,000.

With 10:59 remaining in the game, McGillicuddy drove to the hoop and drained his patented pull-up jumper near the elbow to close within two.

On North Quincy's next trip down the floor, he pulled up in almost the exact same spot and the ball had the makings of 1,000 but cruelly rimmed in and out. The crowd, anticipating the special moment, collectively sighed.

Nearly two and a half minutes later, McGillicuddy fulfilled the fans' wishes. After his jumper in the paint bounced off the iron, McGillicuddy attacked the glass, grabbed the rebound and laid the ball back in for points 999 and 1,000.

"I was unsure," said McGillicuddy when asked if he knew right away if he had scored his 1,000th point. "I heard the crowd going crazy after I missed the shot so I said, 'Maybe I need two more points.' When I heard the fans go wild I knew. It felt good. It was a rush."

McGillicuddy was serenaded with a standing ovation as the game came to a brief stop to recognize his accomplishment. The students in one section chanted his name, while another section behind the North Quincy bench raised a home-made banner congratulating him.

Unfortunately, those were McGillicuddy's final points that night and the rest of the team scored only five more en route to the heart-breaking loss. But with the milestone finally behind him, McGillicuddy and his teammates can now focus on the real task—getting three wins in their final seven games to reach the state tournament, a place the seniors have never been.

Whether McGillicuddy can help his team get there or not, he will have had enjoyed an outstanding career on Hancock Street. He's being looked at by a number of colleges and he'll most likely land a full ride to continue his career and education.

And with a handful of scouts at every game, you'd think he'd feel the pressure every time he touched the ball. "No, I don't even notice that they're in the stands until after the game," he said.

He never seems rattled. He plays calm, cool and collected. Maybe that comes from four years of varsity experience, having started every game since he first appeared at North Quincy.

"I don't think he has ever not started a game," said Stevenson, who could tell McGillicuddy was going to be a good one when he first saw him at his camp about seven to eight years ago.

Since his arrival, McGillicuddy has seen his scoring average rise from 10 points per game as a freshman to 14 as a sophomore to 17 as a junior to almost 20 this season, despite constant double teams.

"He was a skinny, little freshman when he came up," Stevenson said. "He realized after his sophomore year that he wasn't going to be able to do anything if he didn't get stronger, and he went out and did the right thing in the gym."

"He deserves what he gets. He's not only a great basketball player, he's really an accomplished kid. He's a great kid. He's one of the nicest kids I've ever coached. You won't hear a bad word said about him."

"He did it."

And it's something he'll remember for the rest of his life. But what about his first basket?

"I don't remember my first basket, but I remember my first shot was an airball," he said. "I remember that. It was against Charlestown. That was tough."

North Girls Edge Falmouth

By CHRIS POISSON

If there were a couple of more seconds on the clock last Friday night, Falmouth's Shanna Litterhurst would've had the game of her life against the North Quincy High School girls' basketball team.

Litterhurst scored nine of her game-high 20 points in the final minute, but it wasn't enough as the Red Raiders prevailed, 48-47, on the road to move within one win of clinching a spot in the state tournament.

North Quincy (9-3 overall, 7-2 Old Colony League) traveled to Bridgewater-Raynham (11-2, 8-1) Tuesday for its biggest game of the season to date. A win and not only does it qualify for the tourney, but it moves into first place having beaten the Trojans in the first meeting. North Quincy hosts Barnstable tomorrow (Friday) night at 6:30.

North Quincy held a 20-17 lead at halftime against Falmouth, but neither team could pull away from one another in the second half. There were four lead changes alone in the final minute.

With 13 seconds left, senior co-captain Lauren Sleeth hit two foul shots to put North Quincy ahead, 47-45. Sleeth turned in a strong game with 16 points, six rebounds and two steals.

The Clippers got the ball to Litterhurst, who nailed a jumper with six seconds left to even the game and in all likelihood send it into the extra session.

Except the Clippers committed a foolish foul against junior Lauren Kalil as she dribbled the ball to midcourt. Kalil missed the front end, but sank the second free throw for the go-ahead point.

Red Raiders Go Flat, Fall To Falmouth 53-47

By CHRIS POISSON

It appeared after the opening minute of the second half last Friday night, the North Quincy High School boys' basketball team earning a win and star Phil McGillicuddy netting his 1,000th career point would go hand in hand.

McGillicuddy, who entered the game with 981 points, scored 10 in the first half as the Red Raiders built a 32-23 lead over Falmouth. After the break, the senior tri-captain quickly drained a 3-pointer and scored a layup, handing his team a comfortable 14-point cushion while pulling within four of the magic milestone.

Like the Lennox Lewis-Mike Tyson press conference, however, there was a shocking turn of events.

North Quincy, which was shooting 40 percent, hit just three of its next 27 shots, a frigid 11-percent performance, before John O'Connell netted a trey with three seconds left, as the home team fell, 53-47.

"We just didn't play a very good second half," said head coach Ted Stevenson. "We only scored 15 points and we had five of those in the first minute and we scored a three at the end of the game, so that means we scored seven points the rest of the half. We stopped functioning on offense."

Four of those seven points, though, belonged to McGillicuddy, who scored 19 to finish with exactly 1,000. The big hoop came with 7:37 left in the game when he followed up his own missed shot, sending the crowd into a frenzy.

"It was a great night because Phil got his 1,000th point," Stevenson said.

BOYS' BASKETBALL

Still, McGillicuddy, who has never played a game in the tournament, would have surely traded that basket for a win. North Quincy (7-6 overall, 4-5 Old Colony League) has now dropped two straight and three of its last four. After starting out 6-3, there is a sense of urgency for the final seven games of the season.

"We have to straighten something out real quick," Stevenson said. "We play a good half and then a bad half. Or we play a bad half and then we come back with a good half. We've been doing this all year."

North Quincy hosted Bridgewater-Raynham Tuesday and tomorrow (Friday) night it travels to OCL front-runner Barnstable (13-1, 9-0).

While North Quincy entered a deep freeze, Falmouth began to heat up, especially junior guard Bill Perry. Perry finished with 27 points, 19 of those in the final 11:37 as the Clippers staged their rally.

Perry drained a jumper to make it 38-28. After both teams exchanged baskets, he single-handedly got Falmouth back into the game, burring back-to-back 3-pointers and scoring a layup after a steal to make 40-38.

"He's the third leading scorer in the league," Stevenson said. "Him and Phil have been battling for the third spot all year. He's a very good player. We knew it. We had contained him in the first half and he got off on us a little bit in the second half."

McGillicuddy reached his plateau on the next possession. The game stopped for a moment to honor his achievement, as the crowd chanted "Phil, Phil, Phil" and raised a home-made banner congratulating him.

With the fans, particularly the student body, pumped up, reminiscent of the "The Pound" days in the early '90s, North Quincy simply deflated. It hit just two of its final 11 shots and had three turnovers, two at the worst time possible.

After Stephen Brown scored with about three minutes left to hand Falmouth a 45-44 advantage — its first lead since it was ahead 17-15 with 5:56 in the first half — Perry came up with a steal that led to a free throw and another steal that led to a swooping layup to ice the game.

Asked if the team was somehow affected by McGillicuddy's individual moment, Stevenson quickly retorted that as a reason.

"No, I just think we stopped making shots that we normally make," he said. "We got a little too complacent, and I'll take the blame for that."

In the first half, North Quincy held a 23-17 lead with about three minutes left but Falmouth pulled within one at 24-23. The Red Raiders, though, responded with a flurry to close out the half.

Senior Matt Donovan sank a 3-pointer. McGillicuddy scored a layup off a steal and senior Adam O'Hara added a three-point play when he was fouled after putting back a missed shot.

AROUND AND ABOUT

Automobile experts place particular importance on the patches where rubber meets the road. With this in mind, check your vehicle's tire pressure (including the spare) once a month and before long trips while the tires are cold. Under-inflation is the leading cause of tire failure. It may cause rapid and irregular wear and sudden tire destruction, and may result in loss of vehicle control. While checking air pressure, inspect tires and wheels for damage, bulges, cracks, cuts, splits, penetrations, and abnormal wear. Some tire damage is not visible. A vibration or ride disturbance may be the only indication of tire damage. When such symptoms arise, immediately reduce speed, use your spare, and have a technician check for damage.

Your safety and comfort is our concern. Make sure your car's tires are properly inflated, whether it is owned or leased. LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO invites your inquiries about most anything connected with the care of your car. Our ASE Certified technicians are highly skilled so they can do everything necessary to keep your car in excellent and safe running condition. We're here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). Hours: Mon.-Fri. 8am-5pm, Sat. 7am-5pm, Sun. 9am-5pm. We're "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

HINT: Sometimes front and rear tires have different inflation pressures, so adjust air pressure after rotation.

Presidents Bounce Whitman-Hanson

Every thing seems to be just fine these days. The weather has been nice. The Patriots are in the Super Bowl. And the Quincy High School boys' basketball won another game.

With a week off between matches, the well-rested Presidents hosted a strong Whitman-Hanson team last Friday night and triumphed, 52-40, for their second win of the season.

After starting the year with seven straight losses, Quincy has turned things around of late. It notched its first win of the season against Randolph several weeks ago and then played well in a loss to Plymouth North on Jan. 18.

Quincy (2-8 overall, 2-5 Atlantic Coast League) traveled to Dennis-Yarmouth Tuesday and tomorrow (Friday) night it remains on the Cape to battle ACL front-runner Nauset.

Although a tournament berth seems out of the question, it's actually not that far-fetched.

"I told them, 'You have to be beaten two more times to be eliminated,'" said head coach John Franceschini. "We have to treat each game as a separate entity. To look ahead, that will hurt you. The kids really understand that. And the season shortens up. There are only three weeks left."

In the first meeting, the Presidents had their best offensive outing of the season, but they hit a dry spell late in the game as they fell to the Panthers, 69-63, on the road.

Whitman-Hanson, powered by Sean Conover and Paul Gravalles, utilized its size advantage to dominate the paint with easy scoring and costly offensive rebounds.

This time around, senior co-captains Mike Lorenzano and Adam Vecchione out-muscled the Panthers' big boys and controlled the boards. Conover, the league's leading scorer with 20.5 points per game, was held to a quiet 16 points.

"We did a super job limiting their second shots," Franceschini said. "They're much bigger than us up front and we took away their offensive rebounds that hurt us in the first game."

Quincy also forced 18 turnovers, which led to some easy points in transition. But that type of defensive effort is nothing new for the Presidents; they've been doing that for the past couple of years.

An improved offense (i.e. better shot selection) has culminated in their recent success. Junior Matt Ramponi led the way with 20 points and junior Anthony Boyle scored 14 points and grabbed 12 rebounds.

"The biggest difference is we're shooting the ball well," Franceschini said. "We're just shooting with a lot more confidence."

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) The changes you've waited to see in your work situation might not be happening quite as quickly as you hoped. Although the pace is slow, it's ongoing. Expect to hear news soon.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You should be feeling very proud of the fine effort you've made to get that important project done. Now take some time out to celebrate with family and friends. You've earned it.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You're close to reaching your objectives. That's the good news. But be careful: Your aspects show lots of potential distractions looming. Stay focused and keep your eyes fixed on your goals.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Be careful not to let that suspicious Cancerian mind create a problem where none exists. What you might believe is an act of betrayal could be nothing more than a misunderstanding.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your Lion's heart overflows with self-confidence. All you need to do is tap into it, and you'll be able to handle any change that must be made regarding that recent surprise development.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) The need to watch what you say becomes increasingly crucial this week. Be as temperate as you can with your comments and avoid arguments for the sake of controversy.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A longtime family problem presents new demands. But this time, you won't have to go it alone: Someone else is asking to help share your responsibilities. Let it happen.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A period of feeling vulnerable is about to give way to a stronger, more self-confident aspect. Use this new strength to reaffirm promises you've made to others and yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A creative dilemma stalls your progress. Instead of letting it raise your ire, use the time to re-examine your aims and, perhaps, come up with a new target.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Your nimble will finds a way for you to work out those newly emerged problems plaguing your new project. Stay with it. The results will be well worth your efforts.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You might feel overwhelmed at having to decide which new opportunity you should follow. Best advice: Check them all out and see which offers what you really want.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Continue to tread water before you even consider plunging into something that never seemed quite right. Some facts will soon emerge that can help you make a decision.

YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK: You are a natural-born peacemaker. You value truth and have little patience with those who lie to you for their own purposes.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Valentine's Day is for children, lovers and romantics. Well, essentially, yes, but when it comes to affairs of the heart, everyone is included.

Valentines need not be expensive. A happy note written in your own handwriting... a telephone call to someone who might not otherwise receive a call.

Some people find it hard to say "I love you," but on Valentine's Day they express that sentiment with special remembrances or gifts. It is also a day that "mushy" sentiments on brightly colored paper are not really taken seriously (i.e. Valentines exchanged by children at school). There, the important thing is the number of valentines received, not the sentiment. As people mature, the sentiment becomes more important than the number.

It takes only a little time to send a valentine, or a note, or to make a telephone call to someone, especially someone who is a little "out of circulation" these days. A little surprise gift will make that someone feel special, and you'll feel good too!

Cites Potential Problems Taxpayers Assn. Questions Release Of Tax Bills

Alan H. Cousin, president of the Quincy Taxpayers' Association, is questioning why third-quarter tax bills were issued when, he says, city tax officials should have known they had no authority to issue them. "You don't just push a button and watch tax bills go out," Cousin said. "It takes time to print them, verify them, prepare them for mailing, and send them out. Is it reasonable to suppose that during all that process, no one realized the city had no legal authority to issue those bills?

"As a result of this error, the least damaging result is that the city will have to pay to send out new bills when it actually has the authority to issue them. But there could be bigger problems than that. Taxpayers are being notified, after a fashion, that those bills are not actually due. But most tax bills are paid through banks and mortgage companies. Are the banks and mortgage companies being notified that those bill's aren't due? It doesn't sound like it; it sounds like quite the contrary."

Cousin noted that over the summer former Mayor James Sheets had tried to reassure people that tax bills would go out on time, by Dec. 31, so that the city would not have to borrow $20 million for ongoing expenses.

"Now," Cousin said, "we are told that the city will not need to borrow that money, even though proper third-quarter tax bills have not gone out. Of course not -- because improper bills did go out, and the city is going to get most of the money!"

Cousin also called for the city to find a way to let taxpayers know how much they need to set aside in anticipation of the fourth-quarter "actual" bill.

"To their credit, Councilors Gregory Hanley and Joseph Newton both said on Dec. 17 that they wanted to be sure their constituents had some way to plan for the whopping tax bill in the fourth quarter. Now is the time to act. Even if Quincy's figures have not been formally approved, the board of assessors should be required to send taxpayers an advisory as to how much their assessments might rise, and what effect those increased assessments might have on individual tax bills given current or changed tax rates."

Four New Faces Among City Hall Appointments

Four new appointees have been added to Mayor William Phelan's administration, three of whom were sworn in Monday in the mayor's office at City Hall along with a number of existing department heads.

Roberta Kety, a former director of Human Resources at Harbridge House and most recently a Norfolk County Assistant District Attorney, was sworn in as the new director of Personnel, replacing Kevin Madden. Kety holds an M.S.M. degree with a concentration in human resources management and human service administration from Lesley College Graduate School of Management as well as a law degree from New England School of Law. She brings over 12 years of personnel experience to the position.

Stephen J. Roche, at attorney for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, was sworn in as Assistant City Solicitor.

Roche replaces James Timmins, a move Phelan said was not a reflection on Timmins' talents or quali-

Over Fr. Graham Allegation, Removal

Disbelief At St. Joseph's Church

Parishioners at St. Joseph's Church in Quincy point are still deep in disbelief.

As are many others in the city.

Fr. Daniel M. Graham, 57, was suddenly removed by the Boston Archdiocese Saturday as pastor on a single allegation of child abuse reportedly dating back 20 years or more.

Fr. Graham, who was ordained in 1970, had also been vicar of Catholic parishes in Quincy, Braintree, Milton and Randolph.

Also removed was Fr. Paul J. Finegan, 57, pastor of St. Bernadette's Church in Randolph. The archdiocese said several allegations of sexual misconduct with minors were made against him. There were no details given.

The archdiocese has submitted to district attorneys names of priests accused of sexually abusing minors during the last 40 years.

But information sought from the archdiocese by the office of Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William Keating had yet to be received as The Sun went to press.

Spokesman David Traub told The Sun:

"We have received the names of seven from the archdiocese, plus three more.

"We are asking for additional information." (Con't On Page 10)

Dip Into Rainy Day Fund On 6-3 vote

Council OKs $2.5 Million To Balance City Books

By CRAIG SALTERS

The City Council voted Monday night to appropriate $2.5 million from the city's Stabilization Fund, or so-called "Rainy Day Fund," to balance the books for Fiscal Year 2002.

The transfer, which amounts to roughly half of the funds available in the account, allows the city to move forward on the delayed state certification of its financial figures and the setting of actual tax rates for upcoming fourth quarter bills.

The city's shortfall in revenue was attributed to the loss of $1.6 million in funds originally anticipated from the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA) and a roughly $400,000 decrease in funds anticipated from state aid.

Marion Fantucchio, chairwoman of the Board of Assessors, urged councillors to act quickly on the matter, explaining that the transfer was necessary for the state to certify the city's financial figures, thereby creating a due date for third quarter preliminary tax bills and enabling the city to set the tax rates, possibly by the first week in March.

"We need to vote for this tonight in order to set the tax rate," agreed Councillor Timothy Cahill, chairman of the Finance Committee. "It's the fiscally prudent thing to do."

Cahill voted in favor of the transfer as did five other councillors: Bryan Connolly, Kevin Coughlin, Doug Gutro, Joseph Finn, and Frank McCauley.

Voting against the transfer were Council President Daniel Raymond and councillors Gregory Hanley and Joseph Newton.

"I don't feel comfortable with this," said Hanley, whose motion to refer the matter to the Finance Committee was defeated. "I just don't want to rubber stamp

Former Kemper Insurance Building Sells For $17.5M

The former Kemper Insurance Co. building at 150 Newport Ave., Quincy, has been sold for $17.5 million. Norfolk County Register of Deeds Paul Harold said the purchase is one of the city's largest real estate transactions.

CQW Associates, L.P., a limited partnership in Georgia, sold it Jan. 31 to 150 Newport Ave. Corporation, a Delaware corporation with offices at 101 Arch St., Boston.

Coughlin Resolve Seeks Drainage Hearings

Citing a lengthening history of storm water and wastewater drain deterioration that has led to numerous problems for some Ward 3 residents, Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin has called for the Public Works Committee of the City Council to hold a public hearing on wastewater and drainage projects under study and design in the ward.

Specifically, a resolve authored by Coughlin and referred to the Public Works Committee at Monday night's City Council meeting calls for representatives of the engineering firms of Weston & Sampson of Peabody and Beta Engineering of Norwood to be requested to attend such a hearing and make presentations concerning the status of The North Quincy Lateral Sewer Improvements and The Northwest Quincy Drainage Project, respectively.

No dates have been set for a public hearing. Councillor Joseph Finn serves as chairman of the Public Works Committee.

"The purpose of conducting this public hearing is to inform the council and the residents relative to the current status of these projects including identifiable funding and to receive community input regarding the impact of the underlying conditions which necessitate the expedient completion of these projects," said Coughlin, noting that some residents in areas surrounding "The Bog" as well as on Brook, Arlington, Division, John Streets and others have reportedly suffered for years with basement flooding of storm water and sewerage.

Additionally, Coughlin said, the breaks and fissures in the piping can lead to cross-contamination of the storm water that flows into "The Bog," the Neponset River Estuary, and Wollaston Beach as well as contamination of groundwater.

"Bacterial testing results support that this is both a health and environmental concern that must be addressed," Coughlin said. "We need to explore and tap into any state or federal funding programs that are available."

"While we are repairing and replacing the pipes that are most proximate to Wollaston Beach we can't forget the pipes upstream, so to speak, that feed into those pipes. The infrastructure that exists below the streets is something we don't think about until it's not working."

cations but rather a "policy change" making the position more of a full-time job.

Roche, a lifelong Quincy resident, is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts at Boston and Suffolk Law School. Roche, the mayor noted, brings a strong background in contract consulting and real estate to the assistant solicitor's position.

Jolanta Briffett joins the administration as assessor, replacing James Papile. Briffett, an eight-year resident of Quincy, comes to the assessors' department directly from City View Real Estate where she was employed for seven years.

The fourth new addition made was Marie Brinkman who will serve as the new benefits coordinator. Brinkman, a Houghton Neck native, was most recently a paralegal in a local Quincy law firm and was formerly employed at Riley & Reilly Insurance Company.

Brinkman was not present at Monday's swearing-in ceremony but will be sworn in at a later date by City Clerk Joseph Shea.

Among the existing mayor appointees that Phelan chose to hire were: Charles Phelan, Information Technology; M. Jane Gallahue, Health Commissioner; Barry Welch, Recreation; Thomas Clashy, Council on Aging; Walter White, Inspection Services; James Chicino, Treasurer; Alfred Grazioso Jr., Purchasing Agent; Henry P Bradley, Veterans Services; Linda Stice, Commission on the Family; John "Jack" Gillon, Traffic; and Joseph "Jay" MacRitchie, Legal Counsel and Acting Solicitor.

Thomas Koch, who is a provisional civil servant and did not need to be officially sworn in, will remain as the city's executive director of Park, Forestry, and Cemetery Departments and attended Monday's ceremonies in his capacity as a department head.

Phelan added that Rhonda Merrill, the city's director of Events and Tourism, has agreed to stay on to coordinate the city's Presidents' Day activities but that her position will no longer exist "as we know it;" instead, the special events aspect of the job will be incorporated into the duties of the Park Department and the tourism aspect will be assumed by the mayor's office.

Before Shea performed the swearing-in ceremony Monday, Phelan welcomed all appointees to their new jobs. He stressed that he made no distinction between those who were working for the city before the swearing-in and those who were being sworn in for the first time.

"It is my point of view that all of your jobs are new from this point forward," Phelan said. "You were chosen because you all have the ability and skills to move the city forward during these difficult fiscal times."

Phelan added that expected hard work, integrity, and dedication to the city from all who serve in his administration and would support his staff as they worked to move Quincy forward.

Resident Group Claims Test Borings Caused Rodent Problem

The Quincy Center Neighborhood Association (QCNA) has charged that test borings performed at Faxon Field are responsible for an increased amount of rodent activity in the surrounding area.

In a Jan. 29 letter from QCNA President Nancy Jolly addressed to Ward 1 Councillor Gregory Hanley and Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro, Jolly claims that rodent sightings began shortly after test borings were conducted at the field, which she said occurred in October the day after a ruling (which the organization has appealed) by the city's Conservation Commission.

The test borings are part of a city plan to build the new Quincy High School at the Faxon Field site.

Discussion with the city's Health Department, Jolly said, produced only generic information about covering garbage and other ways to avoid the attraction of rodents and did not address the test borings.

"This is not about poor hygiene by long-time neighbors whose habits have not changed. It about disturbed nests in Faxon Field," Jolly's letter states.

Jolly's letter mentions other area residents-- including Nicole Maher, Allison Lamie, John and Rita Norton, and Brian Houde -- who have either noticed increased outdoor rodent activity or had rodents brought to them by their cats or dogs.

Jolly said she wanted to give neighbors warning on the issue, which she said will be one of the concerns -- along with an underground gas pipe and flooding issues -- brought up at the next QCNA meeting Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Library, a meeting that Hanley, Gutro, and Mayor William Phelan are planning to attend.

Phelan, who has gone door to door in the neighborhood to hear residents' concerns on construction of a new high school, said that there was no evidence of a connection between the test borings and any rodent concerns. Furthermore, he said, it was his suggestion as Mayor-elect which put a stop to the borings and led to the withdrawal of a Notice of Intent before the Conservation Commission, both steps designed to alert the residents about the project and allow time for the state to rule on the QCNA's appeal.

Phelan said he was comfortable with counsel that the city was "well within its rights" to conduct the borings but said that "there's no excuse for any work being done in that area without prior notice to the residents of that area."

"One thing that the residents of that area will find out is that I have no hidden agenda and will not make decisions behind closed doors," Phelan said, adding his hope that future dialogue would be one of mutual openness rather than legal maneuverings and "procedural glitches" or "delay tactics."

Stroke Support Group To Meet At Beechwood

The Easter Seals Beechwood Community Center Stroke Support Group will meet Monday, Feb. 25, at 12 noon at the Center, 440 East Squantum St., North Quincy.

Kathy Capellano, MS, RD, will discuss "Healthy Eating Through the Food

Phelan Forms Constituent Services Committee

Mayor William Phelan has formed an advisory committee to assist him in the establishment of a Constituent Services Department for the city of Quincy.

The new department, which Phelan emphasized would be at no added cost to the taxpayer, would be responsible for ensuring that residents "receive the most efficient and effective services when they contact City Hall with questions and that their concerns are heard and addressed in a timely fashion."

"A major theme during my mayoral campaign was opening up City Hall to the residents of Quincy. This is the beginning of that process," Phelan said. "I am looking forward to working with the Constituent Services Committee to make City Hall more accessible and more responsive to the people it serves."

Members of the Constituent Services Advisory Committee will include: Ward 4 Councillor Bryan Connolly; School Committee member Linda Stice, executive director, Mayor's Commission on the Family; Thomas Fabrizio, contract manager, Department of Public Works; Kathy Quigley, director, Germantown Neighborhood Center; Jimmy Liang, owner, Fuji Restaurant; Ronald Donovan, director of operations, Mayor's Office; and Kristin Priscella, executive assistant, Mayor's Office.

The kickoff meeting of the Constituent Services Committee, set for sometime next week, will be a roundtable discussion on the formation of a Constituent Services Department, the needs such a department will address, and how the city can implement such a department without increases to the budget.

The committee's initial goal, said the mayor, will be to find a cross-section of individuals to represent the myriad of concerns of Quincy residents.

Once formed, the purpose of the Constituent Services Department would be to provide basic services efficiently as well as assist city councillors with their constituent service needs.

School Seat Convention Will Open Friday

Mayor William Phelan has called a joint convention of the City Council and the School Committee in order to elect a person to fill the vacancy on the School Committee left by Phelan.

The convention has been called for tomorrow (Friday) at 6:30 p.m. in the Council Chambers of City Hall at which time members will establish a procedure for election. The joint convention is a distinct body not governed by the rules of either the City Council or the School Committee.

After such procedures are established, said the mayor's office, School Committee candidates will be afforded the opportunity to make presentations to members of the joint convention and field their questions.

Phelan has called an additional joint convention for Monday, Feb. 25 at 7 p.m. at City Hall for the actual election to take place.

QSD Sewer Project Topic Tonight

Monday night's joint meeting of the Public Works and Finance Committees of the City Council to discuss a $5.8 million bond for Phase I of the Quincy Shore Drive Sewer Improvement Program was recessed without a vote to allow for a public meeting on the project tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School, 225 Fenno St.

The Beechwood Knoll meeting, said Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro, would allow residents directly impacted by the proposed project to voice their concerns and add their input.

Gutro emphasized the urgency of the project and its value in cleaning the water at Wollaston Beach, but he also conceded that the work "was not an easy project," impacting about 25 homes along Quincy Shore Drive and other areas.

Councillors were briefed on Phase I of the project — which would replace sewer and drain lines from Bayfield Rd. to West Elm Ave. along Quincy Shore Drive — by Daniel Sheehan of the engineering firm Weston & Sampson.

Painful For All

It is painful.

Not only for stunned parishioners at St. Joseph's Church, but for the entire Quincy community.

To those who have known him as a beloved priest, pastor and friend, the news came like an earthquake shock.

It just couldn't be. Not him. Not here.

But Fr. Daniel M. Graham was suddenly removed Saturday by the Boston Archdiocese as pastor of St.

Joseph's Church in Quincy Point and vicar of Catholic parishes in Quincy, Braintree, Milton and Randolph.

He had been pastor at St. Joseph's since 1990 and prior to that served as an associate pastor at St. John's in Quincy Center for 13 years. In between, he was at St. Brendan's, Dorchester for two years.

Also removed was Fr. Paul J. Finegan, pastor of St. Bernadette's parish in Randolph.

The archdiocese says several allegations of sexual misconduct with minors had been made against Fr. Finegan.

But just one against Fr. Graham. One that, apparently goes back 20 or more years.

His removal on one allegation -- which we don't know is true or false -- somehow appears to be not only an abrupt but a drastic action.

And, possibly, unfair?

The headlines and newscasters of pedophile priests have become a public nightmare for the archdiocese.

The disclosures of molestation have been like a snowball rolling down a mountainside.

And may be some hysteria has set in.

Cardinal Bernard Law's attitude has certainly changed since former priest John J. Geoghan repeated molestation in the 1960s through the 1990s and was shuffled off to one unsuspecting parish after another.

And other cases involving a number of priests were quietly disposed of through cash settlements.

The Cardinal has now adopted a hardline, get-tough policy against such priests. It is too bad it was not put in place in Geoghan's time.

One disturbing thing about Fr. Graham's situation is that all we know is that there was one allegation against him. Period.

No information or details about when or where or by whom.

Does the archdiocese know, for a fact, that the allegation against Fr. Graham is true? The public deserves more information.

Meanwhile, parishioners at both St. Joseph's and St. John's find it painful to even think of such an allegation.

They see him as a friend, dedicated spiritual leader and a hardworking pastor who transformed St. Joseph's Church into one of the most beautiful in the Quincy-Greater Boston area.

And always looked forward to his homilies which were introduced with an amusing short story and his traditional lead-in "I have a good one." He made you enjoy going to church.

The allegation, they feel, just doesn't fit him.

The Cardinal has announced he will form a blue ribbon committee to study ways of preventing child sexual abuse.

Maybe one way might be to allow married men to be ordained. That has been suggested as a solution to the growing shortage of priests. It could also be a solution -- or, at least, part of a solution, to the problem of molestation.

But that decision, if it ever comes, will be made in Rome, not Boston.

The ordination of women priests might also be another step in the right direction.

But that decision, if it ever comes, will also be made in Rome, not Boston.

The archdiocese has sent to district attorneys names of priests accused of sexually abusing minors during the last 40 years.

The office of Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William Keating has received 10 names but declined to say if Fr. Graham's or Fr. Finegan's were among them.

"It is our practice not to release names until such time as charges are ready," a spokesman said.

Maybe that's the way the archdiocese should have handled it. Get all the facts first.

By its haste in removing Fr. Graham and Fr. Finegan, the archdiocese has virtually and publicly stamped both guilty.

But aren't the accused -- priests like everyone else -- entitled to be presumed innocent until proven guilty?

Molestation is an offense that must be dealt with regardless of who might be involved -- even a friend.

Innocent or guilty?

At this point we don't know.

Let's wait for the facts.

And not rush to judgment.

Friends Of Library Plan Fundraisers

The newly reestablished Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library are planning four major projects with which to raise funds for the library during 2002.

"We have just reestablish the Friends group and already we have over 40 volunteers who are enthusiastically undertaking projects for the library," said Harold Crowley, library trustee and chairman of the Friends Committee.

• A wine-tasting party, chaired by Jane Madden and Fran Ryan, is planned for April 26, attended by a prominent wine connoisseur, as well as desserts and a chance to explore the renovated Richardson Building.

• A book sale, co-chaired by Jennifer Smith and Peggy Doyle of the Book Sale committee will be held during National Library Week. The committee is soliciting donations of used books.

• The Special Projects Committee, chaired by Jesse Thuma, aims to publish a cookbook with an historic twist, a book of recipes interspersed with tidbits about the library and its unique history.

• A committee also has been formed to resume the popular House Tour of selected homes in late fall. Plans are underway to identify homes in the neighborhood.

"With the need to tighten the budget at both state and city levels, the activities of the Friends will help the library continue to provide a high level of programs for the community," said Mary Weaver, chairman of the Library Board.

Anyone interested in learning more about the Friends and its projects may call the library at 617-376-1317.

Prescription Advantage Available For Elders

The Council On Aging reminds the elderly and the disabled that the state has a program called "Prescription Advantage," an insurance plan that helps them pay for prescriptions.

Massachusetts residents who are 65 or older or a disabled adult under 65 can join the plan by paying a monthly premium, a yearly deductible and co-payments according to annual income.

Enrollees may have Prescription Advantage coverage in addition to any current prescription benefit provided under current insurance plans.

Questions about the plan may be answered by calling Kay MacPherson at the Council on Aging, 617-376-1247.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1920 postcard view of the old Swedish Baptist Church at 388 Granite Street in Brewer's Corner, West Quincy. Eight stalwart Swedish immigrants who had come to Quincy to work in the granite industry founded the congregation in 1885. They first met in their homes and then in a small building on Station Street until they built this church in 1896. In 1922 they built a new church on Washington Street next to the old YMCA. They then merged with the Calvary Baptist Church and became the Central Baptist Church, which still resides there. The building shown here still stands without the steeple, porch and large lower windows. Today it serves as the Southwest Community Center and as a home for Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. activities.

$2M Expansion Planned For Procter & Gamble

By PAUL HAROLD

Officials at the Procter and Gamble headquarters in Cincinnati announced plans for a $2 million expansion of the plant in Quincy Point. The new addition would replace warehouse space in Braintree and would expand the production line.

Plant Manager James Deupree said preliminary plans called for a 140,000 square-foot addition including 23 new jobs in production.

He said the company would not add any new products to its existing manufacturing of soaps and synthetics.

SENATOR JOHN MACKAY DIES

John Mackay, who served as Quincy's state senator for 21 years, died this week at age 90. He retired from the senate in 1950.

A 60-year member of Clan MacGregor, he was a founding member of the Quincy Rotary Club.

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa said of Mackay, "As a member of the school committee, as city solicitor and as the state senator from this district for over 20 years, Sen. Mackay served his city with honor and dignity."

Rev. David Muir, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, conducted the funeral.

DELLA CHIESA OPPOSES HANCOCK CEMETERY TAKING

Mayor Della Chiesa went on record opposing the taking of the old Hancock Cemetery, adjacent to city hall, for parking purposes. The proposal was made by City Councillor Richard Barry.

Della Chiesa said he opposition was based on two factors: his respect for the dead and the cost. It was estimated it would cost a half million dollars or $600 per grave removal to build the lot.

Della Chiesa noted a previous proposal to expand city hall over the cemetery met with vigorous opposition. The first person buried in the cemetery was Henry Adams in 1695.

QUINCY-ISMS

Planning Director James Lee recommended seven sites in the city, comprising 600 acres where high rise apartments would be constructed. . . A Fitting Tribute For City's Firefighters, Police Officers

Kudos to City Councillor Greg Hanley, Larry Norton and the Morrisette American Legion Post for co-sponsoring an event to honor all of our Quincy firefighters and police officers who went to New York following the Sept. 11 terrorist attack.

The event honoring those who helped out at Ground Zero will be held at the Bryan VFW Post on Feb. 13.

America will never be the same again after watching the World Trade Center crumble to the ground killing thousands. In many ways, we are also stronger today as a nation of people. On my rear window, I have a photograph of a shamrock colored red, white and blue with the words, "Today we are all Americans."

As a police officer, myself, for almost 17 years, I will attend this Quincy tribute to the 74 firefighters and 15 police officers who attended those endless funerals and put in countless hours at the WTC site looking for victims and survivors.

As Greg Hanley said, "I think the whole city is proud to have had these people represent themselves and the city on their own time and without pay in New York."

Sal Giarratani
184 Atlantic St.

P.S. Also honored with the Jim Anderson from the Building Department who volunteered two weeks of his time to man the overnight shift for the Salvation Army's canteen at Ground Zero.

Commends Disabled Persons Protection Commission

I would like to take this opportunity to commend the Disabled Persons Protection Commission, a State Agency protecting adults with disability against abuse and mistreatment within the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. The DPPC was created through legislation in 1987 as an Independent State Agency responsible for investigation and remediation of incidents of abuse against persons with disabilities.

They are a small agency located at 50 Ross Way in Quincy and are comprised of six functions, including Prevention, Intake/Oversight, Investigation, Legal, Information Technology, and Administration and Finance. They also work with the State Police Detectives Unit.

As a Legislator who deals with issues related to the physically challenged, I believe it is important to recognize and support this dedicated agency. The DPPC works hard to assist the handicapped on a limited budget particularly during these tough economic times.

Their Hotline receives reports 24 hours a day, 365 days a year at 1-800-426-9009.

Eggplant Rolls

There are tons of ways to prepare eggplant parmesan. When I prepare it, I usually bread it and instead of frying, I bake the slices on a slightly greased cookie sheet and then prepare it accordingly.

However, I recently found another way to make it by rolling it, but you don't have to bread it. I recently tried it and with this way, they can be stuffed with just about any favorite stuffing. I used spinach, egg and cheese. Ricotta or cheddar cheese, or a meat stuffing can be used also. Here is the easy one I used last week.

Eggplant Rolls

1 eggplant (large)
1 large egg
1 bag of spinach (cooked) or frozen equivalent
1/2 cup grated romano or parmesan cheese olive oil for coating the cookie sheets and eggplant

salt and pepper to taste
enough tomato sauce and extra grated cheese for the topping.

First slice the eggplant lengthwise instead of the usual way.

Place some olive oil on a cookie sheet and place each slice on the oil turning them so both sides have a little oil and salt and pepper if desired on them... Bake in a 400 degree oven until tender (about 10 minutes).

While the eggplant is baking, cook the spinach and drain well. Beat the egg with the grated cheese. Add to the warm spinach. At this point, it should be ready to place in the eggplant.

In the center of each slice, place the spinach mixture and roll the eggplant. Place side by side in a casserole dish. Pour the tomato sauce over the rolls and some grated cheese. Bake in a 350 degree oven until bubbly. (about 20-25 minutes).

Cheri Kelly of Quincy, a teacher at the Sacred Heart School and the Burt Wood School of Performing Arts in Middleboro, was among the three teachers who sang the National Anthem at the House Speaker Tom Fineran's recent State of the State Address.

The trio of vocalists, including Lorna J. Brunelle of Middleboro and Erica Swartz of Lakeville, also sang the National Anthem at a peace rally in Middleboro, where they impressed State Rep. Tom O'Brien and Sen. Marc Pacheco, who recommended them to Fineran.

Jeffrey Solomon On Dean's List

Jeffrey Solomon of Quincy was named to the Dean's List at Suffolk University for both the spring and fall semesters, 2001. He is a senior, majoring in English, and is a May degree candidate.

Les Sampou In Concert At Library Feb. 19

Les Sampou, who accompanies herself on the steel string guitar, will perform Tuesday, Feb. 19, at 7:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Center, in the community meeting room.

Sampou, a three-octave alto, sings blues, folk, country and rock. She writes most of her own music and each song has a story behind it and in it.

Sampou is a self-taught musician who got her start in Boston's Haymarket subway stop in 1985. She met Ellie Mae Higgins and they started a duo called "Double Edge." For the next few years Sampou worked with other duos and trios and played some solo sets.

Not long after she began writing and performing her own music, Sampou was on the road as a solo act in the United States, Canada and Europe. She has performed at all the major folk festivals and has given workshops at the Berklee School of Music.

Sampou has released four albums. The most recent one is "Borrowed & Blue," an anthology of the blues songs she has performed over the years.

Free To The Public Quincy College Presents New Humanities Series

Quincy College is presenting a new humanities lecture series free to the general public.

The lectures, scheduled for 7 p.m. Tuesdays at Temple Hall, 25 Temple St., Quincy Center, began this week with faculty member Stephen Dooner giving a general overview of the series, including Quincy writers and their contributions to American literature.

The next lecture will be Feb. 12 entitled, "Repent, ye Separatists: Thomas Morton and The New English Canavan." Local author Marc Songini will tell the story of Morton who founded the Mount Wollaston Colony called Merry Mount and the fun he had opposing Plymouth as a "royalist rascal."

The other lectures:

Feb. 19: Josiah Quincy,

John Adams and the Boston Massacre Trial. One of the most important trials in American history, it pitted Josiah Quincy, for the prosecution, against John Adams defending the British soldiers involved. Sandra Smales, Quincy College faculty, will tell how they fared and how Quincy residents were affected.

Feb. 26: John and Abigail: Letters For All Time. Stephen Dooner will discuss one of the greatest letter exchanges in history, focusing on their personal views on independence, federalism, the rights of women and their love.

March 5: John Quincy Adams: The Greatest President. Quincy College Vice President Robert Baker will look at the writing of the president who fought against slavery, defended the slaves who rebelled aboard the Amistad and Adams' vision of the country.

March 12: The Best American Book. The Education of Henry Adams is considered by many as the best book written in America. Stephen Dooner tells what Quincy meant to the renowned historian and philosopher.

March 26: Ruth Gordon. Mark Walsh, Quincy College Adjunct instructor, will discuss the unique contribution of the Quincy born award-winning actress and screenwriter.

Happy 100th!

Schuster Reports QMC 'Tremendous Progress'

Entering its third year of a five year "turnaround plan," Quincy Medical Center is experiencing "tremendous progress," QMC CEO Christine Schuster told city councilors Monday night.

Crediting stringent cost controls and increased use of the hospital by both Quincy and the rest of the South Shore, Schuster said hospital losses had decreased to $5.8 million, a figure ahead of its five year plan.

Schuster, who was joined in her remarks by QMC Board Chairman Robert Curry, noted the hospital's full-service emergency room department, its partnership with Manet Health Center to create an Asian Services Clinic, and the recent opening of its VA Outpatients Clinic as just some of the community benefits of the hospital, which was rescued in 1999 by a combined city, state, and federal bailout.

"We have a quality product to offer," Schuster said. "If people come and try us, they'll be pleasantly surprised."

YMCA Sets $500,000 Goal To Help Needy Join Programs

Each year the South Shore YMCA sets out to raise money to help low income families with the community to join a YMCA program or service. This year's campaign, led by Phyllis Godwin of Granite City Electric Supply Co., has set a goal of $500,000.

Last year the South Shore YMCA gave more than $423,000, which helped 1,087 low-income children and families experience the positive effects of the Y's programs and activities.

With the money raised, the Y can send more children to camp, allow the chance for youth to join after-school activities programs, teach youth swim safety and lessons, offer child care to families in the community, and give the chance to redirect "at risk" teens in the Mountain Movement program.

Of the 1,000-plus people being served by the YMCA's financial assistance, more than two-thirds are children.

More than 300 community volunteers are helping to raise funds through personal meetings, phoneathons, special events and a golf tournament. To volunteer a gift, contact Jill Donovan at 617-479-8500, ext. 109.

Raymondi To Speak On Taxes At Montclair, Wollaston Meeting

City Council President Daniel Raymondi will be the speaker at a meeting of the Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 at 3 Arlington St.

Association President Dave McGillicuddy said Raymondi will discuss issues involving setting the tax rate and property problems.

McGillicuddy said: "We heard the argument that businesses are carrying most of the burden. We listen to the tax rate being set a numbers like 169 or 175. What does it mean? What would happen if some big business like State Street, with their close to a million dollar tax bill, leave the city? How much can the homeowner and renter carry? Are we going to be faced with looking at losing city services like police, fire stations, the loss of teachers and educational programs, or the closing of schools? Why does the city need to tap the Rainey-Day fund?"

The meeting is open to the public.

A short business meeting will be held to introduce the new officers, David McGillicuddy, president; Paul DelGreco, vice president; Diane Salda, secretary; and Howard Crowley, treasurer.

For additional information call Janet Crowley at 617-376-1262.

Meets With QCBPA Members Phelan Sees 'Mixed Use' Need For Quincy Center

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO "The Quincy Center area has stumped many mayors-I don't have all the answers, but I have ideas."

These were the opening remarks made by Mayor William Phelan as he spoke for the first time to the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association at a sizable group in the conference room at the new public library.

He commended former Mayor James Sheets for his part in the construction of the new library and what a "fantastic addition it is to the city."

Commenting that the rejuvenation of Quincy Center will not be necessarily the building of a major chain store, but a mixed use in bringing people to the center that will draw stores back in the city.

Citing parking and traffic as one of the big problems in front of the Fleet Bank, Phelan said pedestrians "take their lives into their hands" as they try to cross the street.

He said changes need to be made and developments needs to be encouraged for the city to grow. He added that over the last 10 years,

"not enough has been done in Quincy Center."

However, he stated that budgetary issues are being faced every day with emphasis on the concourse now in only the first phase not yet completed which already has cost $5 million dollars.

Ther first phase of the concourse was supposed to go to Hancock Street and the second phase to Southern Artery. He added there are no state funds available at this time for the completion of phase one, and the second phase, leaving the concourse virtually in the "parking lot."

Phelan outlined what he called valuable land citing the Hancock Parking Lot and the Fore River Shipyard.

Terming the project at the shipyard as a "dream chased" he said that how its disposed of will be where the most money can be obtained.

He also spoke of the possibility of a new court house with a juvenile court and a satellite probate court in the future.

On the subject of Wollaston Beach, which Phelan called a "goldmine" with Quincy Bay being the "jewel of the city," Phelan said there are new sewer and water lines being installed on Quincy Shore Drive, as the first step in improving the beach area. He said that last year there were 18 straight days which were "unswimable."

In discussing tourism in the city, he said that tourism at the Adams House have doubled since the publication of David McCullogh's book about the Adams's.

He said special events had taken precedent over tourism of late and that maybe that should be part of the park department and that tourism would go the mayor's office.

Citing deficits in both the fire department and the school department, Phelan said he hopes to start off with zero base budgeting as "we are in very difficult times"

He said he believes Quincy has positive potential in development citing the new high school, the development of the shipyard and the Hancock Parking lot.

He also mentioned another access road at Crown Colony as a priority.

Bellotti Ponders Choice: Lt. Governor Or Treasurer

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti of Quincy has bowed out of the race for State Secretary and is considering a run for either lieutenant governor or state treasurer.

"During the next several days, I will be speaking with supporters and family members before making a decision," he said.

Bellotti abandoned his plans to run for secretary when the incumbent, fellow Democrat William Galvin, pulled out of the governor's race to run for reelection.

"I have said throughout this race I would not run against the incumbent member of my party," said Bellotti. "The best thing for the Democratic Party is to remain unified in our efforts to win in November."

He said he has received many calls from Democratic activists urging him to consider a race for either lieutenant governor or state treasurer.

The office of lieutenant governor currently is vacant while the present state treasurer, Democrat Shannon O'Brien, is in the running for the nomination for governor.

Ward 1 Democrats Elect 11 Convention Delegates, 6 Alternates

Ward 1 Democrats elected 11 delegates and six alternates to the Democratic State Convention at their caucus Saturday at the Thomas Crane Main Library, reports Ward Chairman Michael J. Berry, Jr.

Elected delegates: (Men): Jeff Sheehan, Bob Harding, Michael J. Cheney, Michael J. Berry, Jr., Greg Hanley and Archie Wahlberg. (Women): Janice Sheehan, Ann Marie Hanley, Rosemary Wahlberg, Paula Clarke, Alicia Coletti. Elected alternates: (Men): Walter Jacobs, Joseph Doyle, Tom Cheney.

(Women): Julie Pinkham, Maryann Lencki, Barbara Wood.

Senate President Tom Birmingham, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for governor, addressed the approximately 115 attending.

The Democratic state convention will be held May 31-June 1 in Worcester.

After Sept. 11 Terrorist Attack Council, Morrisette Post To Honor 92 For Volunteering In NYC

The Quincy City Council and the Morrisette American Legion Post will co-sponsor ceremonies to honor 75 Quincy firefighters and 17 Quincy police officers who volunteered in New York City following the Sept. 11 terrorist attack upon the World Trade Center.

Also being honored at the event, which will take place Wednesday, Feb. 13, at 7 p.m. at the Bryan VFW Post on Broad St., is James Anderson of the Building Inspection Department who volunteered for two weeks on the midnight shift at the Salvation Army Canteen at "Ground Zero."

"It's just a way to show our appreciation for volunteers who went above and beyond the call of duty," said Ward 1 Councillor Gregory Hanley, the chairman of the council's Public Safety Committee who is coordinating the Feb. 13 event with Larry Norton, commander of the Morrisette American Legion Post. "It's an honor to have these people represent Quincy in this time of national emergency."

"Their efforts deserve recognition," said Norton, referring to Anderson, the Quincy police officers who volunteered for the search and recovery mission at "Ground Zero," and the many Quincy firefighters who volunteered for rescue efforts in New York City as well as visited various fire stations and attended the funerals of their fallen brothers.

Norton will serve as master of ceremonies for the event which will also include the posting of the colors by the Color Guard of the Quincy Veterans Council; remarks on the meaning and importance of the American Flag by Sgt. at Arms Robert LaFleur; the singing of "American the Beautiful" by Quincy Police Officer Donald Sauter; and the presentation of citations to the honorees.

Mayor William Phelan, Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, and Acting Police Chief William Falco are scheduled to attend the recognition ceremonies.

Disbelief At St. Joseph's 509 On QHS Honor Roll

tional information."

Asked about the names, he said, "It is our practice not to release names until such time as charges are ready."

Fr. William Walsh, who was Catholic chaplain at Quincy Hospital from 1978 to 1983, has been named interim pastor at St. Joseph's. While chaplain, he resided at St. John's rectory when Fr. Graham was there. "I feel terrible," he said. "Devastated. He is a good priest. He has done a lot of wonderful services for the church and for the people."

Other fellow clergy also had affectionate words for Fr. Graham.

Fr. William McCarthy, former pastor of St. John's Church with whom Fr. Graham served during his 13 years there as associate pastor, said:

"Like everyone else, I am shocked with the allegation. I don't know if it is true or not. This happened 20 years ago."

"I've known him since 1977 when I came here (St. John's) as pastor. He was with me until 1988. I am behind him in anything to do with his good work."

Fr. Peter Quinn, present pastor of St. John's Church, said people who know Fr. Graham are heartbroken.

"Fr. Dan Graham has generously served the people of God in Quincy for almost 25 years," he said. "He is loved, admired, respected by so many who have encountered his pastoral care and concern."

"Fr. Dan is a very talented person, a marvelous organizer who is able to gather people of different ethnic backgrounds together to work, play and give glory and praise to God. The 20-year-old legacy of the St. Anthony's Festival at St. John's is one small example of his gifts."

"Fr. Dan is a very sensitive, gracious person who cares deeply for the welfare and well being of others. He learned to speak Italian fluently and immerse himself deeply in Italian culture so to better serve the wonderful Italian parishioners in the area."

"The people who have come to know him are heartbroken and grieve over what has come to light in these past few days. We continue to hold him beloved in our hearts and in our prayer with the Lord."

Rev. Ann Suzedell, new pastor of Quincy Point Congregational Church with which St. Joseph's has had a long and strong ecumenical relationship, said:

"Our churches have been friends for 40 years. Its (St. Joseph's) members are in our prayers. God and Christ will not walk away from them. We offer them any help we can provide."

John Noonan, chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging and a parishioner at St. John's who has known Fr. Graham a quarter century, said:

"It saddens me. As far as I am concerned, Fr. Graham has always been a priest's priest. He's popular with the clergy and with the parishioners."

"The allegation at this time for an incident that occurred long ago is not due process. He is found guilty before he has had an opportunity to tell his side."

Regional Bishop Richard J. Malone first broke the news to St. Joseph's parishioners attending the 4 o'clock Mass Saturday.

He told them it "was the most difficult thing I have ever done as a bishop."

There were tears, sobs and cries of disbelief from the stunned parishioners.

Bishop Malone also appeared at all the weekend Masses to deliver the message.

He also told parishioners that if any of them had any problem with any priest to inform the district attorney's office.

Fr. Graham's departure on an allegation of molestation came as a shock.

In the weekend church bulletin he said he was taking health leave to care for himself and his father (Maurice) who is 97.

Fr. Graham, who has diabetes, said:

"I apologize for the abruptness of this change but sometimes overwhelming needs must be dealt with immediately."

He closed with: "Over the past 12 years I have enjoyed and appreciated the cooperation and support you have given to me as your pastor. Please remember me in your prayers as I will keep you in the forefront of my prayers."

Fr. Graham had been pastor at St. Joseph's since 1990, assigned from St. Brendan's in Dorchester where he served two years. Prior to that he was associate pastor at St. John's in Quincy for 13 years.

His departure from St. Joseph's is the second loss for parishioners in just a week.

Fr. Robert Monagle, a popular associate pastor there for five and a half years and active with the parish youth, left Jan. 27 to report to the U.S. Air Force as a chaplain.

Quincy High School lists 509 students on the honor roll for the first marking period.

They are:

15 Graduate From Quincy 2000 Business Training Course

Fifteen participants have graduated from the Quincy 2000 NxLevel business training course, announces Executive Secretary Joseph Mannarino.

The public-private economic development partnership, in conjunction with the UMass-Boston Small Business Development Center, hosted a graduation dinner last week at the Common Market.

Overall, 47 area residents participated in the 14-week business-training course designed to enhance entrepreneurial skills and assist in creating a comprehensive business plan. It was developed to provide instruction targeted to start-up businesses and those in their first three years of operation.

Receiving Certificates of Completion at the graduation dinner were:

Sharon Coyne, Robert Bousquet, Debbie Lyn Toomey, Richard Lynch, Jane Williams, Lorraine E. Lee, all of Quincy; Rita Noonan, Belmont; Cathy Sandhaus, South Easton; Diane Inglis, South

Weymouth; and Kim Ehrhardt, Braintree.

Receiving Certificates of Attendance were:

Kevin Laurie, Chris Stenmon, Eric Farmer, all of Quincy; Nelly Essandoh, Brookline; and Thomas Rooney, Jr., Scituate.

Speakers at the dinner included Margaret Somers of UMass-Boston Small Business Development Center; Phillip Quaglien, dean of the UMass College of Management; Elaine Guinery, regional director of the U.S. Small Business Administration; and Jeffrey Glashow, vice president of FleetBoston Bank.

NxLevel was developed by the Western Enterprise Network at the University of Colorado. The materials and curriculum are based on feedback from over 24,000 entrepreneurs in 32 states who have taken entrepreneurial training courses over the past five years, and is considered the nation's state-of-the-art business training program.

Quincy 2000's NxLevel Quincy enhances the program by starting the course with business and financial fundamentals sessions from Southeastern Economic Development Corp., which have been received with great enthusiasm by entrepreneurs throughout southeastern Massachusetts.

The full course costs $149. Income-eligible Quincy residents received a full tuition refund. SEED Corp's two fundamental sessions were offered free.

NxLevel Quincy is designed to help entrepreneurs learn the skills needed to create, develop and strengthen successful business ventures. It addresses the special needs of entrepreneurs by providing a practical, hands-on and common sense approach to developing their businesses. The course includes prominent business leaders, professionals and lenders as guest speakers, a comprehensive textbook, workbook and resource guide, and free business consulting.

Students learn how to determine the feasibility of their business.

AAA Recommends Emergency Equipment Kit

Because even the best victim to frigid winter every vehicle carry the fol-maintained vehicles can fall weather, AAA recommends lowing items to ensure safe winter travel:

Flashlight: A working flashlight should be stored where the driver can access it without leaving the vehicle. That will enable the motorists to see obstacles and be seen by other drivers when exiting the vehicle in an emergency. Also carry spare batteries.

Jumper Cables: Jumper cables can be an essential tool for starting vehicles with weak or dead batteries, but they should only be used by individuals with the proper safety precautions. Vehicle owner's manuals should be consulted for instructions.

Abrasive Material: Sand or non-clumping cat litter can be spread under the wheels to improve traction when a vehicle becomes stuck in snow or ice. Special traction mats and even floor mats also can be used for this purpose.

Shovel: A small shovel can be used to carefully dig snow away from the wheels.

Warning Devices: Flares or reflective triangles alert other motorists that you are broken down or stuck and helps give them enough time to slow down in order to pass safely.

Blankets: Cold weather can quickly turn an inconvenient breakdown into a life-threatening situation. Blankets can provide valuable protection against the cold and can help keep you comfortable until help arrives. Floor mats and newspapers can also be used to provide insulation in emergencies.

Snow Brush/Ice Scraper: It's important that windows and lights are clear of ice and snow in order to maintain adequate visibility. The entire vehicle should be brushed clear so blowing snow does not become a hazard for other motorists.

Cellular Phone: A cellular telephone comes in handy when a motorist needs assistance in the event of a vehicle breakdown.

EASTER SEALS 2002 Campaign for Independence Chairman Harry E. Salerno, CPA, chats with Easter Seals Pioneer Award Winner Norah Scholl, 10, of Eastham, at the Easter Seals annual meeting. Norah uses assistive technology from Easter Seals for school work since her disability prevents her from using her hands.

Harry Salerno, Chairman Easter Seals Campaign

Harry E. Salerno, CPA, President of O'Connor & Drew in Quincy, is chairing the South Shore and Quincy 2002 Easter Seals Campaign for Independence, announces Easter Seals Southeast Region Campaign Chairman, Charles R. Simpson, Jr.

Funds raised will support Easter Seals services that help people with disabilities expand their independence.

"I'm proud to lead the effort here in the South Shore and Quincy, because I know that Easter Seals uses the money in this campaign to fund direct services for children and adults with disabilities," said Salerno. "Our disabled neighbors use Easter Seals programs to live more independently and to participate actively in community life."

Easter Seals services include technology for independence, physical and occupational therapy, adapted swim program, summer camp, speech therapy, support groups for people recovering from strokes, job training and employment services, advocacy and disability resource information.

Quincy's greatest writers

February 12: Thomas Morton and The New English Canaan
Presented by local author Marc Songini, this lecture will reveal the true story behind the man who founded the Mt. Wollaston colony called Merry Mount and why he had fun opposing Plymouth as a "royalist" resister.

February 19: Josiah Quincy, John Adams, Boston Massacre Trial
It may be the most important trial in American history. Learn from Sandra Smiles, Quincy College faculty, how two friends, lawyers, and citizens of Quincy fared in this intriguing legal battle.

February 26: John and Abigail. Letters for all time
Stephen Dooner will discuss one of the world's greatest letter exchanges in world history. Learn their personal views on independence, federalism, the rights of women, and their abiding love.

March 5: John Quincy Adams: "The Greatest President"
This lecture, presented by Quincy College Vice President Robert Baker, will look at the writing of the president who fought against slavery, defended the right of Amherst, and his visions of our country.

March 12: The Best American Book
The Education of Henry Adams is considered the best book written in America. Quincy College faculty member Stephen Dooner will explain what Quincy meant to this renowned historian and philosopher.

March 26: Ruth Gordon
Quincy College Adjunct Instructor Mark Welsh will discuss the unique contribution of Ruth Gordon to the world of film as a screenwriter and her unique vision of women portrayed in her writing.

April 2: John Cheever, Child of Quincy
One of the most famous Yale York writers is not from New York. Hear accolades of Cheever's Quincy through Dr. Eli Kelly, Quincy College English faculty member.

Each Tuesday night event is held at 7pm in the Temple Hall Art Gallery, 24 Temple Street, at the corner of Washington Street in Quincy Square. To RSVP, please call Holly at 617-984-1107.

Something Special For Your Valentine!

3 Quincy Artists In Valentine Art Auction

Three Quincy artists will be among those participating in the annual Valentine's Fine Art Silent Auction and Sale Sunday, Feb. 10, in Hull.

The three are Nancy Santry, photography; Marilyn Reisberg, gold-leaf acrylics; and Donald Heath, oils, acrylics and watercolor.

They are members of the Hull Artists Studio Connection, host of the event, and the Quincy Art Association.

The auction and sale will be from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Red Parrot Restaurant, 1 Hull Drive, on Nantasket Beach.

Men Of Harmony Singing Valentines

The South Shore Men of Harmony Barbershop Chorus will again deliver "Singing Valentines For That Someone Special."

Each valentine will be presented by a chapter quartet in appropriate costume Sunday, Feb. 10, Wednesday, Feb. 13, and Thursday, Feb. 14.

The quartet will arrive unannounced at the recipient's — male or female — office, house, school, restaurant or wherever the sender designates.

The recipient will be presented with a long-stemmed red rose and a Men of Harmony Valentine designed especially for the day with the sender's name.

The quartet will sing renditions of "Heart of My Heart I Love You" and "I Love You Truly" in the capella barbershop harmony style and pose with the recipient for an instant photo as a souvenir.

The "Singing Valentines" are being presented for the seventh year as part of a nationwide program offered by "SPEBSQSA," the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, the parent organization of the Men of Harmony. Hundreds of quartets throughout the country will take part.

Especially meaningful are the many deliveries to residents of nursing homes and to the shut-ins. Often they will sing along with the quartets as the men sing the songs from days gone by.

The Men of Harmony "Singing Valentines" will be available Feb. 10 from noon to 9 p.m., Feb. 13 from 6 to 9 p.m., and on Valentine's Day, Feb. 14, from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. It is recommended that orders be placed early to be sure that the reservations for certain days and times can be filled.

The cost for each Valentine is $40, $10 extra for precise time appointments, and $5 extra for each additional recipient. Proceeds are being used for the service projects and charities the Men of Harmony support.

For more information and to place orders call Bill Fitzgerald at 781-337-0227 or Pete Fitzgerald at 781-341-1688.

Unique Valentine: Adopted Manatee

Are you looking for a unique way to say you care this Valentine's Day?

Say "I Love You" with a manatee. For $20, you can adopt a manatee for your valentine through Save the Manatee Club's (SMC) Adopt-A-Manatee program and send a personalized Valentine's Day gift card and message.

Weighing in at an average of 1,000 pounds and measuring 10 feet long or more, manatees are close to being a ton of love. These "gentle giants" as they have been called, are large, slow-moving, aquatic mammals known for their sweet temper and curiosity.

Manatees spend most of their time eating, resting, and traveling and can be found along the southeast coast of the United States. A migrating species, manatees need warm water to survive and are located primarily in Florida in the winter.

There are 30 manatees in SMC's Adopt-A-Manatee program. Twenty of the adoptive manatees live in the wild and migrate each winter to a natural warm water spring at Blue Spring State Park, near Orange City, FL. Five female manatees live permanently at Homosassa Springs Wildlife State Park in Homosassa, Florida. In addition, five manatees frequently seen in the Tampa Bay area and along the west coast of Florida are up for adoption.

Approximately 3,000 manatees remain in the United States today, and they are listed as endangered by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. SMC's Adopt-A-Manatee program helps to fund education and public awareness projects; research and rehabilitation; and advocacy and legal efforts to help protect manatees and their habitat.

SMC is the world's leading manatee conservation program and was established in 1981 by U.S. Senator Bob Graham and singer Jimmy Buffett.

A manatee adoption packet includes an adoption certificate, and underwater photo, a biography of the adopted manatee, and a membership handbook with information and photos for the manatee enthusiast. A subscription to Save the Manatee Club newsletter is included.

For more information on manatees or the adoption program, call 1-800-432-5646.

Something Special For Your Valentine!

Poll: Time Together Tops Valentine's Day Ideas

(NAIPS) — What's the best way to show a loved one you care this Valentine's Day? According to a poll conducted by the American Heart Association (AHA), more than 50 percent of adults say "time together" is best.

Four out of 10 polled said they preferred to celebrate Valentine's Day with dinner at a restaurant, nearly 30 percent felt a vacation or getaway was the most romantic -- with less than 10 percent interested in dancing or another activity (bowling, skiing, etc.).

The poll is part of AHA's Power of Love campaign, which helps people celebrate the love in their hearts while raising vital funds for research from participating sponsors.

AHA has a long tradition of helping heart health through research and education. Now consumers can show their feelings for loved ones by logging onto a special Power of Love Web site — americanheart.org/love. This site for sweethearts includes:

- Complimentary Valentine's Day screensavers to keep on your computer screen and in your heart -- or to share with your sweetheart.

- Free Valentine's Day electronic greetings to send to loved ones -- including a link to honor your sweetheart with a "donation from the heart" to the American Heart Association.

- Results from AHA's exclusive poll on romance and matters of the heart and opportunities to take part in online instant polls.

- Information on how some of your favorite celebrities spend Valentine's Day.

Thanks in part to AHA-funded research, important discoveries such as CPR, life-extending drugs, pacemakers, bypass surgery and surgical techniques to repair heart defects have been discovered.

Countless people are alive today to enjoy the love of family and friends due to these life-saving advances. With the help of the Power of Love campaign, even more lives may be saved in the future.

The American Heart Association understand the life-saving, life-changing power of love -- after all, "heart" is the organization's middle name. For more information, call 1-800-AHA-USA1.

Indie Film Series Offers Valentine's Gift Feb. 14

In celebration of St. Valentine's Day, the South Shore Independent Film Series will feature short subjects of a romantic nature Thursday, Feb. 14 at 7 p.m. at the United First Parish Church in Quincy Center.

Short film subjects will include: Dressed, directed by Carl Hansen; Georgia Peach Boy by Marnie McCall; Herbert & Maude by Dan Hadisek; Lola Takes a Lover by Chris O'Keefe; The Men's Room by Lawrence Snarkman; Morphology of Desire by Robert Arnold; Mystery by Shandor Garrison; and Rest Stop by Kris Hackel.

Admission is $5 and refreshments will be on sale. For more information, call (617) 773-5306.

The South Shore Independent Film Series is supported in part by a grant from the Quincy Cultural Council, a local agency supported by the Massachusetts Cultural Council, a state agency.

Shrimp Valentine Recipe

Here's a simple recipe to prepare on Valentine's Day.

3 Tbs butter
1 tbs chopped garlic
1/2 cup Napa Saki Sake
2 Tbs lime juice
1 pinch thyme
1/4 tsp salt
2 Tbs chopped cilantro
1/2 cup gorgonzola cheese
16-20 shrimp, peeled and cleaned
1 Tbs cornstarch and 1 tsp sake to moisten

Heat butter and add garlic. Saute until garlic aroma is present. Add shrimp. Saute until pink, but slightly under cooked. Remove shrimp from pan. Add all other ingredients except cornstarch mixture and cheese. Bring mixture to boil. Add cornstarch mixture to thicken. Add shrimp and toss with 3 cups of pasta. Toss in cheese just before serving.

REAL ESTATE

QCAP Sponsoring Homeownership Seminar

Quincy Community Action Programs (QCAP) will hold a free three-session workshop to teach real estate skills to those looking to purchase houses and condominiums.

The nine-hour program will be held from 5:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 21, Monday, Feb. 25, and Thursday, Feb. 28 in the conference room of the Roche Bros. Supermarket, 101 Falls Blvd.

Registration is required along with a $10 commitment deposit to be refunded at the end of the last session upon attendance at all three sessions.

The workshop will focus on the buying process from start to finish, including: determining what price is within a buyer's budget, locating a property at that price, negotiating for the home, inspecting and insuring the property, and closing the deal.

Experts will include a real estate broker, an attorney, a home inspector, a mortgage lender, and QCAP counselors.

The workshop is open to all regardless of income level. Quincy Community Action Programs is a CHAPA, MHFA, and HUD-approved First Time Homebuyer Counseling Agency. Participants who attend all three sessions can obtain completion certificates which are prerequisites for various mortgage assistance programs for qualified first-time homebuyers, especially the city of Quincy, MHFA, and QCAP.

To register or for more information, call Sandra Brennan at (617) 479-8181, ext. 119.

Quincy's Real Estate Market Will Stand Strong In 2002

By DANIEL J. FLYNN III, Chief Executive Officer, Daniel J. Flynn & Co., Inc.

Talk to ten different people and you'll get ten different answers as to how this recession will play out. Some say we can expect recuperation to begin early this year. Others say we'll be feeling the effects for many months to come. Ditto for any inquiries into its impact on the real estate market.

In some ways, the real estate market south of Boston has taken a hit. By some estimates, the vacancy rate for office space south of Boston rose over five percent since the fourth quarter of 2000.

Many businesses are proceeding with caution, holding off on plans to expand, if not making arrangements to contract. Indeed, some businesses have succumbed to these tight economic times.

Naturally, these conditions have both increased inventory on the market and reduced demand. Many property owners have taken this dip in the market as a cue to sell off some of their real estate investments.

But, reader take note: the real estate market over the last three years has been experiencing success of historical proportions. A dip in the market at this juncture is a long way off from the plunge it would take to set off any alarms among real estate investors. "The dip" has actually stabilized what was once a marketplace gone wild. Twelve months ago, property owners could ask buyers for the moon and get it.

Today's market is a much more sensible one.

To the sellers' benefit, real estate promises to continue to attract investors in the active Quincy and South Shore marketplace. However, the influx of inventory will create an atmosphere of competition among sellers as they try to win over willing and able buyers. Throughout 2002, expect sellers to rely heavily on experienced real estate professionals to attract buyers in a highly competitive market.

Even in this economy, every seller can be matched to a buyer. There is ample opportunity among smart investors who have been holding onto their money for the right time. This year, as asking prices become more reasonable, patient investors will take the plunge. Factors such as proximity to Boston, ease of commute, and availability of parking will spur demand in the Quincy area.

Finding that buyer in 2002 will require more aggressive marketing. Properties for sale will require steady, visible advertising. Property signage will be central to any marketing campaign, in an effort to catch the eye of a passing potential buyer. Creative marketing, such as direct mail pieces, internet web sites and even special events such as broker receptions, will all be needed to set one property apart from the rest.

Its anybody's guess as to how far and how deep this recession will cut into the economy and affect our methods of doing business. It is certain, however, that the real estate industry has a long way to fall before hitting crisis mode.

The Quincy real estate market will continue to benefit from urban businesses migrating away from Boston in search of affordable rates and a more spacious environment. Throughout 2002, real estate will remain a steady and secure investment.

Money-Saving Suggestions Make Bills, House More Comfortable

(HIT) — No matter what the season may bring, you can keep your house and electric bill at a more comfortable level.

The following are money-saving tips and suggestions from Edison Electric Institute:

- Keep your heating and cooling equipment well-tuned with periodic maintenance by a licensed service representative. Check and clean or replace air filters on your heating and cooling appliance every month and clean the outside condenser coil once a year.

- During the winter, set your thermostat to maintain a temperature of 68 degrees when the house is occupied and a temperature of 60 degrees when you are away from home or sleeping. In the summer, set your thermostat to maintain a comfortable temperature of 78 degrees when the house is occupied and even higher when you are away from the home. A programmable thermostat can do this for you automatically.

- Place lamps and other objects away from the thermostat to reduce false readings.

- Maintain proper air circulation by keeping heating supply registers clear of draperies and furniture.

For more information contact your electric utility company.

Expert Painting Advice

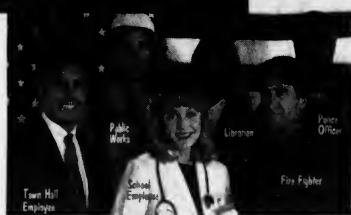

(HIT) — Surveys have shown that painting is the No. 1 home improvement project among do-it-yourselfers. Yet until recently, there was no comprehensive on-line source for consumer information on painting projects.

Now, the Paint Quality Institute, a leading authority on paints and painting, has enhanced its Web site (www.paintquality.com) to provide do-it-yourselfers and others with a wealth of paint information. The site provides expert advice on the entire painting process — from surface preparation to drying time — and even offers a virtual way to experiment with paint colors before starting to paint.

For those who have never painted before, paintquality.com can assist with some of the basics. The "Paint Encyclopedia" has an extensive glossary of paint and paint-related terms, and a tutorial that is designed to be a training tool about the ingredients of paint and their effect on paint properties. The "Problem Solver" section features photographs of various paint failures, such as blistering or cracking; it will help you diagnose the cause of the problem, and provide the solution.

There's much more to see at www.paintquality.com. But the best way to discover its capabilities is to explore it at your leisure. Learn how to "sponge paint" a wall, ask a paint expert a question or experiment with the Design Center — it's all there, just a click or two away.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Alan Jacobson, Psy.D., Director Of Bayview Associates

Alan Jacobson, Psy.D., has been named director of Bayview Associates in Quincy.

Bayview Associates, a program of South Shore Mental Health (SSMH), also has offices in Plymouth and Cape Cod.

In this role, Dr. Jacobson will oversee clinical staff, including psychiatrists, psychologists, and social workers; respond to client requests and needs; and work closely with referral sources. In addition, he will continue clinical work with clients.

Previously, Dr. Jacobson was director of Quality and Utilization Management at SSMH. Prior to joining the agency, he served as the director of the Family Continuity Program's clinics in Plymouth and Hyannis and oversaw several smaller outreach programs in the region.

"Dr. Jacobson brings a variety of skills to this position," said Paul Shaw, vice president of Outpatient Services at Bayview Associates. "He will be a tremendous asset to our management team."

Dr. Jacobson holds a doctorate in psychology from the University of Hartford and completed his doctoral level internship training at South Shore Mental Health. He is a licensed psychologist as well as a certified school psychologist.

"I'm very happy to have the opportunity to oversee a clinic which is known for providing exceptional services to the people of our community," said Dr. Jacobson. "I look forward to working with our staff to expand the services we offer as well as ensure our clients continue to receive high quality services in a timely manner."

Dr. Jacobson resides in Westwood with his family.

Advocating Impact Quincy's Messages Is My Goal

By CASEY NEUMANN
Quincy High School Senior; Member Of H2O

I applaud Impact Quincy, a program of Bay State Community Services, for its hard work and commitment to a single goal of reduction of underage drinking in the city of Quincy.

IQ's messages can be seen all over the city: on bus posters, billboards and also on cable TV commercials. Alcohol is a drug with a lot of frightening repercussions, such as loss of good judgment, nausea and blackouts, which can occur to anyone who is drinking, especially teenagers whose bodies probably are not used to alcohol.

I work as a youth advocate for H2O (Health to Others), another program of Bay State Community Services. This group is known for its preventive work related to HIV infection spreading among teens.

HIV prevention is closely related to alcohol use prevention in the loss of a "good judgment," which frequently occurs when teens drink alcohol. In turn, it frequently leads to unsafe decision-making processes, sometimes resulting in participation in unsafe sex practices. These trends in teens' behavior increases chances for HIV transmission.

Therefore, when members of H2O were asked by IQ to pose for its promotional posters and billboards, I readily agreed to do so in support of its stand on issues highly important to teens everywhere.

By featuring local teens, families and other important leaders of our community, IQ's messages are brought closer to home. IQ's posters and billboards reflect people having fun, either doing something they love or just being happy with friends, emphasizing the message that there is no need for alcohol in order to feel content and happy.

IQ, however, does recognize teens are exposed to messages promoting alcohol and also experience a lot of peer pressure to use alcohol. Teens are frequently caught in a dual position — on one hand rebelling and on another hand trying to escape from pressures of using alcohol or drugs. In spite of these difficulties, IQ has done well in its media campaign. The recent youth risk behavior survey showed underage drinking in the city of Quincy is decreasing.

My primary loyalties are presently related to working as a peer educator for HIV prevention, and promoting messages for H2O. As I stated before, I see messages aimed at the prevention of alcohol abuse by teens as closely intertwined with my main ideas and goals, and I plan to continue supporting IQ's efforts fully in the future.

New Psychotherapist Technique Focuses On New Relationships

Quincy-based psychotherapist Rachel Melemed, LICSW, offers a new psychotherapy technique called EMDR to assist individuals and couples to achieve their dating goals this Valentine's Day.

EMDR stands for "Eye Movement Desensitization and Reprocessing." It is a tool to help people work on the present day impact of experiences from the past that are still affecting their lives today.

EMDR, said Melemed, can rapidly help to work through the "old baggage" of failed relationships and self-defeating patterns. Long-established patterns can be targeted for desensitization and promote change.

Melemed said the technique allows people "the relief of truly letting go of deeply held emotions that may have inhibited you from bringing your best self forward in relationships with those you care about."

"EMDR can eliminate old negative beliefs about yourself that hold you back from your true potential. When utilized by a skilled clinician, this process can help you heal wounds that may create barriers to intimacy. It can also give you the needed confidence to achieve the goals you long to succeed at."

According to Michael Keller, LICSW, of the Menninger Clinic of Topeka, KS, the EMDR procedure, which involves the construction of an image of a traumatic past event along with physical and emotional associations and a "processing phase" using eye movements or similar "attentional stimulation," can be intense and at times upsetting and should only be undertaken with a credentialed therapist. One goal of the procedure is "to activate your coping skills to deal with the present-day impact of the trauma."

Rachel Melemed, LICSW, is a senior psychotherapist with over 20 years of experience in treating individuals and couples. She is also a certified EMDR practitioner. She has been located at 29 Cottage Ave., Suite 11, for 13 years. For more information, contact Melemed at (617) 472-9838.

Melemed said the technique allows people "the relief of truly letting go of deeply held emotions that may have inhibited you from bringing your best self forward in relationships with those you care about."

Understanding Medication

(NAPS) -- American doctors write three billion prescriptions every year. Yet most people know little about their prescription medicine.

The 2002 edition of The Essential Guide to Prescription Drugs 2002: Everything You Need To Know for Safe Drug Use (Harper Resource, $54.95) has facts of this type as well as other information on the potentially harmful effects on mixing medicines.

The book focuses on a number of modern issues, including:

- Should you get medicine from the Internet?
- Why was Cipro (at $30 a pill) on the Web at all?
- What's the difference between an antidepressant and anti-anxiety medicine and who should take them?

The book has been published for nearly 25 years. It is written by James J. Rybacki, Pharm.D.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

CROWNING GLORY

The dental restoration known as a crown (or "cap") is used to cover and encase teeth that have been broken or damaged by decay. Crowns made of porcelain fused to metal are often preferred for their combination of excellent cosmetic appearance and strength. One disadvantage, though, is that the metal underlying the porcelain can sometimes be seen as a dark line at the crown's edge at the gum line. Now, there is a product that utilizes advanced gold material that enables a Captek crown to look natural by eliminating the unsightly black lines commonly associated with traditional crowns. At the same time, the advanced gold material reduces plaque accumulations at the gum line, which would otherwise promote gum disease.

If you want a smile that's your crowning glory, you may need a crown to cover a tooth and restore it to its normal shape and size. A crown can make your tooth stronger and improve its appearance. We are always happy to answer any questions you may have about dental concerns, including crowns. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we're offering you the latest techniques to give you a great appearance. We believe in preventive dental care. If you would like more information, or to schedule an appointment, please call us at 617-479-6220. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com

P.S. The light-dispersing effects of a Captek crown capture the look of a healthy tooth's natural appearance.

Red Raiders 'Decent' But Barnstable Dominant

By CHRIS POISSON

The North Quincy High School boys' basketball team took on the best team in the Old Colony League last Friday night and in the words of head coach Ted Stevenson, "played decent."

Playing decent, however, is not enough when you face Barnstable (15-1 overall, 11-0 OCL), especially down on the Cape, as North Quincy fell, 64-52.

"They're the best team in the league," Stevenson said. They're tough. They play very good. Plus, playing down there doesn't help."

North Quincy (8-7, 5-6) hosted Plymouth South Tuesday and tomorrow (Friday) night at 6:30 it heads to Silver Lake, as North Quincy faced them, 66-58, on Jan. 4.

Following its tough loss to Falmouth on Jan. 25, the Red Raiders came out on fire as they raced to an early 12-3 lead behind senior Dan Duggan's blistering 3-point shooting. Duggan finished with 18 points, netting all five of his treys.

Missing senior defensive specialist Pat Bregoli (shoulder injury), North Quincy had to worry about who was going to contain Mark Cahill, the league's leading scorer.

In the first meeting, Bregoli, a tri-captain, hounded him all game and held him to only 12 points.

BOYS' BASKETBALL

senior star to just seven points.

"They took the ball out of his hands," Stevenson said. "And we just didn't make open shots when we had them."

Senior forward Jack Liuzzo turned in a solid effort with nine points and 12 rebounds. "He showed up for us," Stevenson said. "He played really well."

Last Tuesday, North Quincy knocked off Bridgewater-Raynham, 64-56, on the road, marking the first time since the early 1990s that North Quincy has swept the Trojans. It beat them, 66-58, on Jan. 4.

Following its tough loss to Falmouth on Jan. 25, the Red Raiders came out on fire as they raced to an early 12-3 lead behind senior Dan Duggan's blistering 3-point shooting. Duggan finished with 18 points, netting all five of his treys.

Missing senior defensive specialist Pat Bregoli (shoulder injury), North Quincy had to worry about who was going to contain Mark Cahill, the league's leading scorer. In the first meeting, Bregoli, a tri-captain, hounded him all game and held him to only 12 points.

McGillicuddy, along with help from seniors Mike Haynes and Matt Donovan, picked up the slack as Cahill scored 23 points — six below his average.

"We controlled Cahill again," Stevenson said. "Their coach said that was his second lowest total of the season. The other was against also against us."

North Quincy held a 32-25 lead at halftime and maintained an eight- to 10-point advantage throughout most of the second half. But Barnstable, behind some long 3-pointers from Cahill, closed to within six points with about three minutes left.

For the remainder of the game, though, North Quincy put on a free-throw clinic. Duggan (4 for 4), McGillicuddy (4 for 4) and senior tri-captain John O'Connell (2 for 2) hit all their freebies down the stretch to cement the win.

McGillicuddy finished with 18 points and O'Connell added 15, while Liuzzo turned in a solid effort under the boards. Seniors Dennis Thomson and Adam O'Hara also played, receiving more minutes with Bregoli out.

"We're starting to get quality minutes from Haynes, O'Hara and Thomson," Stevenson said.

Presidents Pin 10th Straight Win On North

The Quincy High School wrestling team defeated rival and host North Quincy for the 10th straight time Monday night with a 60-18 victory.

Quincy finished the regular season with an impressive 19-8 overall record and a 6-1 mark in the Pilgrim Conference.

Beginning tomorrow (Friday) at 3 p.m., the Division I South Sectionals will be held at Quincy's gym at the Center for Technical Education. Wrestling will continue all day Saturday beginning at 10 a.m. with the action culminating with the finals at 6 p.m.

WRESTLING

Fifteen schools will compete with Quincy in 14 weight classes. The top six competitors will advance to the state tournament the following week at Springfield Cathedral.

Against North Quincy, the Presidents received pins from Yen Truong, Bao Truong, Jason Chase, Mike Murphy, Dennis Hill, Jason Moore, Joe Hern, Scott Kelley and Chris Sullivan, along with exciting comeback wins from Ledion Proto and Dan Coleman.

The Red Raiders received pins from Dan Nuttner, Dan Donato and Kosta Kalpakidas.

Before the match, a ceremony was held honoring the outstanding accomplishments on the mat by Murphy and Hern, both of whom won over 100 matches in their high school careers.

SPORTS

North Quincy Tourney-Bound

By CHRIS POISSON

It seemed like a stretch before the season, but the North Quincy High School girls' basketball team finds itself in great position to repeat as Old Colony League champions.

Before defeating Barnstable, 52-33, last Friday night at home, the Red Raiders traveled to Bridgewater-Raynham last Tuesday for their biggest game of the season.

After a shaky first half, North Quincy bounced back in the second half to down the Trojans, 54-42, locking up a berth in the state tournament while moving into first place in the league. It was also its third straight win following a loss that snapped its six-game winning streak.

"It's unbelievable," said head coach Doug

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

MacFarlane.

It's unbelievable because not many thought the Red Raiders would be on pace to match last season's record performance. But at this point in the season, that's exactly what they've done.

North Quincy (11-3 overall) and B-R each have a 9-2 record in the OCL, but the Red Raiders take the top spot having swept the Trojans this year.

"Honestly, I never thought we'd be 11-3 at this point," MacFarlane said. "I thought it would be very difficult to repeat."

But before North Quincy begins to clear space in the gym for another championship banner, it still has three league games left on the schedule. It traveled to Plymouth South Tuesday and tomorrow (Friday) night it hosts Silver Lake at 6:30. It finishes league play next Tuesday against Marshfield.

Against B-R, the Red Raiders couldn't get anything going offensively in the first half as they were victimized by a slew of turnovers.

Trailing 22-15 with 1:10 before halftime, they began to turn things around. Senior co-captain Lauren Sleeth hit a couple of baskets and junior April Suprey added a pair of free throws, as they closed with a 6-0 run.

"The momentum just continued in the second half," MacFarlane said. "The kids came out fired up for that game. They just came to play. I don't know what it is about Bridgewater."

Once North Quincy took the lead, it never looked back, as the cold shooting that plagued them in previous weeks warmed up to a pleasant 44 percent.

Sleeth finished with 21 points, seven rebounds, five assists and three steals. Suprey added 11 points, nine boards and six assists, while senior Kahli Dearani pulled down nine rebounds.

Against Barnstable, North Quincy caught a break when it did not have to worry about trying to stop Amy Lyon, who missed the game with an injury. With Lyon off the court, the Red Raiders breezed to a victory.

Sleeth turned in yet another all-around game, with 16 points, four rebounds, three assists and seven steals. Suprey chipped in 11 points, while junior Lauren Kalil shined on the defensive end.

KATHLEEN MCCARTHY (right) receives a plaque honoring her as the "Gatorade 2001-2002 Massachusetts Player Of The Year" from North Quincy head coach Jim Rendle. McCarthy led the Red Raiders to a perfect 26-0 season and the MIAA state championship.

GIRLS' ICE HOCKEY

Quincy-North Defeats Duxbury

The Quincy-North Quincy girls' hockey team defeated Duxbury, 3-2, last Saturday.

Manganaro potted the second goal with Hill picking up an assist.

Junior Lauren Struzik played well defensively and goalie Jessie Poggi turned in a strong game between the pipes.

With the win, Q-NQ improved to 12-2 overall in its inaugural season. It will play Falmouth tomorrow (Friday) at 3 p.m. at Shea Rink.

Quincy Comeback Bid Falls Short

The Quincy High School girls' basketball team lost a game it truly deserved to win last Friday night in front of the home crowd.

After watching their five-point halftime lead evaporate in the second half, the Presidents rallied from a six-point deficit with about four minutes left in the game but came up short in their comeback bid.

Actually, it came up long.

With three seconds left and the ball at midcourt, Sarah Shea received the ball in the right corner off the inbound, but her desperation heave over a band of Warriors sailed long and Nauset escaped with a 59-56 victory over the disheartened Presidents.

"I don't know what to say. I'm kind of shell-shocked," said head coach Jeff Bretsch. "I thought we played good. The kids played hard. They don't quit. It just didn't fall our way at the end."

Quincy (8-7 overall, 3-7 Atlantic Coast League) hosted Sandwich Tuesday, and tonight (Thursday) at 6:30 it travels to Plymouth South and tomorrow night at 6:30 it heads to Randolph.

Although this season was seen as a rebuilding year in Bretsch's first season, what makes this loss so heartbreaking is that the Presidents are in the hunt for a state tournament berth.

The Presidents need two more wins to qualify for the tourney. Including Tuesday's game, they had five games left in the season to try and accomplish that task.

"It's a setback for us," Bretsch said. "This is the first close game that we've lost. This is a heartbreaker for them. We're not going to roll over, certainly. We have a job to do, and we have five more games to do it."

Quincy held a 34-29 lead at the break, but Nauset (4-9, 3-6) opened the second half with a 12-4 run to take a 41-37 lead with 8:46 left.

Quincy, though, responded loudly. Its super sophomore backcourt, Shea and Bonnie Hirtle, buried back-to-back 3-pointers, respectively. On Hirtle's shot, she pulled up several feet behind the arc at the top of the key.

The Warriors engineered a 9-1 run to go ahead 50-44 with four minutes left. Just when it seemed the Presidents were out of the game, Shea came through with another trey and then fed junior Shannon Paine a beautiful pass inside for a layup.

After a Nauset basket, Hirtle delivered another clutch 3-pointer to knot the score at 52, leaving the Nauset coach in disbelief and forcing him to call a timeout with 2:02 left on the clock.

Hirtle hit a layup immediately after the timeout, but Nauset scored the next five points for a 57-54 lead with 50 seconds left.

Shea stole the ball at Nauset's end and fired a touchdown pass to a streaking Hirtle for easy layup to pull Quincy within one. Nauset added two free throws to close out the scoring, as the Presidents couldn't pull out the win.

Shea, who has picked up her game of late, finished with 16 points, including four 3-pointers. In the previous game — a 54-42 home win over Dennis-Yarmouth last Tuesday — she scored 19 points on 8-of-9 shooting, including three treys.

Hirtle, the league's third leading scorer with 14 points per game, poured in a team-high 23 points and also knocked down four from behind the arc. Paine chipped in with 10 points.

"Sarah Shea has been playing well," Bretsch said. "She really showed court sense and leadership out there. Terrific passing, terrific shooting. It has been a joy to watch her get more confident every game."

"She has been a nice complement to Bonnie, who has done very well this year. She had a good game, too. She was actually out with the flu [Thursday]. She still had it [Friday] and came in and played a heck of a game."

JUST GETTING WARMED UP

If you must wait in line for a vehicle inspection, you may fall victim to erroneous emissions system test readings. As an engine idles, the temperature of emissions control components, such as the catalytic converter and oxygen sensor, fall below normal, resulting in an increase in exhaust emissions levels, even though these emissions control components are performing well. To ensure a more accurate reading, take the long route to the testing site to get the engine hot enough to stimulate the emissions control components to do their job adequately. If a wait is necessary, keep the engine running in neutral or park and press the gas pedal down every now and then to get the engine running at fast idle.

If you emission system functioning properly? LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550) is your local auto center that can handle all your automotive needs. We never compromise the wonderful reputation we have earned from our many satisfied customers. Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. Open: Mon.-Fri. 6am-9pm, 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." We are your local source for propane for grills, motor homes, and converted vehicles.

HINT: If the engine of a late-model vehicle idles too fast, the problem may rest with a malfunctioning sensor.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Lots of mixed signals can create an unreliable situation in which to make decisions. Best advice: Hold off on making any commitments until you're sure you know what's going on.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) An apparently friendly offer comes with some strings attached. Be careful not to get tied into something you don't really want. Thoroughly examine all your options before making a choice.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) If you're not careful, distractions can interrupt your best efforts. Continue to focus on what you need to do. You'll soon have lots of time to enjoy the rewards of your dedication.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Knowledge replaces suspicion as you learn more about that "act of betrayal." On a lighter note, someone close to you might be planning a pleasant surprise.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Control your sometimes-overactive jealousy gene before you find yourself saying or doing something that you could later regret. Best advice: Stop obsessing and move on.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) It's a good time to loosen up and do something wonderful and exciting before your more reserved nature resurfaces. A message brings news of imminent change.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Cheer up. Things begin to improve significantly by mid-February. However, you might still need help to get through the rest of this sometimes-difficult period.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Something you learned last week takes on new meaning as you begin to relate it to another situation in your life. It's best to keep this to yourself for now.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your energy level is climbing, and so is your self-confidence. Good for you, because you'll need a good dollop of both to tackle an exciting challenge on the way.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A family issue might interrupt a career-linked project. Try to give the matter the attention it needs, but take care not to jeopardize your workplace situation.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Some self-doubt shows up this week, causing you to question your ability to handle a new challenge. But you know you can do it, and this is your chance to prove it.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A personal matter requires you to be as clear and forthcoming as possible in order to avoid misunderstandings. A career move is eased with the emergence of new facts.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a way of reaching people that makes them feel good about themselves. You would be a splendid motivational speaker.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

OBITUARIES

John E. Calligan, 66

Marine Corps Veteran

A funeral service for John E. Calligan, 66, of Quincy, a Marine Corps veteran, was held Monday at Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St.

He died Jan. 30 at home.

Mr. Calligan served in Korea and Vietnam from 1953 to 1968, with a total of two years overseas. He was honorably discharged as a staff sergeant.

He received the Good Conduct Medal with two stars; National Defense Service Medal with a star; Republic of Vietnam Service Medal with a star; Armed Forces Expeditionary Medal; Republic of Vietnam Campaign Medal; the rifle sharpshooter badge; marksman badge; and Meritorious Medal.

Born in California, he was raised in Roslindale and attend Boston public schools. He lived 30 years in Quincy.

Mr. Calligan was a cook, most recently working at Grumpy White's Restaurant in Quincy.

He is survived by his wife, Lea L. (Papineau) Calligan; two sons, Jeffrey Calligan and John Calligan, both of Quincy; two daughters, Carla B. Scanlon of Holbrook and Erica M. Calligan of Weymouth; two brothers, Joseph H. Calligan of New Mexico and Robert Calligan of Quincy; three sisters, Rose-Marie Doherty of Walpole, Patricia Hazlehurst of Quincy and Elizabeth Fishman of Florida; and a grandson.

Burial was in Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne.

Virginia M. Sorenson, 78

Seamstress

A funeral service for Virginia M. (Sparks) Sorenson, 78, of Quincy, a seamstress, was held Tuesday at First Church of Squantum.

She died Feb. 1 at Carney Hospital in Dorchester.

In addition to being an accomplished seamstress, Mrs. Sorenson was also a craftswoman, knitter, furniture refinisher, leather tooler, gardener and gourmet cook.

Born in Middletown, N.Y., she moved to Massachusetts 50 years ago.

She was a member of First Church of Squantum.

She was active in the Girl Scouts with her children when they were younger.

Wife of the late Arthur Sorenson Jr., she is survived by a son, David A. Sorenson of Squantum; three daughters, Barbara O'Flaherty of Scituate, Lynda O. Sorenson of Squantum and Carole A. Norman C. Gray, 80

Retired Newsman

A memorial service will be held Saturday, Feb. 9, at 2 p.m. in First Trinitarian Congregational Church, Scituate, for Norman C. Gray, the consummate newspaperman, who started his 53-year career with the Quincy Patriot Ledger and worked for several Boston dailies.

A resident of Scituate, he died Friday at the age of 80 in the Vencor Rehabilitation Center in Peabody. Mr. Gray was a former Quincy resident.

"He loved being part of newspapers; he just loved going to work every day," said Marguerite (Morgan) Gray, his wife of 55 years, who was also a Patriot Ledger reporter when he met and married her.

Mr. Gray was deputy managing editor of the Boston Herald when he retired in 1997, having worked as a reporter, city editor, news editor and Sunday editor for Boston Traveler, the Herald-Traveler, the Herald-American and the Boston Globe.

He came from a newspaper family. His grandfather set type for a paper in Everett and his father, Chester C. Gray, was chief accountant for the Boston Post. He studied journalism at Boston University but left without a degree to begin his career in 1944.

He once explained his philosophy to a Northeastern journalism class: "To me, a newspaper is a living, speaking, being, a part of history being made every day."

A native of Southboro, Mr. Gray graduated from Southboro High School as president of his class.

In addition to his wife, he leaves three daughters, Ellen Skjerli of Scituate, Sarah MacPherson of Pembroke and Natalie Miniutti of Storrs, Conn.; two sons, Colin Gray of Braintree and Lawrence Gray of Thailand; two sisters, Dorothy Newman of Canton and Ruth Pratt of Sharon; and seven grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements are being made by the Richardson-Gaffey Funeral Home, 382 First Parish Rd., Scituate.

Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Donations may be made to the Platelet Disorder Support Association, PO Box 61533, Potomac MD 20859, or to other charities.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Valentine's Day is for children, lovers and romantics. Well, essentially, yes, but when it comes to affairs of the heart, everyone is included.

Valentines need not be expensive. A happy note written in your own handwriting... a telephone call to someone who might not otherwise receive a call.

Some people find it hard to say "I love you," but on Valentine's Day they express that sentiment with special remembrances or gifts. It is also a day that "mushy" sentiments on brightly colored paper are not really taken seriously (i.e. Valentines exchanged by children at school). There, the important thing is the number of valentines received, not the sentiment. As people mature, the sentiment becomes more important than the number.

It only takes a little time to send a valentine, or a note, or to make a telephone call to someone, especially someone who is a little "out of circulation" these days. A little surprise gift will make that someone feel special, and you'll feel good too!

IVAN DONADIC of Quincy, a volunteer with the Salvation Army, and Major Doug Jones, commanding officer of the Salvation Army Quincy Temple Corps, collect coats for the 7th annual "Coats for Kids" coat drive at Anton's Cleaners in Braintree assisted by Fred Benitich of Anton's Cleaners. Donated coats are collected at any of Anton's Cleaners' 41 stores in Eastern Massachusetts and Southern New Hampshire, cleaned by Anton's Cleaners as a community service, and distributed to those in need by the Salvation Army, community action programs across the state, and four major Boston homeless shelters. The goal of this year's drive, which ends Jan. 15, is 30,000 coats.

Newton agreed, saying he was uncomfortable with dipping into the Stabilization Fund without a public process explaining the move to residents. "It's the process of it," Newton said. "The people of Quincy will want to know why."

Raymond said he was "a bit disappointed" at what he called a lack of dialogue with Mayor William Phelan's office, accusing the city of "raiding" the stabilization account rather than scrutinizing the FY 2002 budget — which was submitted by former Mayor James Sheets but has not yet been certified by the state's Department of Revenue because of the delays unique to this year — for appropriate cuts.

Reached for comment Tuesday, Phelan called Raymond's request to scrutinize the FY 2002 budget "unrealistic."

"The budget is what it is and we have to deal with it," Phelan said. "To think that you can cut $2.5 million from an existing budget seven months into the Fiscal Year within a week without laying a number of people off in the process is fiscally irresponsible."

"If we don't get certification of the tax rates from the state, which should have happened prior to my taking office, then the tax bills that were sent out prior to my taking office will not be due."

Phelan added that recent belt-tightening measures would be reflected in the upcoming Fiscal Year 2003 budget.

One financial bright spot of Monday night's meeting was the announcement that new growth figures came in at $6.4 million, or $2.2 million more than projected.

"This new growth looks like it will save our bacon this year," said McCauley, explaining that he had originally feared the city would have to use all of its "Rainy Day Fund" to balance the books, "but who knows how long it will last?"

Third and fourth quarter tax bills are usually based on actual tax rates set in December. State budget delays coupled with the state's request for additional financial information from the city, however, have delayed the process.

Two Residents On Dean's List

Two Quincy women, Rebecca Barry and Kathleen Pringle, have been named to the dean's list for the fall semester at Fitchburg State

Raucous Convention Polarizes City Officials

By CRAIG SALTERS

A raucous beginning to the joint convention charged with filling a vacant seat on the School Committee has polarized many of the city's elected officials even before the scheduled vote of said convention Monday, Feb. 25.

"I think the way the chairman ran that meeting was wrong," said convention member and School Committee Vice-Chairwoman Christine Cedrone, referring to what she called Mayor William Phelan's refusal to recognize other convention members' motions and points of order. "What the mayor did was really a disgrace and shows that he has no real ability to lead."

"I felt that we were working for a king, that we were not allowed to speak, that I was not allowed to do my job, and no mayor has the authority to do that."

Phelan, who pointed out that both the City Council and School Committee had sought to call the joint convention despite the city charter's stipulation that only the mayor could do so, said that he maintained order Friday night following key decisions by Acting City Solicitor Joseph MacRitchie and kept the meeting to its purpose: listening to candidates for School Committee.

"I have no agenda other than to try to accomplish the people's work of selecting a School Committee member," said Phelan. "My job, as chairman and presiding officer, was to maintain order and fairness. Because the rulings (of the solicitor) were upheld, I felt that we needed to move on to the business at hand.

"One thing that I will not stand for is to disrespect the mayor's office; not me personally, but the office," Phelan added.

Specifically responding to his refusal to recognize a motion by Council President Daniel Raymondi to vote on candidates that night instead of Feb. 25, Phelan again cited MacRitchie's ruling that to change posted dates would have violated state Open Meeting Laws.

"I merely upheld the decisions of the solicitor," Phelan said. "If the members had wanted to change the

McCauley Responds To Sheets For 'Hard Drive' Comments

Former Mayor James Sheets' statements about finding "deleted hard drives and bare shelves" in the mayor's office upon taking office in 1990 are untrue, his predecessor Francis X. McCauley says.

McCauley, currently a member of the City Council, pointed to recent newspaper reports that indicated that the Sheets administration had erased several of the computer hard drives in the mayor's office prior to Mayor William Phelan taking office. In explaining the situation, Sheets claimed that he was "simply following the guidelines" of the McCauley administration, which he claimed had also erased the office's hard drives and removed files before turning over the mayor's office to Sheets.

Sheets' statements are false, McCauley said. "When I was mayor during the 1980's, computers were in their infancy," McCauley said. "The mayor's office didn't even get computers until the last year or so of my administration."

The reason his computer's hard drive was

Third Quarter Tax Bills Are Due March 11

The state's Department of Revenue has certified the city's Proforma tax rate recapitulation, making previously mailed third quarter estimated tax bills due Monday, March 11.

The fourth quarterly bill, which will be the actual bill for the fiscal year with credit for payments of the three estimated bills, will be due Wednesday, May 1 or 30 days after mailing, whichever is later. The same date will be the deadline for applications for abatement.

The state approved the city's Proforma tax rate capitation, in which the city must balance estimated expenditures with estimated revenues, Feb. 8.

Third quarter preliminary tax bills were mailed to city residents Dec. 31 but the original due date was ruled invalid because of lack of state approval.

Marion Fantucchio, chairwoman of the Board of Assessors, said the approval of the Proforma tax rate recapitulation moves the process of setting city tax rates forward. Fantucchio said she expected the state Department of Revenue to visit the city sometime next week to certify property valuations. If that happens, she said, the city could aim for a public hearing on tax classification and the setting of the actual tax rate by the City Council's meeting on March 4.

Property values for all taxpayers cannot be posted until the state approves those values, Fantucchio said.

When those valuations are approved, she said, public notice will be given and copies will be made available in the office of the Board of Assessors at City Hall during its regular business hours and at the Thomas Crane Public Library during its regular library hours.

$4.4 M Projected Deficit In FY '02 Could Mean Layoffs

By CRAIG SALTERS

Layoffs, increased fees, and the delay or cancellation of municipal projects are just some of the measures the city is considering as it faces a projected deficit of $4.4 million for the current fiscal year, which ends June 30.

"Everything is on the table," Mayor William Phelan said last Thursday in his office during a televised press conference, referring to ways to close the $4.4 million gap.

Later, Phelan rejected the possibility of a Proposition 2 1/2 override and reaffirmed his belief that the current 169 percent tax classification -- and not the state maximum of 175 percent -- struck the right balance between residents and businesses in the city for the next fiscal year, FY 2003.

"For the City of Quincy, financially tough times are here today," said Phelan, who said the $4.4 million projected deficit for FY 2002 -- which includes a more than $2 million projected deficit for the Quincy Public Schools -- was based on figures presented to him by City Auditor Michael McFarland.

Phelan, who took office Jan. 7 and inherited a FY 2002 budget of roughly $193 million, attributed projected overruns to a failure by the previous administration to adequately fund certain areas.

"The (FY 2002) budget is woefully underfunded," said Phelan, citing as one example an allocation of $300,000 to pay overtime for city firefighters when that figure had already reached $750,000.

Phelan also said the new administration's efforts to handle the situation were hampered by a lack of basic information, claiming that City Hall had drives had been erased before he took office and that the city's annual reports had not been filed since 1996.

In an effort to reduce the projected deficit, Phelan said, the mayor's office has instructed department heads to rein in spending during the remaining months of FY 2002 and is requiring approval of all new expenditures. In addition, overtime for city workers has stopped with the exception of emergency or public safety issues and the ideas of early retirement incentives and furloughs are being explored.

But those cost-cutting measures simply will not be enough, the mayor said.

"Nothing can be done to this year's budget other than to balance it," Phelan said. "Difficult decisions will have to be made and I, as your mayor, will be prepared to make those decisions."

The projected $4.4 million in additional expenditures is above and beyond a more than $2 million deficit in anticipated revenues -- attributed primarily to a $400,000 decrease in projected state aid and the loss of $1.6 million in funds originally anticipated by the MWRA -- which necessitated the city's appropriation Feb. 4 of $2.5 million from the city's Stabilization Fund.

"It (the appropriation) was necessary in order for the tax bills which had previously been sent to become due," Phelan explained.

As for FY 2003, Phelan reiterated his commitment to "zero-based" budgeting practices and said he was looking forward to meeting challenges ahead.

"Sacrifice is truly what's needed for the city to come together," Phelan said.

In a press conference that lasted more than one hour, Phelan reassured residents that the proposed construction of a new Quincy High School, which would be funded by bond issues, would not be affected by the current deficit. He further promised to leave funds generated by the motel/hotel tax for their intended purposes of open space and tourism and not to allow the immediate budget crisis to pressure him into negotiating a short-sighted permanent agreement with the MWRA.

"We're not going to settle for one penny less than what we deserve," Phelan said.

Phelan made a point during his remarks of warning residents to prepare for their fourth quarter tax bill, the only "actual" tax bill residents will receive this fiscal year because of tax rate certification delays.

Pointing out that state-mandated reassessments raised the average valuation of a single-family house in Quincy from $154,000 to $240,000, Phelan warned an average increase of $600 might be borne on the last tax bill rather than spread out over the last two tax bills as usual.

"People should know that they should budget for that actual tax bill," Phelan said.

Phelan Says Education Key Factor In Birmingham Endorsement

Mayor William Phelan said his decision to endorse state Senate President Thomas Birmingham for governor was made because of Birmingham's "proven track record" in the area of education and his advocacy for working-class families.

"Senator Birmingham impressed me as someone who is sincerely committed to issues related to education," said Phelan, noting Birmingham's authorship of the Education Reform Act of 1993 which dramatically increased education funding for Quincy and other communities statewide. "I felt strongly that Senator Birmingham most closely reflected my beliefs as to how the government should be run."

Phelan elaborated further that Birmingham's stand to provide health care for all Massachusetts children and his early questioning of moving forward with tax cuts that could reduce state aid showed leadership on the part of the Chelsea Democrat.

Phelan told The Sun Tuesday afternoon that he was not concerned about a potential backlash should Birmingham fail to win the state's highest elected position, explaining that a number of Democratic candidates were qualified and that Birmingham was simply his choice among them.

"I'm one person saying how I feel," Phelan said. "Somebody asks me what my opinion is and, for what it's worth, that's what it is."

In accepting Phelan's endorsement, Birmingham said:

"I have made it a point to collaborate closely with mayors. Mayors and state leaders share constituents and bear a common responsibility to the people we represent together."

"I admire Mayor Phelan for his hard work on behalf of the people of Quincy. I am grateful for his hospitality and am honored by his support. I can't thank him enough."

City Hall Seminar To Explain Conflict Of Interest Laws

The Massachusetts Ethics Commission will conduct two educational seminars to explain the state's conflict of interest laws Tuesday, Feb. 19, at 3 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. in the City Council Chambers at City Hall.

The seminars will be conducted by Maxene Armour, public education specialist of the commission. All public officials and city employees have been invited to attend.

The commission enforces the state's conflict of interest and financial disclosure laws, which cover the actions of municipal officials and employees on the job, after hours and after they leave government service.

The seminars explain how to avoid potential conflicts which may arise between their private interests and public positions.

The goal of the seminars is to provide a basic understanding of the principles of the law and how to comply with them by discussing "real life" situations and conflicts that may arise on the job.

Some topics covered include restrictions on receiving gifts, outside employment, contracting with the city, acting on matters which family members and business associates have a financial interest and leaving government to work for companies that do business with the city.

A Plea To Asian Residents

To those who are involved in making their community better, we are grateful for your efforts, and appreciate them.

To those who aren't, please get involved. If you want your neighborhood to be or continue to be safe; if you want your schools to be or continue to be highly regarded places of learning; if you want your streets to be or continue to clean, then participate.

If you need something done, you must raise your voice and let it be heard, but also give a helping hand. Don't depend on others to do everything. Clean streets, good schools, safe neighborhoods, etc. are the results of peoples' activism and hard work.

We Asians have been stereotyped as being quiet and docile, saying "yes" and obeying whatever comes our way, and, to a degree, it's true. If you have the desire to change this image, make yourselves heard, tutor, do public service. There are so many opportunities out there.

In general, we are hard workers. Let's also be "community caregivers."

The 'Q' Is For Quincy

Leo Papile was proud of the commendations he received as a detective during his 39-year career as a Metropolitan District Commission police officer.

And proud to have been a Marine. But he took extra special pride in his middle name.

"The 'Q,'" he would remind everyone just in case he hadn't told them before, "stands for Quincy."

Leo, who died last week at 78, was given the name by his father, Raffael, because of his own love for Quincy, his cherished adopted home.

Quincy meant that much to Raffael and Lucia DiLorenzo who were next door neighbors in Torre dei Passeri, Italy, came to Quincy and were married here in 1906.

They had 16 children, struggling through the Great Depression. Seven of them, including Leo, enlisted in the armed forces and served overseas during World War II.

Seven sons, seven brothers, all in that war. In addition to Leo:

Albert, George, Ralph (Chick) in the Navy; Bill and Angelo, Army; and James, Coast Guard.

All went overseas and came home safely.

Bill was a city councillor and Jim served 20 years as a city assessor until this year's appointments by Mayor William Phelan.

A most remarkable "Greatest Generation" family.

Mayor James Sheets and the city honored the family in May, 2000, dedicating in their name a mini-like park area on the Edwards St. side of the now Point Webster Middle School.

An appropriate site -- just across the way from the family home on Harkins St. And where most of the children attended both the Webster Elementary and Point Junior High School which were both housed in what is now the middle school.

The seven brothers who served in World War II soon will be further honored by a vote of the City Council to rename Atlas St. at Washington and Pond Sts. to Papile Way.

And if Leo could be there he no doubt would be reminding someone: "The 'Q' is for Quincy."

TIM CAHILL may have opened a political door for City Auditor Michael McFarland.

Cahill is leaving his Norfolk County treasurer post to run for state treasurer.

And McFarland is looking at a run to succeed him in Dedham.

"I am considering running," McFarland acknowledges. "Considering it very seriously."

McFarland says he has been "talking with a few people" to get their reaction. And the reaction has been good.

"I'll make a decision in a couple of weeks."

McFarland, who is 47, knows the political and financial scene.

Now in his third year as city auditor, and second term as a school committeeman, he was executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets three years and city purchasing agent a year. He has also been a member of the Quincy Retirement Board since 1994.

Will he run?

Well, if he listens to two of his closest "advisors," he will.

They are his 17-year-old twins, Erin and Ryan. Erin says: "Do what you think you should do, Dad." And Ryan says: "Go for it."

CHRISTINE SCHUSTER, Quincy Medical Center CEO and Councillor Frank McCauley produced a few chuckles with a little banter at last week's City Council meeting.

Schuster was reporting on the "tremendous progress" at QMC since its affiliation with Boston Medical Center in October, 1999.

SCHUSTER

McCAULEY

McCauley had a question: "Are you taking good care of the McCauley Building?" (The wing named for him.)

"Yes," Schuster replied and went on stating the benefits of QMC to the community. But McCauley said she was preaching to the choir and that he was already convinced.

He had first-hand knowledge of the fine care there, noting "I was at Quincy Medical Center Jan. 9 for a hernia operation..."

Schuster stopped him there with "and you're still with us now" as laughter ringed the chamber.

McCauley came back to say he told the QMC staff while he was there that he was "a Republican and needed to stay healthy to keep an eye on the Democrats."

Bob Curry, chairman of the QMC Board, also spoke and praised Schuster for her energetic work. He said the monthly board meetings are extremely productive because Schuster "cracks the whip" to make sure the members are prepared and ready to contribute.

Things apparently have changed for the better.

Curry said a former trustee from the old days of the hospital told him the biggest concerns at the old board meetings was "What are we having for dessert?"

The seven areas certified are: Brakes, Electrical/Electronics Systems, Engine Performance, Engine Repair, Heating and Air Conditioning, Manual Drive Trains, and Suspension and Steering.

A team of industry representatives and an evaluation team leader from Silver Lake High School spent several days at the school in December. The evaluation team reviewed QHS/CTE's credentials, equipment, curriculum, facility, and the administration of programs. Student interviews and graduate placement were also assessed.

Through the work of Emily Lebo, director of Career and Technical Education; Roy Parkhurst, department chair; and Scott Holbrook and Ed Campbell, instructors, the Center for Technical Education now offers students and the community industry-based credentials in Automotive Repair.

Students will now be recognized as having attended a program that meets the rigor of this national certifying organization.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1909 postcard view of Anne Hutchinson Square in Wollaston looking east on Beale Street. The horse and carriage is on the bridge crossing the railroad tracks. To the left of the bridge in this view was Depot Square, and the area there behind the white fence, was later to become the site of the first Howard Johnson store. Newport Avenue intersects right-to-left through the center, and Grand View Avenue comes down the hill in the lower right. In the distance the trees were on A.W. Farrington's estate that was later developed into today's Wollaston Center. On the left the old Wollaston Hotel later became the site of the offices of the Red Coach Grille and Howard Johnson's. It is now a warehouse. A tablet near it tells the story of Anne Hutchinson. On the right the building, then an antique shop, has been replaced by a power station for the MBTA's Red Line.

Surprised By Mayor's Decisions

What is Quincy's Mayor Phelan thinking of? That's a question that I and every concerned citizen of the City of Quincy need to wonder about in view of some of the mayor's recent decisions.

I, along with many others, was surprised by the mayor's decision to abruptly fire the city's Benefits Coordinator, Dot Cucinatta. Dot has been responsible for handling health insurance questions for city employees and retirees for as many years as I can remember. In my role as a consultant assisting Quincy teachers planning to retire, I have sent many teachers to see Dot, confident that they would be treated fairly and professionally by a person extremely knowledgeable in insurance matters. The unnecessary loss of the services of a person of her caliber and experience is without a doubt a major blow to all of those active employees and retirees who have helped to make this city one of which we can be justifiably proud!

Adding to my concern is the mayor's decision to summarily dismiss five of the six voluntary trustees of the Thomas Crane Library, one of them being myself. The replacement trustees will undoubtedly take some time to get up-to-speed in providing proper oversight to an institution that means so much to Quincy's citizens. Never before in the memory of anyone associated with the library has an incoming mayor discharged in mass incumbent library trustees to be replaced by new appointees. The mayor's cavalier decision to dismiss a group of experienced, committed trustees able to make informed decisions on very non-political matters is indeed mystifying! All the more so, when they were in the process of launching a campaign to raise private funds to augment diminishing public funds to support library programs.

Certainly Mayor Phelan has every right to select his own team. At the same time he may need to be reminded that he won the mayor's office by the slimmest of margins and with the support of less than 23 percent of the registered voters in the city of Quincy. His performance in office thus far has done more to divide the city rather than bringing people together as is needed.

Joint Convention Or Drew Carey Show?

The Joint Convention of city councilors and school board members was called by Mayor Phelan on Feb. 8 at City Hall. It lasted five hours with the first hour sounding like the Drew Carey Show: bickering, hollering, huffing, puffing.

All the interested candidates trying to finish out the mayor's unexpired term on the school committee were there to make their five-minute case.

I made my case and sat down to hear from the others. I stayed until 9:30 p.m. and couldn't take anymore. I caught the rest on cable the next day. A neighbor of mine told me he saw me on TV. So did another neighbor. Everyone seemed to like my new shirt but nobody remembered what I said. However, they all liked the opening sitcom. You know, the bickering, hollering, huffing and puffing.

Thank God I like politics so much. Why else would I show up on a Friday night at City Hall without having my supper.

Quincy's Yesterdays Meyers Named City Planner

By PAUL HAROLD

Mayor James McIntyre named David Meyers city planner this week replacing James Lee who resigned his post. Meyers' appointment followed a boost in the planner's salary by the city council from $8,435 to $14,000.

McIntyre made the naming of a new city planner a key point in his inaugural address in the hope of taking advantage of the new federal grants program for municipal government. Meyers previously served as an assistant with the Boston Redevelopment Authority (BRA).

WOLLASTON LUTHERAN SCHOOL FUND

Officials at the Wollaston Lutheran Church kicked off a fund drive to raise $75,000 to add four classrooms to the existing building.

Since its founding in 1947 as a nursery and kindergarten, the school had grown to an enrollment of 108 with its first sixth grade graduation in 1956. While the school was religiously orientated with weekly chapel, it was not limited to Lutherans, but had students representing 79 Christian denominations.

The property next to the church for the school expansion was purchased in 1960.

MAYOR MOVES TO CORNER OFFICE

The Mayor's office at city hall was moved this week to the front corner office previously occupied by the personnel office.

The purchase of the move was to end the "Grand Central Station" atmosphere that prevailed on the second floor at city hall. The old mayor's office was in the middle of a long large office with two entrances that had visitors coming and going both to the mayor's office and its conference room that was used for numerous meetings.

The new arrangements for city hall space was coordinated by John Brown, the new executive secretary of the development commission.

Asian Lunar New Year Celebration 2002 - Year Of The Horse

GLORIA CHAO elegantly performs with a blue ribbon during a performance of the Tunhwang Flying Angels, part of the 14th Asian Lunar New Year Celebration.

TUNHWANG FLYING ANGELS perform recently at the 14th Asian Lunar New Year Celebration: the dance reenacts angels flying around Buddha in a painting located at the Cave of Tunhwang.

FEATHER FANS are used by Hannah Hsieh and Joy Lee to accentuate the beauty and grace of this Chinese dance performed at the 14th Asian Lunar New Year celebration held recently at North Quincy High School. The event, which this year celebrates 2002 as "the year of the horse," was sponsored by the Committee for Immigrants and Refugees. Amanda Le served as chairwoman of the event. Community Events At River Bay

The River Bay Club, a senior living community located at 99 Brackett St., offers the following community events in the upcoming weeks:

A "Champagne Jazz Brunch" featuring a three-piece jazz band to be held Monday, Feb. 18 from 11:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. Space is limited and reservations are required before tomorrow (Friday).

An Educational Presentation by Katherine Pinard on the Talking Information Center Network (T.I.C. Network) to be held Friday, Feb. 22 at 1:30 p.m. The T.I.C. Network is a network of radio stations in Massachusetts reading printed material on the air 24-hours a day, seven days a week to enable print-disabled citizens access to the printed word. This free educational seminar will be followed by musical entertainment and refreshments.

A "Chef's Table" free luncheon prepared by the River Bay Club's on-site executive chef to be held Wednesday, Feb. 27 at noon. Tours will be available immediately following the luncheon. Space is very limited and reservations must be made before Friday, Feb. 22.

A "Las Vegas Day" featuring blackjack, roulette, a money wheel, and other entertainment to be held Sunday, March 3 from 2 p.m. until 7 p.m. The event will raise funds for Senior Olympics and other senior programs in Quincy. Donation of $3 at the door or free with coupon.

For more information on River Bay Club events, contact Susan Hamilton at (617) 472-4457.

Artist's Quilts Display At Main Library

A quilt display by Boston artist Marilyn Seide continues through Feb. 24 at the atrium of the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Center.

Seide typically uses fabrics imported from Europe, especially France and England. She likes working with fabrics of cotton, cotton velvet, silk velvet and pieces of tapestry — new fabrics that look old. Most of the English fabrics are reproduction prints based on those from the 17th and 18th centuries.

Most of the reproduction prints are documented by the Victoria and Albert Museum and are made by the same companies that originally produced them.

Seide has exhibited at the Topsfield and Codman Fairs and been featured in "Designer Times," an international magazine. She has studied at the Museum of Fine Arts and has a degree in art history and studio art.

QHS Teacher Evelyn Ryan Earns National Board Certification

Evelyn Ryan, a teacher at Quincy High School and current chairwoman of the Mathematics Department, recently earned her National Board Certification, the highest professional credential in the field of teaching, from the National Board for Professional Teaching Standards (NBPTS).

Ryan, a teacher at QHS for 14 years, was one of only 6,500 primary and secondary school teachers from 49 states and the District of Columbia to have earned the certification during the 2000-2001 school year.

"Performing the assessments of NBPTS gave me an opportunity to reflect on and improve my teaching practices," said Ryan. "Attaining Master Teacher status validates and gives me confidence in what I do to help students learn. I look forward to working with the many other teachers who are committed to accepting this challenge."

National Board Certification, a voluntary process established by NBPTS, is achieved through a rigorous performance-based assessment that takes almost a year to complete. Through the assessment process, teachers document their subject matter knowledge; provide evidence that they know how to teach their subjects to students most effectively; and demonstrate their ability to manage and measure student learning.

The 6,500 new National Board Certified Teachers (NBCTs) — a record number — brings the current total number of NBCTs to 16,035. More than 16,000 candidates have applied to pursue National Board Certification during the 2001-2002 academic year — an increase of nearly 50 percent from the same time one year ago.

"I am extremely proud of Evelyn Ryan and every other teacher who was a candidate for National Board Certification this year," said NBPTS President Betty Castor. "They have proven to themselves, their communities, and their profession that they are among the most accomplished teachers in America."

Castor adds: "With this announcement (of newly certified teachers), we believe we're well on our way to reaching our goal of 100,000 National Board Certified Teachers by 2006."

Today, 47 states and nearly 400 school districts have offered a variety of incentives, including a fee support to candidates and salary increases, for teachers who achieve National Board Certification.

Phelan, Councillors Hear Neighbors On New QHS Site On Faxon Field

By LANCE MORGANELLI

Unless it violates the law, the new Quincy High School will be built on Faxon Field and Mayor William Phelan asked cooperation from a skeptical Quincy Center Neighborhood Association in the coming debate.

"Can I have a commitment you will not use delay tactics to keep it out of your backyard just because you don't want it in your backyard?" he asked members of the QCNA at a Sunday meeting.

"Don't use the process to undermine the building and I'll agree not to use tactics to get it built there."

Some 50 residents turned out for the meeting at the Thomas Crane Public Library to air their concerns to the mayor and several ward councillors about the wetland site for the new QHS that was selected by the School Committee.

QCNA President Nancy Jolly said the three chief concerns of residents about the Faxon Field site is the present rat infestation, increased flooding of homes and a leaking gas line that runs from Dorchester to Braintree through Quincy.

Other residents cited an already difficult traffic problem in the surrounding side streets which would worsen with the construction of the high school on a location that is now open space.

"My biggest concern is traffic in the neighborhood," said Brian Spulane of Whitney Road, adding that "we've gone to great lengths to try and slow down the traffic."

"The new concern is the high school is there and, if they continue with the addition to President's Place, how is this traffic going to impact our neighborhood?"

Phelan agreed that traffic is a "major area right up there with the flooding that has to be addressed before the project moves forward. We have to look at it in terms of the whole neighborhood."

Brian Houde, clerk of the QCNA, said he saw "two dominant themes generated by the citizens of Quincy."

"The first," he said, "is to spend our tax dollars wisely and spend them frugally; the second one is we need to be environmentally conscious of our open space — what little we have left."

"I contend that the proposed high school flies in the face of both of these themes."

He said the 90 percent reimbursement of school building by the state only includes the actual construction of the school and no other related expenses.

Phelan said the issue is not whether Quincy will get the 90 percent reimbursement but when.

"There could be several years of paying it out before we start receiving the 90 percent," he said. "Quincy would still get the 90 percent from the state but we would have to 'front' it."

Residents of Southern Artery at the corner of Russell Park told of constant flooding problems that have drastically affected their homes.

"I've been living there for 22 years and I've been stuck with this water problem since I moved here," said John Haidul of Southern Artery. "When once I had a little bit of water, now every year we're flooded — and I'm talking flooded, literally flooded."

"I would like to challenge the city to correct the problem of flooding regardless of whether or not anything is built on Faxon Field," said QCNA board member Paul Kelsh, a comment that drew the loudest applause of the meeting.

QCNA President Jolly said a new high school on Faxon Field would affect property values in the neighborhood.

She said she was told by an assessor "your home is valuable because you have the park in the neighborhood. When I told him what the proposal was he said you're property won't be as valuable if you remove that park space."

The mayor and city councillors in attendance were not required to come up with any instant solutions nor did they offer any.

"My commitment is to build a new Quincy High School," said Ward 1 Councillor Greg Hanley. "But it's my contention that I would not support a new Quincy High School on Faxon Field unless the issues that you brought up here today are addressed: the flooding, the traffic, the rodent control."

I have a thousand questions just as each of you do," said newly elected Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro. "If we can eliminate all these issues, will you still be against the high school on Faxon Field?"

The question was rhetorical.

Fr. Monagle Found Fr. Graham 'A Great Pastor' Former Associate At St. Joseph's 'Devastated'

Fr. Robert Monagle, who served nearly six years with Fr. Daniel Graham at St. Joseph's Church, says he never heard a complaint of sexual misconduct nor witnessed any inappropriate situations with young people or adults.

In a letter to parishioners printed in the weekend church bulletin, Fr. Monagle said he, like parishioners, has known Fr. Graham to be "a great pastor who cared for the people of St. Joseph's very deeply."

Fr. Graham, 57, was suddenly removed as pastor Feb. 2 by the Boston Archdiocese on an allegation of abuse to a minor dating back 20, 30 or more years. There have been no details given.

Fr. Monagle, who said he was "devastated by the news," served as associate pastor five and a half years. He left St. Joseph's Jan. 27 to report to the U.S. Air Force as a chaplain.

He said he wanted parishioners to know there was no connection between his departure and the removal of Fr. Graham just five days later.

The text of his letter follows:

"To the people of St. Joseph's Parish,

"I want to assure you of my love and prayers. Currently, I am in Chicago on my way cross-country to Travis AFB, CA. I just heard last night (2/02/02) about the breaking news at St. Joseph's Parish.

"I, like you, am devastated by this news. I want to make sure that you know that this current situation had nothing to do with my departure from St. Joseph's Parish. My going into the Air Force as a chaplain was a decision I made after Sept. 11, 2001 based on three main reasons.

"1) Knowing that, as a reserve chaplain, there was a good possibility of my getting called up to active duty.

"2) Recognizing the great need in the AF for chaplains, especially since Sept. 11th.

"3) Knowing my term at St. Joseph's was scheduled to end within a few months.

"I enjoyed being with you at St. Joseph's and truly am grateful to you for everything. In regards to Fr. Graham, there is not much I can say. I, like I think most of you, have known him to be a great pastor who cared for the people of St. Joseph's very deeply.

"I can honestly say that no one ever came forward to me with a complaint or concern of any sexual misconduct. I also can say with all sincerity that I never witnessed him in any inappropriate situations with young people or adults.

"I don't have any details of this allegation that was made against him so I cannot give you any insight as to what happened in this case. I can only guess that we will learn of the details together through the media. I just hope the facts are accurate. I can only imagine how difficult the publicity around this case must be for you!"

"Sincerely, Fr. Bob."

The church bulletin also noted:

If you would wish to send any mail to Fr. Graham, you can send it to St. Joseph's Rectory, 556 Washington St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Jack Buckley To Be Honored By Ward 5 Assn. As 'Citizen Of Year'

The Ward 5 Community Association will honor Jack Buckley as its Citizen of the Year at the annual meeting Feb. 26 at 7 p.m. at Central Middle School.

Buckley, who has taught for about 35 years, is being honored "for his outstanding achievements."

The association will also elect officers at the annual meeting. Anyone interested in becoming an officer should attend the meeting and put his or her name in for nomination.

A $200 scholarship will also be awarded to a Ward 5 resident who is currently pursuing post secondary education in any field. Those interested in the scholarship should contact Steven Golden (786-8738) or attend the meeting.

The association will also grant "High Five" awards to several Ward 5 residents, hear a presentation from new Ward Councillor Doug Gutro and hold a raffle.

For more information contact Tim McAloon at 617-479-6285.

Presidents' Day Winter Festival Sunday

The City of Quincy's 6th Annual Presidents' Day Winter Festival will be held Sunday in Quincy Square from 12:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. There is no admission fee.

Mayor William Phelan will kick off the festivities at 12:30 p.m. in the Presidents' Place Atrium, 1250 Hancock Street. This year's celebration will feature fun activities for the whole family including musical entertainment, ice sculptures, hay-rides, historic reenactments, street entertainers, hat decorating, face painting and much, much more.

Visitors to the Presidents' Day Winter Festival will see historical reenactments from Teddy Roosevelt, Abe Lincoln, Calvin Coolidge, General George Washington and John and Abigail Adams. The theme will be "Dinner at the White House," a one-woman play.

Entertainment will feature Quincy favorite "Riverside Theatre Works" with a lively array of patriotic and Broadway show-tunes. Following Riverside at the Presidents' Place Atrium will be "The Sound of America", playing various arrangements of Americana music.

as Abraham Lincoln

City Hall will feature the exciting "AbraKIDabra" magic show for children at 2:30 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. The Quincy Art Association will host an art exhibit in the second floor conference room throughout the day. Children can also decorate their own hat, learn to write with the quill pen, or have their picture taken wearing a decorative, historic-period hat.

"As the City of Presidents, we are proud to host a fun, family-oriented afternoon to celebrate Presidents' Day. A variety of activities will ensure that everyone has a great time," said Phelan.

Entertainment and reenactments will occur at the following venues that day: National Park Services' Visitor Center, United First Parish Church, Presidents' Place Atrium and City Hall.

For more information on the festival, contact Rhonda Merrill at (617) 376-1296.

DAN CRAIG (right), director of Region One for the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), hands a certificate of attendance and achievement to Quincy Police Officer Robert Hanna, one of 29 graduates of the CERT "Train The Trainer" instructor class held on various dates at the Quincy Emergency Management Agency at 55 Sea St.

CERT Program Offers Chance To Heed President's Call

President George W. Bush's call for increased volunteerism across the nation in the wake of Sept. 11 is being heard loud and clear in Quincy, where the city's Community Emergency Response Team (CERT) program has been in existence since 1998.

"In all my 33 years of experience, I've never seen a program that gives citizens more of an opportunity to help their families, their neighborhoods, and their communities than CERT," said Anthony Siciliano, deputy director of the Quincy Emergency Management Agency and president of the Massachusetts Emergency Management Association, who said one of his goals is to help establish CERTs in every community in Massachusetts.

"Sept. 11 has woken us up," Siciliano continued. "President Bush's call for volunteerism is the way for average citizens across America to get involved and CERT's 'hands-on' training is just the thing."

As an example of what the average citizen can do, Siciliano noted that, of the nation's estimated one million firefighters, 750,000 are volunteers.

The purpose of CERT is to train citizens to prepare for and respond to emergency situations in their communities. Taught by first responders who have completed a CERT "Train-the-Trainer" course, CERT programs are currently running in 30 states and two countries, said Siciliano.

Quincy's CERT program boasts more than 100 graduates, Siciliano said, and more than 2000 high school students in the city have had at least some CERT training since 1994, when the program was introduced nationally by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA).

The national CERT model itself is based upon a successful community emergency preparedness program created by the Los Angeles Fire Department in 1985.

Furthermore, in the aftermath of Sept. 11, Quincy's CERT program is being studied by other communities across the state and nation.

"We use Quincy as an example of how a CERT program should be run," said FEMA Region 1 Spokeswoman Janice Melton, who applauded Siciliano for his efforts.

In addition to recently introduced sessions on firearm safety and biological terrorism training, CERT training is designed to cover the following: disaster preparedness; fire suppression; disaster medical operations—triage and treating life threatening injuries; disaster medical operations—assessment, treatment, and hygiene; light search and rescue; team organization and disaster psychology; and a final exercise, with each session requiring two to three hours to complete.

Recently, Siciliano said, four certified instructors recently returned from FEMA headquarters in Emmittsburg, Md. finished training 30 or so others in a "Train the Trainer" Course who, in turn, will train others in the CERT program, helping to spread the message of community preparedness.

The students in the course, Siciliano said, reflected a wide range of backgrounds from both the public and private sectors, including employees of the State Street Corporation, emphasizing the increased awareness of public safety and what people can do to help.

Siciliano, who recently attended a conference with Acting Governor Jane Swift where he urged Swift to fund budding CERT programs, said participation in community preparedness is a great way to heed the president's call.

"If we can do statewide what we've done in Quincy, it would make a tremendous difference in people's lives," Siciliano said.

The most recent "Train the Trainer" course, which graduated Saturday with honored guests Dan Craig, director, FEMA Region 1, and Joan Roche, training director, Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency

Redfield, Thomas Ford, Daniel Cannon, Sheena Williams, Brian Wilkosky, Denis Trotter, Steve Buckley, Donna Lynneos, Anthony Siciliano, and David Lawrence.

Certified course instructors were Thomas McGrath, Marc Steeves, Scott Stuart, and Charles Scrutinis.

CERT is a program of newly formed Citizen Corps proposed by President George W. Bush. In his recent State of the Union address, President Bush called for Americans to commit two years, or 4,000 hours, of their lives to the service of their neighbors and the nation.

THE MILLENNIUM TILE Wall in the Patricia Toland Children's Room at the Thomas Crane Public Library was recently dedicated. Nearly 500 tiles created by Quincy pre-school children through 12th grade, depicting something significant to them, was part of Quincy's celebration of the millennium.

PAMELA PALMA, 14, and Edna Palma, 8, of Wollaston, check the latter's creation.

MEMBERS OF THE Quincy Art Association, Marilyn Reisberg, Anet Paglierani and Marion Fitzsimmons, assisted in the tile wall project. The latter was directly involved in the creation and firing of the almost 500 individual tiles.

Modified Winter Schedule At Historical Society For Restoration Work

The Quincy Historical Society announces that work will soon begin on restoration of the Adams Academy, the society's home, and design of its new comprehensive Quincy history museum.

To facilitate this work, the Society has adopted a modified winter schedule. The Society will be open Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 9 to 4 and will be closed to the public Tuesdays and Thursdays. The Society's Wirtanen Library will be open Mondays and Wednesdays from 9 to 12 and Fridays from 1 to 4.

The Society has contracted with Bailey, Donovan

Museum Design, a New England-based firm whose work has appeared in many museums in the area and throughout the nation, to design the new Quincy history museum. An exhibit will trace Quincy's history from the Native Americans through the 20th century in eight thematic units. The exhibit is intended to present Quincy history both for tourists and for the local public and to enhance the Society's programs with Quincy Public Schools.

The Society will be seeking input from the public on the exhibit in the coming weeks and will be seeking volunteers for assistance with this project and other planned activities this spring. Opportunities range from assisting with the Society's collections, to helping with administration, to aiding in fundraising. Anyone interested in learning more about volunteering should call the Society at 617-773-1144.

Restoration of the Adams Academy will first concentrate on repairing and rehabilitating the exterior of the building. Work on the Academy's roof and drainage system is expected to begin in March.

Both the restoration and the museum projects are made possible by the Society's ongoing Capital Fund Drive. Academy restoration has received grants from the Massachusetts Historical Commission and the City of Quincy.

CAR CARE

Strong Battery Boosts Winter Car Starts

One of the best ways to protect against winter car trouble is to be certain your battery is fully charged and in proper working condition, according to AAA Southern

New England.

"When the temperature drops to near zero, the number of calls AAA receives from stranded motorists soars," said AAA Approved Auto Repair Manager Alfred Ruggiero. "The most common cause of these cold-weather breakdowns is a weak or dead battery."

AAA recommends motorists have a load test to closely monitor the condition of the vehicle's battery, especially batteries more than two years old.

"Although batteries can carry warranties of four years or more, a warranty is no guarantee an older battery will continue to work in severe weather," Ruggiero said.

The most common sign of a weak battery is an unusual sound coming from the starter motor when the ignition key is turned, indicating difficulty in starting the engine.

If the vehicle is difficult to start, check that the battery connections are tight and no corrosion is present on the battery terminal. To remove corrosion, use an old toothbrush to clean the cable connectors and terminals with a solution of baking soda and water. Next, inspect the tension of all drive belts. They should flex no more than one-half inch.

If the battery's fluid level can be checked, make certain the fluid covers the battery plates. If no problems are found and the vehicle is still difficult to start, drive to a service station or auto parts store to have the battery and charging system tested and, if necessary, replaced.

In addition to weak or dead batteries, starting problems can be caused by malfunctioning alternators or starter motors. A qualified repair facility can make an accurate diagnosis and repair.

If the vehicle will not start, use caution and follow instructions in the owner's manual when attempting a jump start. If unsure about the proper procedure, call AAA or another qualified professional for assistance.

To help avoid winter breakdowns, AAA recommended motorists have their cars and trucks thoroughly inspected before cold weather arrives.

blank, McCauley explained, was simply because he hadn't put any files onto it. "I would never have erased public records from a city computer," he said. "And I certainly would never have authorized any city employee to do so."

During his administration, McCauley said, documents were kept in hard copy files. "Prior to my departing office, my staff spent some time walking Sheets' people through the office, showing them where important files and documents were kept," he said. "For Sheets to now say that he found 'deleted' hard drives and bare shelves' is ludicrous."

McCauley also questioned Sheets' assertion that the documents erased from the computers in the mayor's office were all personal in nature: "If the mayor had deleted some personal files, the hard drives still would have contained files pertaining to city business — they wouldn't have been completely erased," he said. "Besides, what were all those personal files doing on City Hall computers, anyway? City Hall equipment should be used for business purposes only."

McCauley said that it appears Sheets is trying to deflect criticism away from his own actions by blaming his predecessor. "I find it disturbing that Mr. Sheets is attempting to divert attention from his administration's mistakes by making untrue statements about mine," McCauley said.

He also said that this was not the first time Sheets had attempted to blame past administrations for his problems.

"When I left office in 1990, city finances were in the black — yet during the recent campaign, Mayor Sheets stated repeatedly that the city was in bad shape financially when he took office," McCauley said. "I think the city's current budget crisis clearly indicates that the Sheets administration has left this city in far worse financial shape than they found it."

"Mr. Sheets should accept responsibility for the actions of his administration and stop trying to blame other people for the problems those actions have created."

Raucous Convention Polarizes City Officials

rules, I wouldn't have had a problem with that unless it was against the law."

Fifteen candidates for the School Committee seat vacated by Phelan after his successful mayoral bid were heard last Friday night in council chambers before a joint convention comprised of the City Council and School Committee.

The 15 presentations, however, occurred after a 20 minute firestorm of contentious debate concerning the procedural rules of the convention, a debate which included unheeded motions for amendments and adjournments, name-calling, and the temporary departure of two convention members.

Candidates who spoke at Friday night's meeting were: Ron Iacobucci, Sal Giarratani, Jay Davis, William Keener, Elaine Dwyer, John Cain, Stephen Durkin, Stephen Golden, Susan Milone, Julie Berberan, David McCarthy, Patricia DelVal, Kathryn Glatton Hobin, Patrick Conroy, and Robert Haley.

"Elected officials both on the City Council and the School Committee were silenced and were not able to discuss rules and procedures in an orderly fashion," was how Raymond summed up the meeting.

At one point State Rep. Ronald Mariano, who also serves on the School Committee, and Cedrone left the meeting after their motions were ignored, but both later came back and listened to the candidates.

"I feel bad for the people who came there that night to be heard," said Mariano. "We're elected officials and we have a responsibility to our constituents. I felt that the mayor used strong-arm tactics to silence discussion and that angered me."

"It's a mistake for any group to abolish Roberts' Rules of Order," said School Committeewoman Linda Stice, referring to the common guidelines dealing with motions, orders, nominations, seconds, and other rules of meetings. "They're called 'Rules of Order' because they're a set of procedures that allow everyone to be heard and everyone's viewpoint to be respected."

Councillor Frank McCauley said he didn't think motions to vote Friday night or to adjourn the meeting "made any sense" given the public notice of the meeting or the group of candidates willing to speak but that motions needed to be addressed.

"I think that Bill Phelan's (two-night) construction of the process was a good one," said McCauley. "The bottom line is that we heard everyone speak that night."

McCauley did say that "general procedure is that the chair acts on motions, even if they don't make sense, and trusts the body to act accordingly."

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin voted in favor of the eight procedural rules proposed by Phelan but said he did so "with the understanding that we would have further discussion," an understanding conveyed, he said, by the mayor's office earlier in the week and by Phelan's statements prior to the vote.

"I don't think that (the post-vote discussion) occurred sufficiently," Coughlin said.

"I hope we've learned something and we can move forward," added Coughlin, who said many ward residents had called him to express concern over the tone of the meetings.

Something Special For Your Valentine!

But She Never Found Her True Love

Local Spinster Mother Of Modern Day Valentines

If it hadn't been for a spinster who lived her later years here in Quincy, Valentine's Day might just be plain Feb. 14, another cold, ho-hum day in the middle of winter.

Esther A. Howard, who apparently never found her own true love, was the mother of the American valentine of today.

Because of her, Feb. 14 is now the day to be sure to tell that someone special "I love you" with a valentine, candy, flowers, or jewelry, etc.

Esther lived most of her life in Worcester, graduating from Mount Holyoke College in 1849.

That year, she came across a number of valentines sent from England to her father, who owned a Worcester stationery and book store.

Esther, as the story goes, didn't think much of them and decided she could create better ones. She came up with some samples and before long was soon on her way to a $100,000 a year business, which in turn sparked a nation-wide industry we know today.

Esther lived in Worcester until 1886 after both her mother and father had died. She had given up her valentine business in an act of love - to care for her bedridden father.

She came to Quincy to live with her brother, Charles, at 2 Adams Street and died there March 15, 1904 at the age of 75.

She never married, apparently never finding her own valentine in life.

But she did live to see the nation-wide industry that was spawned by her creations back in 1849.

And she must have smiled whenever she thought of the instructor at Mount Holyoke College who back around the time she was creating her valentines, was warning his students against "sending any of those foolish notes called valentines."

How did Feb. 14 get to be

Valentine's Day?

According to legend, it goes back to the year 270 and a man named Valentinus, believed to be a Roman priest who helped Christian martyrs persecuted under Emperor Claudius II, a crime punishable by death.

Valentinus, the story goes, was arrested and brought before the Emperor and tried to convert him to Christianity.

Claudius was so impressed by Valentinus, he tried to save his life by converting him to the Roman gods. Valentinus refused and was condemned to be beaten, stoned and beheaded.

According to the legend, while awaiting execution, Valentinus became friends with the blind daughter of his jailer and restored her sight.

On the eve of his execution, he supposedly wrote her a farewell note and signed it: "From your Valentine."

The next day, he was beheaded. The date: Feb. 14.

'Healthy Heart' Program At Beechwood Center

The Quincy Stroke Club at Beechwood on the Bay is planning a special event for its Monday, Feb. 25th meeting.

The special program promotes "Have A Healthy Heart" and will bring a nutrition program from Tufts University's "Nutrition Research Center on Aging."

The event will focus on dietary guidelines and the Food Guide Pyramid. It is open to the public.

For reservations, call Kathy Prince, Elder Services director, at 617-471-5712.

'Heart Tag Day' At QMC Feb. 22

Quincy Medical Center Auxiliary Heart Tag Day will be held Friday, Feb. 22 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the hospital's Education Center, 114 Whitwell St.

There will be free blood pressure screenings. Heart Tag pins, homemade fudge and baked goods, jewelry, new gift items and attic treasures will be sold.

Chance books for prizes are available at the hospital or from auxiliary members. Proceeds will be used to enhance cardiac patient care.

Putting Less Than 20% Down? You'll Need To Know About PMI

By CAROL BULMAN, President

Conway Financial Services Homebuyers who plan to put down less than 20 percent of the purchase price need to be familiar with private mortgage insurance, or PMI, since this protection is what makes low-downpayment loans possible.

PMI, which is paid by the buyer either as a monthly amount or as a one-time premium, protects a lender or investor against loss if a borrower stops making mortgage payments.

The exact PMI amount you'll pay varies — it is a percentage of the loan balance. It's important to note, however, that private mortgage insurance protects against default by the borrower; it is different from mortgage life insurance, which is purchased separately and pays off the loan if the borrower dies.

Most of the rules concerning PMI are governed by the Homeowners Protection Act, which took effect on July 29, 1999. This federal law tightened the responsibilities of lenders in dealing with customers who have PMI coverage.

CAROL BULMAN

In general, the borrower is responsible for making the insurance payments as part of each month's mortgage payment. The lender is responsible for remitting the payment to the PMI company each month.

Even if your credit is good and you are considered a good risk, if you put down less than 20 percent, chances are good that you will need PMI. Although lenders aren't apt to extend credit to borrowers they feel may default, loans in the higher loan-to-value range are considered a riskier segment of the market and, therefore, warrant more protection for the lender.

In other words, lenders feel that the less money buyers put into the purchase of a home from their hard-earned savings, the more likely they may be to default on their loan.

How The Homeowners Protection Act Benefits Borrowers

Initial disclosure: For those loans originated on or after July 29, 1999, lenders must provide written notification of borrowers' PMI rights at the time of closing. This disclosure explains that there is PMI associated with your loan and what your rights are with regard to cancellation.

Annual disclosure: Your lender is required to send you a reminder each year that you have PMI and have the right to request cancellation once you have met all criteria. This disclosure requirement applies to loans with PMI, including those obtained before July 29, 1999.

Borrower-initiated cancellation: Your lender may allow cancellation of PMI at your request for most loans originated on or after July 29, 1999. Your mortgage balance must be 80 percent of the original value of the house. You must be up to date on mortgage payments and have no other loans on the house, and your lender must be satisfied that the property value has not declined.

Automatic termination: PMI will be canceled automatically when the mortgage balance is 78 percent of the original value of the house. As with borrower-initiated cancellation, you must be up to date on mortgage payments. This is true for most insured loans originated on or after July 29, 1999.

Exception: For mortgages defined as high-risk, the lender will automatically cancel the PMI at the midpoint of the loan. On a 30-year mortgage, for example, insurance will be canceled after 15 years. There are some exceptions to this law for high-risk loans, however, so contact your lender to determine whether you fall into this category.

As with any of the issues we've discussed, it's best to speak to a loan specialist for more specifics about your particular situation.

GETTING PERSONAL

While it is smart for buyers to have a good idea of market conditions when entering the market, this view of the "big picture" should not necessarily be the definitive and overriding factor guiding their strategies. Research shows that a homeowner's motivation to sell affects both selling price and how long a house stays on the market. A highly motivated seller who has already purchased another home may be more eager to sell than a "seller's market" may otherwise indicate. While it is not always readily evident how motivated homeowners are to sell, buyers should bear in mind that there are as many reasons as there are sellers, and market conditions may have little bearing on their decisions.

Market conditions are only one of several factors that determine why a homeowner is selling his or her home. At ERA CENTRAL REAL ESTATE, we recognize that purchasing a home is a significant financial and emotional investment. We take pride in providing comprehensive guidance and seek to bring buyers and sellers together to the mutual satisfaction of both. Sellers, we can provide you with a market analysis, list your home in various papers, and coordinate open house. Buyers, we can identify those homes most suited to your budget and wish list of features. Call us at (617) 328-1312, or visit us at 128 McGrath Highway. We are your full time neighborhood real estate professional.

HINT: Sellers who have a new job or have bought another home may not have time to wait for the highest possible offer.

Electrical Safety Ideas

(NAPS) — The post-holiday period is a time to relax, kick back and let your hair down — but not your guard, especially if you have small children.

The Electrical Safety Foundation International suggests these ideas to help start your new year safely:

- Use the gripping area of the plug when unplugging lights and appliances. Yanking or tugging on the cord could damage the wires and insulation, possibly leading to an electrical shock or fire.
- Separate outdoor from indoor decorations. Label them accordingly.

- Discard broken or faulty lights.
- Store decorations away from children, pets and water.
- Make sure all electrical lights, toys and appliances bear the seal of a nationally recognized certification agency, such as UL, CSA or ETL.
- Don't allow your children to use electrical toys near water, and make sure they know that water and electricity never mix. Electrical toys can become a shock hazard if they are misused.

- Send warranty and product registration forms to manufacturers. That way, they can notify you promptly in case of a recall.
- Post-holiday sales are a great time to purchase fire extinguishers and smoke detectors.

For more information on electrical safety, send a 55 cent stamped, self-addressed business-sized envelope to Electrical Safety Foundation International, 1300 N. 17th St., #1847, Rosslyn, VA 22209, or call 703-841-3229.

Which Sidewalk Deicer Products Work Best?

By JOE ALTHOUSE
(NAPS) — There are many different brands of ice melters on the market, making confusing and sometimes even misleading claims. How can you tell which products work best?

All deicers form a liquid brine which dissolves snow and ice on contact. Virtually all of them are made from just five materials — calcium chloride, sodium chloride (rock salt), magnesium chloride, potassium chloride, urea, or blends of these materials. Important performance differences exist between these materials.

Calcium chloride pellets work fastest at all temperatures because they give off heat as they melt snow and ice. Rock salt, potassium chloride and urea must draw heat from the surroundings, which reduces the effectiveness of these products when temperatures fall into the mid-to-low 20s.

Calcium chloride pellets contain nearly twice as much active, ice-melting ingredients as magnesium chloride pellets. Magnesium chloride pellets are actually magnesium chloride hexahydrate, which is 50 percent water by weight. Some people think magnesium chloride deicer is effective as the same application rate as calcium chloride; however, in reality, magnesium chloride pellets can only melt about half as much snow and ice as calcium chloride pellets.

By checking the ingredients on the package, users can verify that they are getting a deicer material that performs best.

For more information on deicer differences visit www.peladow.com.

Quincy Rolling, Routs Scituate

By CHRIS POISSON

Since the tough loss to Whitman-Hanson on Jan. 30 that eliminated them from the Atlantic Coast League championship, the Quincy High School hockey team has been peering up for the state tournament.

And it's on a roll.

On Monday afternoon, the new-look Presidents won their fourth straight game with a 7-2 rout of Scituate (7-8-1) at Quincy Youth Arena.

"I tried to get the kids to realize Scituate was right up against the wall," said head coach Bob Sylvia. "This game cost them the tournament. We basically said this is like our first round game because we figured Scituate would come out with great intensity."

Quincy (13-2-4 overall, 8-2-2 ACL) has nine days off before it closes out the regular season next Wednesday at Blue Hills Regional. And over that mini-break and in that game, Sylvia will determine if he'll stay with his recent line changes come tourney time.

About a week ago, Sylvia split the Germain brothers, Dave and Matt. Dave, a senior, is now skating with senior Andy Ross and sophomore Josh Giordani, while Matt, a sophomore, is on a line with seniors Billy McKeon and Paul Campbell.

And that line has been on fire. In its first game together it scored all the goals in a 4-0 win over Blue Hills Regional and last Friday night it scored five goals in a 6-1 win at Dennis-Yarmouth.

"That's pretty good output," Sylvia said. "That's as good a line right now as there is. We made the change to shake things up. We'd made the tournament, we were out of the league championship by one point, but we had to find out if there are different combinations that could work."

The change continued to work against Scituate. Giordani put Quincy on the board first just 34 seconds into the opening period and Matt Germain made it 2-0 after the first frame with a power-play strike at 6:46.

In the second period, senior Kevin Patten made it 3-0 at 6:26 when he blasted a shot from the right circle that beat junior goalie Joe Duggan top right corner.

The Sailors answered 42 seconds later on junior forward Matt Hall's breakaway goal. On the play, Quincy goalie Shaun Flaherty re-aggravated a leg injury and senior Tom Shruhan came into the game to replace him.

Dave Germain, the league's leading scorer, knocked one home at the right doorstep to make it 4-1 at 9:22. At 13:41, he scored his second goal, shorthanded, beating Duggan right side with a defender draped all over him.

Dave Germain finished with two goals and two assists to increase his point total to 54 (27 goals, 27 assists).

Hall struck on the power play with about a minute left in the period to cut it to 5-2. Quincy tacked on two more goals in the third to close out the scoring. Matt Germain banged home a loose puck at 1:32 and Campbell converted a Matt Germain feed at 7:44.

"For almost two periods it was a close ball game. We just have too much bang," Sylvia said.

North Quincy In Tournament Hunt

Given the track record of the past two seasons, would anyone be surprised if the North Quincy High School hockey team slipped into the state tournament again this year?

Despite the suspensions and injuries and their 1-7-2 slide this season, the Red Raiders are amazingly still alive in hunt for their fifth straight trip to the postseason.

Just when they seemed eliminated, they came up with two huge wins, routing Plymouth South, 8-2, last Saturday night at Quincy Youth Arena and edging Barnstable, 2-1, last Wednesday on the Cape.

North Quincy (7-8-3 overall, 5-6-1 Old Colony League) needs three points in its final two games to reach the tourney. It traveled to Silver Lake (7-6-4) Wednesday and next Wednesday it heads to Marshfield (13-4-2). It lost to both teams earlier in the season.

"If we do it this year, it would be miraculous," said head coach Bob Doyle. "We can't afford to lose. We have two games left. If we're going to make the tourney, these are the types of games we're going to play."

"I kind of like our chances," he added. "The young kids are eager to see their fruits of labor, all their hard work pay off."

In the win over Plymouth South, Doyle said the team had two good practices heading into the game and several players returned from suspensions.

Senior forward Frank Guest potted a pair of goals, junior center Bryan Cooper tallied a goal and three assists, and Kyle Carmody and sophomore defenseman Steven Kelley each had a goal and two assists.

Senior captain Joe Fitzpatrick and senior forward Matt Grazioso added a goal and an assist apiece. Sophomore forward Richard Stone chipped in with a goal and senior defenseman Scott Markarian an assist.

In the Barnstable game, the Red Raiders were short-handed as only 13 players dressed.

"I'm proud of the kids," Doyle said. "We went down there and got the win with the odds stacked against us."

Grazioso staked North Quincy to an early lead when he converted on a pass from junior defenseman John Mateu at 2:15. Barnstable evened the score with only 1:12 left in the period.

In the middle frame, Guest netted the go-ahead goal with an assist from Grazioso with about four minutes left. Junior goalie Bruce Maggio made 28 saves.

"I'm really proud of him," said Doyle of Guest. "He's finally reaping the benefits of his hard work."

GETTING A JUMP

When jumping-starting a car, putting the jumper cables on both car batteries in a certain sequence minimizes the chance of creating a spark near the gas vents on the dead battery, which could leak potentially explosive hydrogen. The recommended procedure is to attach the positive and negative cables to the dead battery first. Since the battery is dead, it will not generate much current, so it doesn't matter in which sequence the cables are connected. Next, attach the other end of the positive cable to the fresh battery's positive terminal. This leaves one last attachment (the other end of the negative cable), which should be attached to a portion of engine away from the battery and any potential hydrogen gas.

Cold weather is here. Is your

Quincy Driving To State Tournament

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy High School girls' basketball team lost two of three games last week as it continues its drive toward the state tournament.

Although not the type of performance needed down the stretch, that one win could prove to be monumental.

Having lost to Sandwich last Tuesday and Plymouth South last Thursday — their third straight setback — the Presidents found themselves backed into a corner as they traveled to a hostile environment last Friday night — Randolph.

Winners of nine straight and co-leaders of the Atlantic Coast League, the Blue Devils appeared to be, at least on paper, a superior team to Quincy, which it had routed by 26 points in the first meeting on Jan. 15.

Quincy, however, continued to do what is done all season, shocking the Blue Devils with a thrilling 44-41 overtime victory.

"It proved that we can compete on the same level as the best teams in the league," said head coach Jeff Bretsch. "We showed tremendous heart and confidence in our own ability."

"It was just a blast," he added. "Going into a hostile gym and the crowd was really into it. It was just a great night."

Quincy (9-9 overall, 4-8 ACL) needs just one more win this week to qualify for the tournament, which would cap off a sensational season in Bretsch's first year, one in which the Presidents went from winless to playoff-bound.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

Quincy traveled to Plymouth North (9-8) Tuesday and today (Thursday) at 5 p.m. it heads to Hancock Street to battle city rival and powerhouse North Quincy. The Presidents lost to both teams earlier in the season.

Missing junior forward Shannon Paine (ankle injury) and junior guard Courtney Rand, the Presidents focused their attention on defense in hopes of containing Randolph's terrific tandem, Ashley Gomes (13.9 points per game) and Myrna Tangar (12.8 ppg).

"Defensively, it was our best performance of the year without a doubt," Bretsch said. "We were tough all game long. It was just a tremendous effort defensively by the team, particularly Katie Kisielius. She did a great job on Tangar."

Trailing 19-16 at halftime, the Presidents stayed close with the Blue Devils throughout the second half. And with 12 seconds left in regulation, they evened the score at 34 when senior captain Christine Niosi scored her only points of the game on a putback.

In overtime, sophomore guard Bonnie Hirtle drained a 3-pointer on the first possession after the tip and the Presidents never looked back. Hirtle, the league's second leading scorer with 14.3 ppg, went on to score eight of the team's 10 points and finished with 20 points on the night.

In addition to Kisielius's stingy defense, junior forward Stephanie Fiandaca and senior Lauren Sullivan turned in outstanding performances. Fiandaca also played well on the defense end while scoring all five of her points down the stretch and in OT. Sullivan chipped in seven points.

"They played their best games of the year," Bretsch said. "They didn't score a lot, but they did the other things. They didn't turn the ball over and they made good decisions."

In the 53-36 loss to Plymouth South, Quincy was never really into the game. Hirtle finished with 13 points and freshman center Alyssa DiMuzio added seven.

In the 56-39 loss to Sandwich, the final score wasn't indicative of how the Presidents played. Hirtle scored 13 points and Sullivan eight. And with it being Senior Night, all three seniors, Sullivan, Niosi and forward Jena Maze, had their moments.

"All three seniors started and played well, particularly Jenna Maze," Bretsch said.

By CHRIS POISSON

It has been a long time, four years to be exact, but the North Quincy High School boys' basketball team is back in the state tournament.

The Red Raiders scored two victories last week, wins No. 9 and 10, to clinch a berth in the postseason. They edged Plymouth South, 55-52, last Tuesday at home and last Friday they topped a depleted Silver Lake squad, 54-40, on the road.

"It feels great to be back," said head coach Ted Stevenson.

And its special for the seniors, in particular the tri-captains, 1,000-point scorer Phil McGillicuddy, Pat Bregoli and John O'Connell, who have never tasted the postseason in their careers.

In fact, the last time North Quincy qualified for the playoffs was in the 1997-98 season when Brian Ross, the school's all-time leading scorer and current senior on the Boston College hoops team, was walking the hardwood.

"It's nice for the seniors, especially Phil," Stevenson said. "He's been with me for four years and this is his first time making it. Bregoli and O'Connell have been with me for three years. It's great for them and for all the seniors."

The Red Raiders followed up last week's performances with their third straight win Monday night, a 66-45 victory at Marshfield.

North Quincy (11-7 overall, 8-6 Old Colony League) hosts rival Quincy tonight (Thursday) at 6:30 and next Wednesday it hosts

4-Year Wait Over: Raiders Tourney Bound

BOYS' BASKETBALL

Randolph to conclude the regular season.

"We talked to the kids about seedings in the tournament," Stevenson said. "We want to get 13 wins and finish with a five-game winning streak."

Against Marshfield, North Quincy led 37-17 at halftime and was in cruise control the rest of the game. McGillicuddy scored a team-high 24 points, senior Dan Duggan poured in 16 and O'Connell added 12. Seniors Jack Liuzzo (six points, nine rebounds) and Adam O'Hara held the Rams' best player, Mike Sullivan, to 11 points. Sullivan hit for 26 in the first meeting.

Against Silver Lake, North Quincy got off to sluggish start despite the fact that the Lakers were missing their starting backcourt — Ryan Dacey and D.J. Hill — to injury.

But the Red Raiders stayed close thanks to Bregoli's perfect free-throw shooting (6 of 6) and it eventually grabbed a 22-19 lead at the break. "That kept us in it," Stevenson said.

In the second half, the Red Raiders continued with their defensive pressure and they saw their lead balloon to 17 points.

"We probably played our best defensive game of the year," said Stevenson, as the Lakers hit the 40-point mark on a late 3-pointer.

McGillicuddy scored a team-high 16 points, O'Connell added 15 big ones and Duggan chipped in with a dozen. Liuzzo grabbed nine rebounds.

Against Plymouth South, North Quincy jumped out to a 15-5 lead behind 3 pointers from McGillicuddy and Duggan.

The Panthers closed the first half with an 8-2 run to pull within 10, 30-20, capped by Danny Walls' 3-point bomb as buzzer sounded.

And in the first two minutes of the second half, they went on another 8-2 run to make it 32-28.

Clinging to a 47-45 with about four minutes left, Duggan stole the show — literally. He stole the ball on three straight Plymouth South possessions that led to six unanswered points and a 53-45 lead.

The Panthers made 53-49, and with 12 seconds left in the game Walls launched a trey that was no good but he was fouled on the shot attempt and he proceeded to net all three foul shots.

After a timeout, Plymouth South fouled Duggan with 10 seconds left. Duggan, a 94-percent shooter, calmly knocked down both freebies to seal the win.

"We almost let them back in it, but Duggan hit two free throws down the stretch that sealed it," Stevenson said.

McGillicuddy led the team with 21 points, six assists and five rebounds. Duggan added 12 points, five assists and five big steals. O'Connell hauled down 10 boards, while Bregoli returned from an injury and played stellar defense to go along with six points.

scored, but MacFarlane said everyone contributed in some way.

"It was one of our best wins of the season," MacFarlane said. "We had some players sitting, but we had other guys step it up and played well."

In last Tuesday's 53-42 win at Plymouth South, North Quincy did not have the services of one of its best players, but was able to pull out the W behind one of its best shooting performances of the season (55 percent from the floor and 72 percent from the line).

The Red Raiders went on a 6-0 run before the half to grab a 24-18 lead and maintained about a 10-point in the second half.

In another all-around team effort, Suprey tallied 19 points while junior forward Kristen DiMattio added 14 points, seven rebounds and three steals off the bench. Junior guard Lauren Kalil contributed with eight points.

North Quincy Girls Shooting For Second Straight Title

By CHRIS POISSON

Surprisingly, the North Quincy High School girls' basketball team has a chance for another record-breaking season, besting the talented team from just a year ago.

Despite missing several players due to disciplinary reasons, the Red Raiders picked up two more wins last week to improve their record to 13-3 overall and 11-2 in the Old Colony League. They have won five straight games and 11 of their last 12.

If North Quincy defeated Marshfield Tuesday, it will have captured its second straight league championship — something not many would've expected before the season with the loss of several star players from last year's team to graduation.

North Quincy actually has the same league record as Bridgewater-Raynham, but it holds the tiebreaker having beaten them twice.

"We've beaten everybody in the league," said head coach Doug MacFarlane. They haven't. They haven't beaten us."

With three regular season games left, North Quincy also has a chance to set the school record for most wins in a season, surpassing the 15 victories from last year's team.

It hosts its rival, the vastly improved Quincy squad, today (Thursday) at 5 p.m. And this weekend it competes in a tournament at B.C. High, opening with Andover, arguably the second best team in the state, Saturday at noon and then facing the winner of the Stoughton-Somerville game on Sunday.

MacFarlane schedule this tournament with the idea that the strong competition would prepare the Red Raiders for tourney time. With Andover and Stoughton, another top team, he'll soon find out.

"It should bode well for us and get us ready for the tournament," he said. "We want to get that monkey off our back and get a win in the tournament. That is our last goal."

On Saturday's showdown with Andover, he said, "That would be an upset. It's like the Patriots-Rams, everybody is picking the other team."

Last week's efforts showed why this edition of the Red Raiders is in a position to produce the program's best season: Shorthanded in both games, North Quincy displayed its depth as several players came off the bench to play star roles.

In last Friday's 56-38 home win over Silver Lake, North Quincy was without a starter and its sixth man, and still managed to control the entire game.

Sophomore Beth Goodrich chipped in with 10 points and three assists, which complimented the play of senior co-captain Lauren Sleeth and junior April Suprey. Sleeth finished with 18 points, eight steals, three assists and four rebounds, while Suprey scored 13 points.

The Red Raiders led 33-17 at the break and were able to sustain their attack in the second half, which has plagued them at times this season.

"We kept the pressure on," MacFarlane said. "We had a full-court press on and that bothered them."

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Dr. Gabrielle Freedman, Family Practice Of Chiropractic Staff Attend Post-Graduate Seminar

Dr. Gabrielle Freedman and the staff of The Family Practice of Chiropractic in Quincy recently attended a four-day postgraduate seminar in Las Vegas, Nev., held by The Parker Seminars of Dallas, Texas.

Dr. Freedman, along with other doctors of chiropractic, their spouses and assistants from the United States and several other countries, heard a series of lectures on the latest research and developments in chiropractic care.

Among the headlining speakers were Dr. Deepak Chopra, Mark Victor Hansen and Morris Goodman.

Additional lectures pro-

vided instruction in advanced techniques of patient care.

Dr. Freedman learned new techniques to help children with many health problems like inner ear infections and digestive problems.

Since 1950, chiropractors have attended Parker Seminars to learn about the recent innovations in the various phases of chiropractic practice.

Dr. Freedman is a 1994 graduate of Logan College of Chiropractic in St. Louis, Mo. Her office is located at 112 McGrath Highway. To contact the office, call 617-472-4220 or visit the Web www.freedmanchiro.com.

Addressing The Needs Of Its Women Patients

The Health Place For Women At Granite Medical

"Of course we got a lot done. We're women," said Cecilia Mullen, nurse practitioner at Granite Medical jokingly after a meeting of the management committee of The Woman's Health Place at Granite Medical.

Everyone chuckled but there is no denying that the group has been exceptionally effective.

The newest offering at one of the South Shore's busiest medical practices went from concept to opening in just two months. The women physicians, nurse practitioners and management of Granite Medical designed a center within the Granite Medical practice to address the needs of its women patients.

According to practice manager Eileen Garrett, "We understand what women want. It's what we want. We see this as an opportunity to create the kind of health service we have always thought women should have."

And what do women want? According to the committee, it should be no surprise to hear that women are busy. They want to accomplish as much as possible in one office visit. But they want more than just convenience. They want women physicians available. Women are sensitive to their surroundings; they want pleasant waiting and examining rooms. And many women are interested in herbal and alternative therapies.

The Health Place for Women provides convenience for area women by offering routine gynecological care such as Pap smears, breast exams and birth control counseling in the same location as their general medical care. The center is staffed by the women physicians and nurse practitioners of Granite Medical.

The waiting room features paintings by local woman artists, pleasant music, and the examining rooms have ceiling murals.

"The ceiling mural is a small but important detail," Garrett said. "It shows we understand women and that we care."

The practitioners at The Health Place for Women offer herbal and alternative therapies, whenever practical, to women who are interested. In addition to her position at Granite Medical, Dr. Eva Selhub is medical director of the Mind/Body Medical Specialty Clinics at Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center.

The Health Place for Women has been well received. Since it opened on Jan. 2, there has been significant interest by area women, and an evening seminar, "Healthy Body, Healthy Mind," offered on Jan. 9 drew a capacity crowd.

Throughout the winter and early spring there will be additional free monthly seminars. Topics include women and heart disease, healthy lifestyles for young adult women, and mid-life health issues for women. There is a Spring Health Fair in April.

The women doctors and nurse practitioners of Granite Medical perform all services at The Health Place for Women. There are two women physicians: Elizabeth Biegelsen, M.D., and Eva Selhub, M.D., and there are three nurse practitioners: Marilyn Green, RNC, NP; Helen Jenest, RNC, NP; and Cecilia Mullen, RNC, NP.

THE IMPORTANCE OF FLOSSING

Brushing, by itself, is not enough to effectively disrupt plaque formation that contributes to tooth decay. To get to the places between teeth where bristles often do not reach, it is necessary to floss. Proper flossing technique involves taking about 18 inches of floss and winding most of it around the forefinger of one hand, and the rest around the same finger on the other hand. Holding the floss taut between thumbs and forefingers, guide it between the teeth with a gentle rubbing motion. When the floss reaches the gumline, curve it against one tooth in a "C" shape. Repeat on each tooth, periodically releasing clean floss from one finger by winding up used floss on the other.

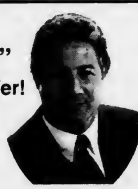

Remember to brush your teeth twice daily with fluoride toothpaste and clean between your teeth daily with floss or an interdental cleaner. This is key to good oral health and takes just a few minutes a day. Teeth are meant to last for a lifetime. They will take care of you if you take care of them. If you're looking for a family dentist who understands the needs of everyone in your family as individuals and as patients, we hope that you will consider us. We believe in preventive care for the whole family. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we're currently accepting new patients. Please call us at 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com

P.S. To help make flossing easier, try a Y-shaped floss holder.

Smoking Cessation Program Starts March 5

A free smoking cessation program at Quincy Medical Center is being offered by Bay State Community Services.

Charlene McDonald, smoking cessation counselor, will lead the group through a series of six smoking cessation counseling programs, providing education on methods for ceasing tobacco use, supportive counseling during the early quitting period, information and advice on nicotine replacement therapy and referral to individual smoking cessation counseling.

The next session, held on Tuesday evenings at 6 p.m. at the hospital, will begin March 5 and continue on the following eight Tuesday evenings.

Nicotine patches are also available as part of this program. A small co-payment is required.

For more information or to register call McDonald at 617-472-6027, ext. 213.

Understanding Medication

(NAPS) -- American doctors write three billion prescriptions every year. Yet most people know little about their prescription medicine.

The 2002 edition of The Essential Guide to Prescription Drugs 2002: Everything You Need To Know for Safe Drug Use (Harper Resource, $54.95) has facts of this type as well as other information on the potentially harmful effects on mixing medicines.

The book focuses on a number of modern issues, including:

- Should you get medicine from the Internet?
- Why was Cipro (at $30 a pill) on the Web at all?
- What's the difference between an antidepressant and anti-anxiety medicine and who should take them?

The book has been published for nearly 25 years. It is written by James J. Rybacki, Pharm. D.

Thanks-Giving Day At Wollaston Baptist Church

During worship on Feb. 20, the First Baptist Church of Wollaston celebrated Thanks-Giving Day. In addition to giving thanks to God for the many ways that God has provided in the church's continuing ministry on Wollaston Hill, special recognition was given to several of the late members of the church who left money in their wills.

Mildred Houghton, a longtime church member who died in 1999, left a sizeable bequest to the church. As directed in scripture, members of the church voted last spring to give away a tithe (10 percent) of that bequest as a faithful response to the given given.

During worship, $23,250 was distributed to denominational and community organizations. Representatives of these organizations were present to receive thanks from the congregation for the work that they are doing, were assured of the continued prayer support of the Church, and then received the financial gift of Mildred Houghton's bequest.

Patti Langevin, who along with her brother, Rev. Gene Langevin, direct The Way Up, received a check for the program designed to assist at-risk youth operating in the church facility at Wollaston Baptist Church.

Marth Pray, church relations chairperson of South Shore Habitat for Humanity, spoke of the hopes to build homes in five South Shore communities. Robert Taylor, executive director of the Interfaith Social Services, introduced the new Family to Family project, which is designed to provide financial assistance to help people into an apartment.

Rev. Esther Bowen, director of Pastoral Care at Quincy Medical Center, thanked the congregation for its continued support of the Protestant Chaplain at QMC, a program administered through the Interfaith Social Services.

The Quincy Crisis Center also received a portion of the church's tithe.

Denominational recipients were the First Baptist Church of Norwood, which is rebuilding its Parish House that was heavily damaged by fire last March; the American Baptist Churches United Mission program which supports every aspect of national, international and educational ministry. (Cont'd On Page 27)

James L. Crawford, 85

Decorated Former Firefighter

A funeral Mass for James L. Crawford, 85, of Quincy, a decorated former firefighter, was celebrated Tuesday at St. Mary's Church in Wrentham.

He died Feb. 8 at Carney Hospital in Dorchester.

Mr. Crawford served 14 years with the Boston Fire Department, retiring as a lieutenant.

On Nov. 29, 1951, his company was called to a Roxbury house fire. Upon arrival, he was informed that a woman was trapped on the second floor. Using a painter's ladder, he broke through a window, found the unconscious woman and carried her to safety.

Mr. Crawford was awarded the Patrick J. Kennedy Medal of Honor by the Boston Fire Department's board of merit in 1952.

Born in Boston, he graduated from Commerce High School. He lived in Wrentham and Norfolk before moving to Quincy 10 years ago.

He was a member of the Boston Firefighter's Society of St. Florian, Boston Fireman's Relief Fund and Fireman's Mutual Relief Fund.

Husband of the late Winnifred (Outram) Crawford, he is survived by a son, Joseph P. Crawford of Nashua, N.H.; two daughters, Nancy Ferland of Plainville and Carol Gomes of Attleboro; 11 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Wrentham Centre Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by R.J. Ross Funeral Home, Wrentham.

Mary E. Burns, 84

Avid Painter, Traveler; Quincy Art Association Member

A funeral Mass for Mary Elizabeth (Conroy) Burns, 84, of Cape Cod, formerly of Quincy, a member of the Quincy Art Association, will be celebrated today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. at St. John's Church, Quincy Center.

Mrs. Burns died Sunday at Quincy Medical Center following a stroke.

Born in Quincy in 1918, she graduated from North Quincy High School in 1931. She lived most of her life in Quincy and spent summers and a short period of time on Cape Cod in Yarmouth.

She enjoyed drawing and took up painting in her 50s and studied with various teachers in Quincy and the Cape Cod area.

Mrs. Burns painted mostly for family and close friends but did two commissions for former Quincy Mayor James Sheets. As a special present for the mayor, Mrs. Burns painted the Sheets' homestead.

In her younger days she enjoyed line dancing, playing bingo, walking Wollaston Beach and traveling in Europe and Ireland. Her family affectionately referred to her as the "Gallivanting Grandma."

Mrs. Burns' life was centered on her family and friends but especially her physically and mentally challenged daughter, Janice Burns. Although Janice lived in the Monson Development Center in Palmer, Mass., Mrs. Burns brought her home for a weekly visit each month until her and Janice's health prevented overnight stays. Even then she called several times a week and made frequent trips to Palmer to visit.

Mrs. Burns was a member of Quincy Art Association, Castle Island Association, and Brookline Golden Agers.

Wife of the late Leo H. Burns, she is survived by two sons, Leo R. Burns of Sandwich and Michael E. Burns of Quincy; two daughters, Joanne Pendley of Topeka, Kansas and Janice M. Burns of Sturbridge; two daughters-in-law, Nancy Burns of Austin, Texas and Rosemary Burns of Sandwich; a brother, Michael Conroy of Quincy; a sister-in-law, Mary Conroy of Quincy; and many nieces and nephews.

She was the mother of the late Robert V. Burns and sister of the late Helen Balducci, Grace Leary, Margaret Ludwick, John Conroy, James Conroy, Patrick Conroy, Stephen Conroy and Philip Conroy.

Funeral arrangements were 4 to 8 p.m. Wednesday at Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston. Burial will be in Ancient Cemetery, Yarmouthport.

Donations may be made to A.L.S., Lou Gehrig's Disease, 7 Lincoln St., Wakefield, MA 01880 or to American Cancer Society South Regional Center, 1115 W. Chestnut St., Suite 301, Brockton, MA 02301.

Nina M. Angelis, 68

Homemaker

A private funeral service was held for Nina M. (Petitti) Angelis, 68, of Braintree, formerly of Quincy, a homemaker.

She died Feb. 8 at home.

Mrs. Angelis was born in Quincy, where she lived for many years before moving to Braintree 36 years ago. She graduated from Quincy High School in 1951.

She is survived by her husband, Anthony Angelis; two daughters, Nina Briggs and Marie Fernandez, both of Braintree; a brother, Mario Petitti of Weymouth; two sisters, Norma McDonough, her twin, and Anita Kennedy, both of Braintree; two grandsons; and several nephews and nieces.

Funeral arrangements were by Hamel, Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St.

Donations may be made to the American Cancer Society, 30 Speen St., Framingham 01701.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Abraham Lincoln delivered his Gettysburg Address Nov. 19, 1863. Lesser known is the article below in which he enjoins love of liberty and reverence of the nation's laws:

Let every American, every lover of liberty, every well-wisher to his posterity, swear by the blood of the Revolution, never to violate in the least particular, the laws of the country, and never tolerate their violation by others. As the patriots of '76 did to the support of the Declaration of Independence, so to the support of the Constitution and laws let every American pledge his life, his property and his sacred honor. Let every man remember that to violate the law is to trample on the blood of his father, and to tear the charter of his children's liberty.

Let reverence for the laws be breathed by every American mother to the lisping babe that prattles on her lap. Let it be taught in the schools, in seminaries and in colleges. Let it be written in primers, spelling-books and in almanacs. Let it be preached from the pulpit, proclaimed in legislative halls, and be enforced in courts of justice; and in short, let it become the political religion of the nation. And let the old and the young, the rich and the poor, the grave and the gay of all sexes and tongues and colors and conditions, sacrifice unceasingly upon its altars.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Abraham Lincoln delivered his Gettysburg Address Nov. 19, 1863. Lesser known is the article below in which he enjoins love of liberty and reverence of the nation's laws:

Let every American, every lover of liberty, every well-wisher to his posterity, swear by the blood of the Revolution, never to violate in the least particular, the laws of the country, and never tolerate their violation by others. As the patriots of '76 did to the support of the Declaration of Independence, so to the support of the Constitution and laws let every American pledge his life, his property and his sacred honor. Let every man remember that to violate the law is to trample on the blood of his father, and to tear the charter of his children's liberty.

Let reverence for the laws be breathed by every American mother to the lisping babe that prattles on her lap. Let it be taught in the schools, in seminaries and in colleges. Let it be written in primers, spelling-books and in almanacs. Let it be preached from the pulpit, proclaimed in legislative halls, and be enforced in courts of justice; and in short, let it become the political religion of the nation. And let the old and the young, the rich and the poor, the grave and the gay of all sexes and tongues and colors and conditions, sacrifice unceasingly upon its altars.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You don't like rejection. But instead of trying to ram your ideas through to an unresponsive audience, stand back and wait for a more favorable environment later this month.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Job commitments call for the tidy Taurian to charge into those problem-plagued projects and get them into shape. Then go ahead and enjoy the fun and friendships of your expanding social life.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) The pressures of the workplace are beginning to ease. While you still need to stay connected to your ongoing commitments, you'll be able to take more time to relax with family and friends.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might feel that you need to prove how much you can do. But be careful not to take on more than you can handle, or you risk being bogged down. An Aries has a message for you.
LEO (July 23 to August 22) Financially it could be a little tight for a while. So, resist the urge to splurge on things you don't really need. There will be time enough to indulge yourself when the money squeeze eases later this month.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You demand trust from others. But someone is creating a situation that could put your own trustworthiness in question. Be sure to keep all lines of communication open.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A problem delays the recognition that you hoped to receive for your hard work. But all will soon be resolved. Remember to make patience your watchword this week.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Those wonderful ideas could expand your workplace prospects and ultimately lead you on a new career path. Your personal life also opens up new vistas.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) So much seems to be swirling around you these days that you might find it hard to focus on priorities. Best advice: Take things one at a time, and you'll get through them all.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Work out situations with what you have, and avoid the temptation to create complications where they don't exist. This applies both at home and in the workplace.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Keep your keen senses open to possible changes in personal and/or professional situations. Knowing what might lie ahead gives you an edge on how to handle it.
PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Personal pressures at work could create a problem with your performance. Best advice: Focus on the job ahead of you. If necessary, you can deal with the other issue later.

BORN THIS WEEK: Like your fellow Aquarian Abraham Lincoln, you have a way of handling the most difficult situations with grace and conviction.

Miss Turner died Feb. 4 at Elizabeth Seton Residence in Wellesley Hills.

Miss Turner taught in Quincy for 49 years, most of them at Sterling Middle School. She retired in 1975.

She lived in Milton and Quincy before moving to Wellesley Hills several years ago.

She was a graduate of Notre Dame Academy and Emmanuel College and earned a master's degree in education from Boston University.

She was a member of the Emmanuel College Alumnae Association, the Delta Kappa Gamma Honor Society for education, the Quincy Teachers Association, and the Legion of Mary. She was a parishioner at St. Agatha's Church in Milton and St. Joseph's Church in Quincy.

Burial was in Milton Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the John P. Hearn Funeral Home in Roslindale.

Donations may be made to Propagation of the Faith of Boston Inc., 49 Franklin St., Boston 02110.

John B. Towle, 79

Retired Truck Driver

A graveside funeral service for John B. Towle, 79, of Quincy, a retired truck driver, was held Monday at Blue Hill Cemetery in Braintree.

He died Feb. 7 at Elihu White Nursing Home in Braintree after a long illness.

Mr. Towle worked for American Biltrite Co. for many years.

He was a Coast Guard veteran of World War II.

Mr. Towle and his dog, Rex, were members of the Faxon Park Dog Playgroup.

Born in Boston, he lived in Quincy for many years.

He is survived by three nieces, Ellen Knowles of New Hampshire, Maureen Carro of Bridgewater and Tricia Rousseau of Uxbridge.

Funeral arrangements were by Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St., Quincy Center.

Georgia Bullard, 76

A funeral Mass for Georgia (Jianos) Bullard, 76, of Hyannis, formerly of Quincy, was celebrated Tuesday at St. Francis Xavier Church, Hyannis.

Mrs. Bullard died Feb. 9 at Cape Cod Hospital in Hyannis.

Born in Boston, she was educated in Boston public schools and lived on Cape Cod for 30 years.

She was a communicant of St. Francis Xavier Church,

Hyannis, and a member of the Women's Guild.

She is survived by her husband, Robert F. Bullard; two sons, Arthur T. Bullard of Quincy and Stephen Bullard of New York City; two brothers, Homer Jianos of New York City and Joseph Jianos of Foxboro; and two sisters, Anita Walker of New Mexico and Mary Garfield of California.

Burial was in Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne.

Funeral arrangements were by John-Lawrence Funeral Home, Marston Mills.

Donations may be made to St. Francis Xavier Church, St. Vincent dePaul Society, Cross Street, Hyannis, MA 02601.

Captain Jack's Cocoa House Saturday

Captain Jack will host his Cocoa House Saturday, Feb. 16 from 9 a.m. to noon at Union Congregational Church, 136 Rawson Rd., Wollaston.

This month's theme is team work. Participants will learn how to be part of the Christian team by putting Jesus in the center of your life as well as put caring for others above caring for ourselves.

Those attending will also learn the beatitudes.

Volunteers are needed. For more information, call (617) 479-6661.

Alzheimer's Orientation, Discussion Meetings

The second in a series of two-part monthly Alzheimer's Orientation and Discussion Meetings will be held Tuesday, Feb. 26 from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at Hancock Park Adult Day Health Center, 164 Parkway.

Beverly L. Moore, RN, MA, CS, of Alzheimer's Caregiver Services, will facilitate these discussions and support groups. Meetings are free of charge and open to the community.

For further information, call 617-233-1145.

CITY OF QUINCY

NOTICE OF DUE DATE FOR TAX BILLS

Taxpayers are hereby notified that the Massachusetts Department of Revenue approved the FY 2002 Proforma tax rate recapitulation for the City of Quincy on February 8, 2002.

Therefore, the third quarterly estimated bills mailed to taxpayers on December 31, 2001 are deemed to have been mailed on the approval date and are due thirty days later, or on March 11, 2002. If unpaid, interest will accrue on such bills from March 11, 2002.

The fourth quarterly bill will be the actual bill for the fiscal year, with credit for payments of the three estimated bills. Such bills will be due on May 1, 2002 or thirty days after mailing, whichever is later. This same date will be the deadline for applications for abatement.

INVITATION TO RE-BID

CITY OF QUINCY, MASSACHUSETTS Department of Public Works

William J. Phelan
Mayor
Lester F. Gerry
Director of Building Construction

The Department of Public Works for the City of Quincy, Massachusetts invites sealed bids from Contractors for the Repairs to the Snug Harbor & Bernazzani Schools Contract, according to the documents prepared by Peterson Engineering, Inc. in conjunction with the City of Quincy Department of Public Works.

The project consists of comprehensive exterior renovations to two school buildings including removal and replacement of windows and doors, joint sealant, and miscellaneous related works at the Snug Harbor and Bernazzani Schools.

General Bids will be received until 1:00 PM local time on Wednesday, March 6, 2002 in the offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, MA 02169, at which time and place all bids will be publicly opened and read aloud. Mailed Bids should be sent to the Department of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, MA 02169 and received before the date and time specified above, for receipt of general bids. All prospective general bidders must be certified by the Division of Capital Asset Management (formerly DCPO) in the category of Metal Windows. The bid will only be valid when accompanied by a Certificate of Eligibility issued by the DCAM, showing that the Bidder has been approved to bid on projects of the size and nature of that advertised, and an update statement summarizing the Bidder's record for the period between the latest certification and the date the Bidder submits a Bid for this Project.

Filed Sub-Bids will be received on Wednesday, February 27, 2002 at 1:00 pm in the offices of the Commissioner of Public Works in the following categories: a) waterproofing - joint sealant.

A refundable deposit of $25.00 (certified check or money order) is required for each set of Contract Documents. Bidders requesting Contract Documents by mail shall pay an additional non-refundable amount of $15.00 per set to cover shipping and handling costs. All checks shall be made payable to the City of Quincy. The Contract Documents may be obtained during the business hours from 8:00 AM to 3:00 PM at the Offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, Contracts/Bidding Division, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, MA 02169 on or after Wednesday, February 13, 2002. The deposit will be refunded upon receipt of returned plans/specifications at the Department of Public Works, within 30 days after the opening of the General Bids.

General bids and sub-bids shall be accompanied by a bid security in the amount of five percent (5%) of the total value of the bid in the form described in the Instructions to Bidders. The Successful Bidder shall be required to furnish a one hundred percent (100%) Construction Performance Bond and a one hundred percent (100%) Payment and Materials Bond from a surety company acceptable to the City.

The bidding and award of this contract shall be in full compliance with Massachusetts General Law, Chapter 149, as last revised. No bidder may withdraw the bid within 60 calendar days after the actual date of the opening of the bids.

All Federal/State and City of Quincy regulations in relation to Minimum Wage Rates, Minority Work Force, Equal Employment Opportunity and Employment of Quincy Residents, and Apprenticeship Training must be complied with. Failure to comply with these requirements may render the bid non-responsive, and thus ineligible for further consideration. No waiver for any portion of these provisions will be granted. The City reserves the right to waive any informality in or to reject any or all bids if deemed in the best interest of the City. The City does not condone submission of unbalanced bids. Such bids may be summarily rejected.

Raymondi Opposes As Duplication

Mayor Requests Budget Coordinator

Mayor William Phelan's office was scheduled to ask city councilors Tuesday night to approve the transfer of $19,000 previously budgeted by the prior administration for a special events coordinator in order to fund the salary for a budget coordinator for the remainder of Fiscal Year 2002, which ends June 30.

Phelan, who said efforts to trim the current budget had already resulted in a 10 to 15 person reduction in the city's workforce since his taking office, emphasized that the $19,000 was a transfer of existing funds and would save the city money in the long run.

Speaking to The Sun prior to Tuesday night's meeting, Council President Daniel Raymondi disagreed, calling a budget coordinator position "unnecessary" and saying he would oppose the request, which was expected to go into committee during Tuesday night's meeting.

If approved, Phelan said he would tap Quincy resident and CPA William Harding for the job, touting Harding's experience in creating and analyzing budgets.

"The city will be saving money by the transfer since the budget coordinator's salary will be less

March 18 Expected Date For Tax Classification Hearing

The earliest possible date for the City Council to hold a public hearing on the city's tax classification percentage is Monday, March 18, said Marion Fantucchio, chairwoman of the Board of Assessors, Tuesday.

According to Fantucchio, the state's Department of Revenue is expected to arrive in Quincy on Monday to review and certify the city's property valuations, a process which will take at least one full week.

And after those figures are approved, she said, the city will need to give residents one week of public notice.

"March 18 is the earliest we could have it," Fantucchio said.

City councilors, led by Council President Daniel Raymondi, were scheduled Tuesday night to discuss a possible public hearing date to set the classification percentage, the means by which the city's tax burden is shifted from residential to commercial property.

The tax classification percentage is usually set in December along with subsequent tax rates for residential and commercial property. However, neither of those figures have been able to be set due to delays in state certification of the

Phelan Names New DPW Commissioner

Mayor William Phelan has appointed Jay J. Fink to serve as the city's Commissioner of Public Works.

"Mr. Fink possesses superior knowledge and experience in the management of all public works divisions and programs," Phelan said Tuesday afternoon in announcing Fink's appointment. "He promises to be a great asset to the city of Quincy."

Fink will begin his new role Monday, March 4. Lester Gerry, who has been serving as acting commissioner since the resignation of former DPW Commissioner David Colton, will return to his former position as the director of Building Construction and Maintenance at that time.

Fink comes to Quincy from the city of Newton where he served for five years as utilities director. He was responsible for the management, administration, direction, and emergency response associated with the water, sewer, and drain divisions and directed a $24.5 million budget. In addition, he managed a $17 million sanitary sewer rehabilitation and separation project funded by the state revolving fund.

Fink brings an additional six years of public works experience with him, having served as Water and Sewer superintendent in the town of Weymouth, superintendent of Public Works in the town of Wrentham, and project manager in the city of Gloucester.

Fink, Phelan said, has a wealth of knowledge in both regulatory compliance and construction management. He represented three municipalities in compliance violation negotiations with the Department of Environmental Protection and managed several multimillion dollar construction projects.

Fink is an appointed member of the Massachusetts Water Resources

Vote Due At Second Session Monday Bragg To Call For 'Roberts' Rules' At School Seat Convention

School Committee-woman and Joint Convention Member Jo-Ann Bragg said she intends to re-introduce a call for Roberts' Rules of Order when the convention meets again Monday, Feb. 25 at 7 p.m. in the Council Chambers of City Hall.

Bragg added that process, not politics, was her concern during the Feb. 8 joint convention of the City Council and School Committee, which is charged with filling the School Committee seat vacated by new Mayor William Phelan.

"For the record, I had no intention of supporting that motion," said Bragg, referring to Council President Daniel Raymond's motion to vote on candidates Feb. 8 instead of Feb. 25. "What I wanted was public debate and discussion, which is our job as public officials."

That debate didn't happen, she said, because Roberts' Rules of Order was abandoned at some point in favor of procedural votes which Bragg herself voted for with the understanding that there would be amendments.

"I never would have voted for those procedural rules if I had thought we were not going to have Roberts' Rules of Order," Bragg said, adding that the rules have been a mainstay of public meetings for more than a century.

Bragg said she will put Roberts Rules of Order

"back on the table" Monday night and then call for discussion of the rules for voting on candidates that night.

"It's just so we're all on the same playing field," said Bragg, adding that she had no problem with the eight procedural rules in addition to Roberts' Rules of Order. "Then we vote, up or down (on subsequent business), but we move forward."

Reached for comment Tuesday, Phelan, the ex-officio chairman of the convention, said he remained confident that Monday's convention meeting would proceed smoothly and choose his successor to the School Committee.

"Hopefully we'll be able to work out any issues that still exist before the convention," said Phelan. "The only task the convention has left is to vote on the candidates and all questions asked prior to the meeting and during the meeting concerning that task will be heard and answered," Phelan said.

"I don't anticipate any problems with the simple process of voting for a candidate for School Committee," the mayor added.

The 15 candidates who spoke at the Feb. 8 meeting were: Ron Iacobucci, Sal Giarratani, Jay Davis, William Keener, Elaine Dwyer, John Cain, Stephen Durkin, Stephen Golden, Susan Milone, Julie Berheran, David McCarthy, Patricia DelVal, Kathryn Gralton Hobin, Patrick Conroy, and Robert Haley.

President's Office Renovation At Quincy College Has Phillips, Barry At Odds

Recent renovations to Quincy College President Sean Barry's Saville Hall office area have Barry and Paul Phillips, president of the Quincy Educational Association which represents Quincy College faculty, at loggerheads over fiscal priorities for the school.

Phillips claims the administration, with the support of the college's Board of Governors, is making administrative offices "opulent" while tightening belts in other areas.

Barry claims Phillips is taking one or two expenses out of context to paint an untrue picture of the college and continue the uneasy relationship between administration and faculty that has existed in the past at Quincy College.

In a recently released two-page statement, Phillips blasted Barry and the school's Board of Governors for "tripling" the office space previously used by former Quincy College President Dr. G. Jeremiah Ryan and for furnishing that space with such items as $2,400 draperies, a $1,500 stainless steel refrigerator, and a 48-inch, $1,800 television set while largely ignoring, Phillips said, office needs on the faculty side.

"The real problem is that Quincy College administrative offices are now opulent," said Phillips, who also took issue with the number of out-of-state conferences attended by Barry. "Faculty offices, on the other hand, are tawdry, overcrowded, and deteriorating."

"While $2,400 draperies were installed in the president's office, a clunky old copy machine was removed from a group faculty office area as a 'cost saving' measure," Phillips' letter states.

"Assuming a college president's office requires a television set, why does Sean Barry require a 48-inch Sony? Wouldn't a 27-inch Panasonic, costing perhaps $1,000 less, suffice? Assuming the college's old refrigerator wore out, why does the Board of Governors require a stainless steel $1,500 refrigerator? Assuming the college has money for such items, why does it ask faculty to contribute to a fund to purchase classroom flags after the Sept. 11 attacks?..."

"Such behavior isn't merely wasteful, and a breach of the public trust; it is also an affront to the faculty."

Barry labeled Phillips statements as "severe accusations which are inaccurate and unfair."

Phillips letter also points out what he sees as a larger problem: a lack of accountability on the part of the Board of Governors, which was instituted in the mid-1990's during major changes to the school. Said Phillips:

"The Board of Trustees structure was designed to free Quincy College from political interference. It seems it has done a better job insulating Quincy College from accountability."

"President Barry can do anything he wants with the public trust, especially if the Board of Trustees rubber stamps it."

Absolutely not so, said Barry, who responded that, per recommendations of a Space Committee, improvement of classrooms "was initiative number one" and that the renovations to his office allowed for the consolidation of school personnel and were in keeping with the recommended plan of said Space Committee.

"There was an expenditure and what we did was to transform an office of two people into a shared space, bringing over people who I need to be in constant contact with," said Barry, explaining that what was referred to as "the president's office" now includes offices for Thomas DeSantes, executive director of Marketing and Recruitment; Scott Conlin, director of Marketing and Research; Janet Pollard, assistant to the Marketing Staff; Janet McKeen, an assistant in the office; and space for a director of Personnel and in-house counsel.

According to Quincy College Vice President and CFO Christopher Harrington, one-third of Saville Hall underwent renovations at a cost of $72,000 beginning in FY 2000 and running into FY 2001. Included in that project were the president's office, the board's meeting room, the offices of two vice presidents (one office on a different floor), and the reconfiguration of the library. Harrington noted the office space now holds six employees instead of its original two and that the kitchen and bathroom area attach to the board meeting room which is used for additional meetings by the college.

"This is an area which is benefiting from the college, with a reception area and meeting room," said Barry, adding that some renovations to the bathroom and kitchen area were necessary to make those areas handicapped accessible. "We do this every 10 years and I think it's reasonable to make these modifications."

Barry, who began serving as interim president of the college Jan. 31 of 2000 following Ryan's departure and was named its new president Sept. 11 of that same year, took issue not only with Phillips' accusations but with his manner of presenting them.

"I don't hear this directly from Mr. Phillips," Barry said. "What he chooses to do is go through the media and monthly newsletters to voice his criticisms."

Barry defended his decisions, noting that the large screen television can be plugged into a computer for meetings and was actually half the cost of an earlier planned LCD Panel for the office; that he had turned down a traditional $15,000 inaugural for himself as not cost-effective; and that the top priority had always been classrooms, including new facilities on Temple St., "where teachers spend a majority of their time on campus."

In the end, however, Barry said the issue was not draperies or television sets but "a greater issue" dating back decades as to how the school was being run.

"From the get-go, Paul Phillips has had a problem with me doing this job," said Barry. "These are reasonable, one-time expenditures but, taken separately, they're wonderful issues to exploit."

"What's the core assessment of what's happening at Quincy College?" asked Barry. "If you believe that we're fulfilling our mission, then you can paint one picture. But if you start looking at things with malice, then you can paint another one."

Theresa Lord-Piatelli, chairwoman of the Board of Trustees, was unequivocal in her support of Barry, whom she credited with stabilizing the college's finances and improving its overall fiscal health.

"I can tell you that I have not one question about his prioritization of expenses in his office or anywhere else," said Lord-Piatelli. "I find him to be, thus far, the most responsible president that this college has had under our watch."

She also took issue with Phillips' charge of lack of accountability by board members.

"This institution is subject to standards set on a national, state, and local level," said Lord-Piatelli, pointing to the school's NEASC accreditation, "and the Board of Governors is accountable to the ultimate constituent: the student."

Barry emphasized that the school received no state or city funds and that the city was compensated for some of the services it did provide the college.

"We are 100 percent tuition-driven, so in a lot of ways we function like a small business," Barry said.

Phillips disagrees. "It's definitely a case of the haves and have-nots," he said.

McGrath Appointed To Personnel/Legal Post At Quincy College

Former City Solicitor Stephen McGrath has been named Personnel/In House Counsel at Quincy College.

McGrath, a former city Councillor who served as city solicitor under Mayor James Sheets, was hired by college President Sean Barry.

STEPHEN McGRATH

McGrath stepped down from his solicitor's post to allow Mayor William Phelan to appoint his own legal team.

McGrath was involved in the college's transfer of governance from the School Committee to the Board of Governors and brings more than 20 years of public sector experience to the college.

McGrath will serve as Executive Assistant to the President for Personnel/In House Counsel.

As part of his duties, he will represent the college in various legal matters and will serve as legal advisor to the college and executive staff.

He will also serve as compliance officer, assisting the college in its regulatory relationship with state, federal and local governments.

"Steve brings to the college a lifetime of experience in municipal government and the actual experience of intimately understanding the history of Quincy College," Barry said.

"I cannot put a value on the wealth of information and insight the college gains from the addition of Attorney McGrath."

McGrath is vacationing in Florida but sent word to Barry that he is "thrilled and enthusiastic" about joining the college.

"We've known for years that we need a fulltime person on campus, days, nights and weekends, as a resource to the college and the president, and as a qualified point of contact for the myriad of McGrath and Barry made the offer shortly after that.

"Attorney McGrath knows Quincy and completely understands Quincy College," said Barry. "He was in City Hall when the governance change took place. He has been involved in a similar role as the chief legal officers for the city, and this transition makes a great deal of sense for us."

According to Barry, the college spends tens of thousands of dollars each year on legal services from a local law office. The law office will continue to represent the college in collective bargaining and in labor issues.

"We're looking at the position as a service and reference for our daily management of the college and as a personnel officer," Barry said. "Many of those duties were handled by several college officers prior to the creation of the position."

agencies and departments with whom Quincy College works," said Theresa Lord-Piatelli, chair of the Quincy College Board of Governors.

President Barry has urged us to consider this position and, to help him manage the college, we supported the recommendation. Steve McGrath has a sharp legal perspective, a wonderful sense of humor, and an absolute commitment to our city. All of those attributes add value to our campus."

The Board approved the position description and a committee of college administrators screened and interviewed applicants. The committee recommended

Gutro Seeks Update On KeySpan Gas Pipeline

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro wants representatives of KeySpan Energy Delivery to update members of the Public Safety Committee of the City Council on a 25-inch, moderate pressure cast-iron pipe which distributes natural gas from Dorchester to Braintree and runs under certain sections of the city.

Specifically, Gutro, who was scheduled to introduce a resolve calling for a hearing at Tuesday night's meeting of the City Council, wants KeySpan representatives to discuss the history of the pipe, which is believed to be close to 100 years old in some areas, as well as a recent "disproportionate number of repairs" in the Quincy Center area and plans to ensure public safety in the future.

"The pipe is a concern to many neighborhoods in Quincy, especially the folks by Whitney Rd. and Woodward Ave.," said Gutro, who said he was alerted to the situation by members of the Quincy Center Neighborhood Association (QCNA) and its president, Nancy Jolly.

DOUG GUTRO

The QCNA has expressed concerns over recent leaks in the pipe, especially around joint areas. In a Jan. 29 letter addressed to Council President Daniel Raymond as well as Gutro and Ward 1 Councillor Gregory Hanley, the QCNA stated its request that the gas main be replaced with plastic pipe along its entire length "in the interest of public safety and to relieve public fear regarding the potential for disaster from these leaks."

In addition, a Feb. 11 letter from Robert Smallcomb Jr., director of the Pipeline Engineering and Safety Division of the Department of Telecommunications and Energy of the Massachusetts Office of Consumer Affairs and Business Regulations, addressed to George Jongeling, vice president of Gas Operations at KeySpan, supports the urgency of QCNA concerns "regarding the integrity of the entire ten-mile length" of pipe and calls for a 13-point action plan, including weekly leak surveys, to address those concerns.

"Given the gravity of the situation, I am expecting a quick turnaround to the data request," Smallcomb's letter reads. "The leakage has gone on too long, and it is symptomatic of a pipeline in need of a plan. It is time to bring this problem to closure."

Gutro echoed the message that addressing residents' concerns on the matter was urgent.

"The objective of raising the issue before the City Council is to shine a light on their (KeySpan's) activities," said Gutro, who added his hope that a date certain for the hearing would be set as soon as possible.

"We need to show that the city of Quincy is paying close attention to the chronic series of repairs made in this part of the city."

Thermometer Swap Program At Local Pharmacies

The Department of Environmental Protection is sponsoring a thermometer swap program.

Quincy residents are asked to bring their mercury thermometers to a participating pharmacy and exchange it for a free digital thermometer.

The program began Sunday and will continue through Saturday, Feb. 23.

For Quincy residents, the following pharmacies are participating: Brooks Pharmacy (formerly Osco Drug), 132 Granite St., Stop & Shop Pharmacy, 495 Southern Artery and Walgreens, 550 Adams St. and 418 Quincy Ave.

Residents are asked to transport thermometers inside its plastic case or wrapped inside two sealed plastic bags to prevent breakage.

The program is organized and funded through the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection in an effort to reduce mercury products in the home resulting in a safer environment in and outside of the home.

Mercury thermometers tend to end up in the trash and at landfills, thereby contributing to groundwater contamination, which eventually leads to lakes and streams.

For more information on how to protect your family and the environment from mercury, call 1-866-9Mercury or visit the Department of Environmental Protection Web site (www.stopmercury.com).

This is a statewide program. Residents from any city or town can check the Web site or call to determine participating pharmacies in their area.

Quincy residents who may have questions can call Rosemary Nolan at Quincy Public Works at 617-376-1901.

Pass The Peace Pipe?

The city council dipped into the so-called Rainy Day Account for $2.5 million to balance its books for Fiscal Year 2002.

Maybe it could be tapped again for a couple of small purchases:

One peace pipe.

One pound of peace pipe tobacco.

And maybe the mayor, city council and school committee could all sit down and have a puff or two.

That may sound a little facetious. But we could use some togetherness right now.

Things have calmed down a bit since, but that stormy opening session of the Joint Convention to fill the vacant school committee seat of now Mayor William Phelan left some strong divisional feelings that could linger.

The last thing we need is lingering division among city officials.

What we need is some rowing together on what are now choppy financial waters.

Quincy, like other communities, is in for a bumpy ride with the overall economy sluggish and with state aid and other needed revenue dropping or drying up.

This is no time for feuding.

There are issues to be resolved and filling that vacant school committee seat is only one of them.

The proposed new Quincy High School isn't exactly a done deal. Will the promised 90 percent state reimbursement still be there? And even with it, will the city be able to really afford its share of the total cost?

The Coddington St. site is wetlands. It means the city, if the school is built there, will have to replace those wetlands. To where and at what cost? And, what about the potential flooding resulting?

Neighboring Milton which has undertaken a multi-million dollar school expansion-improvements project expecting 90 percent state reimbursement, recently got a jolt.

The Massachusetts Department of Education denied reimbursement of $6.8 million for additional costs -- including the replacement of wetlands.

Going into the opening convention session, Mayor

Phelan wasn't happy over recent attempts in the city council and school committee to call the meeting. The city charter, he declared, specifically states it is his call -- not theirs.

Phelan says he ran the meeting upholding key decisions by Acting City Solicitor Joseph MacRitchie, and allowing the 15 candidates for the school seat to state their case.

"I have no agenda other than to try to accomplish the people's work of selecting a school committee member," he told The Sun.

But School Committee Vice Chairwoman Christine Cedrone, veteran School Committeeman Ron Mariano

CEDRONE

MARIANO

and City Council President Dan Raymondi saw it differently.

Cedrone and Mariano were irked because they wanted to speak and were not recognized. Ignored, they put it.

"I felt that we were working for a king, that we were not allowed to speak, that I was not allowed to do my job and no mayor has the authority to do that," declared Cedrone.

"I felt that the mayor used strong-arm tactics to silence discussion and that angered me," said Mariano.

Phelan refused to bring to a vote a motion by Raymondi that the convention vote on the vacancy that night. And refused to recognize a Mariano motion to adjourn seconded by Cedrone.

Phelan cited MacRitchie's ruling that to change the voting date that had been set for Feb. 25 would violate the open meeting law.

Raymondi's overall reaction to the meeting: "Elected officials both on the City Council and the School Committee were silenced and were not able to discuss rules and procedures in an orderly fashion."

The session took five hours and the 15 candidates did get to present their credentials and respond to questions.

Whoever does land the needed majority votes (8) will not be just a seat warmer for two years but an important player on the school committee. Maybe even a swing vote on crucial issues involving the school committee.

The actual vote is scheduled to take place Monday, Feb. 25 at 7 p.m. in the City Council Chambers. Unless proceedings get bogged down in in-fighting.

The opening session was televised live by Quincy Access TV and then rebroadcast several times.

Some who saw it first live, said they just had to see it again to be sure they saw what they thought they saw. And those who didn't see it live, had to see the rebroadcasts after hearing and reading accounts of it.

It did wonders for Quincy Access viewer ratings. But it just didn't set right with most of those who tuned in.

Hopefully, those hard feelings seen that night are put aside Feb. 25 and Part Two gets the job done and done right in an orderly manner.

And then have all join together to tackle those big issues facing the city.

Political differences and/or personal feelings shouldn't get in the way.

Quincy needs a team. And team players.

Adams Historical Park Seeks Seasonal Tour Guides

The Adams National Historical Park is accepting applications through Feb. 22 for seasonal employment as park guides and visitor use assistants.

The season runs from April 8 through Nov. 10.

Park guides conduct tours through the historic structures, participate in educational programs and special events and perform other duties as assigned.

Visitor use assistants staff the Visitor Center information desks, answer visitor questions, assist visitors with tour planning and collect fees for tours.

The Adams National Historical Park includes the birthplaces of John and John Quincy; the "Old House," home to both presidents and their descendants; and interpretive programs at United First Parish Church, where both presidents and their wives are buried.

To be eligible for seasonal employment, applicants must be U.S. citizens and submit their Optional Federal Employment Form OF-612 or resume to Adams National Historical Park, 135 Adams St., Quincy, MA 02169-1749. Applications must be postmarked no later than Dec. 23.

To obtain an application, contact the personnel office at 617-733-1177, Monday through Friday, between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. or visit the Federal Job Internet site at www.usajobs.opm.gov.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1906 POSTCARD is a picture of the old Quincy Grammar School that was located pretty close to the East Squantum Street entrance to today's North Quincy High School. It was one of 10 grammar schools in Quincy at the time. Built in 1873 it has replaced an earlier building on Atlantic Street. At the time of this picture this school with only eight rooms had more than 35 students per class. It was built of wood with no insulation and used a primitive steam heating system in winter. In warmer months they opened the windows for ventilation as shown here. A school bell probably hung in the belfry. In 1909 a much larger fireproof brick school building was built on Newbury Avenue to replace this one.

Phelan's No-Nonsense, No-Favorites Approach

Gee, what a surprise that most of the School Committee and City Council don't like the way Mayor Phelan attempts to run a meeting.

He was basically the only one who took a firm stand against the Sheets Machine concerning Toxic High School. Not too many city politicians had much of a stomach for him then, the feather ruffler that he dared to be.

Bill's straightforward, no-nonsense, no-favorites, by the book and letter of the law approach to business and government must surely be a culture shock to officials used to whining and coercing to get their way. I hope Christine Cedrone's comments about the mayor's leadership ability was misquoted or taken out of context, because I kind of liked her professionalism and hope she's not getting strange. I guess we all have had days.

I expect that more and more of Quincy's voting public will grow to appreciate the mayor's effort, sincerity, and effectiveness in these sluggish economic and high security alert times.

'Appalled' By Infighting At Joint Convention

Based on the events that transpired at the joint convention held at City Hall on Friday, Feb. 8, the lesson of teamwork taught to us by the Patriots has a very short shelf life.

We attended the meeting and were appalled by the infighting and lack of cooperation demonstrated by our elected officials. Hopefully, not too many of our children will see this tutorial in civics.

The meeting commenced with Mayor Phelan presenting procedural rules that he drafted and essentially forcing a vote on a motion to accept those rules without any discussion. Prior to the vote, Mayor Phelan stated that he wanted this slate of rules adopted first and then amendments could be discussed afterward. After the rules were adopted, a lot of bickering ensued between the mayor and a number of officials with only one amendment being voted on before the mayor closed discussion and forged ahead with the statements of candidates. This resulted in two elected officials walking out in protest and cast a pall over the proceedings.

Determining the procedures to be followed in a convention of this nature is an integral part of the process. Yet the end result was that the City Councillors and the School Committee members were denied any input on these procedural rules.

Mayor Phelan's campaign was built on the supposition that the people should have a say in how government is run. The City Councillors and the School Committee members are elected by the people and serve as the people's representatives. Thus, the people of the City of Quincy were denied a voice in this matter.

All of this could have easily been avoided if prior to the meeting the mayor, the City Council, and the School Committee worked in tandem to agree upon a procedural framework. They could have then affirmed and voted on these rules at the beginning of the meeting and quickly moved forward to hear the candidates. The mayor should have taken the lead on this as the presiding officer of the convention.

We expect our elected officials to work together for the common good of the people and to show respect to one another. Our city stands on the precipice of change. Given the current financial constraints, many difficult decisions will have to be made in the ensuing months. This requires a collaborative effort from all of our elected officials to promote the common good.

Let's hope that the lack of cooperation and teamwork demonstrated at this meeting is not a harbinger of things to come.

Quincy's Yesterdays Delcevere King Honored At Testimonial

By PAUL HAROLD

Six hundred people honored Quincy banker Delcevere King at a testimonial at Coral Gables in Weymouth. Known as "the man on the ninth floor" (of the Granite Trust Building), King was honored by the city's leading business, political and church leaders.

Feb. 21 - 27

50 Years Ago

Heading the program was restaurateur Howard Johnson who flew up from Florida for the dinner. Johnson praised King for his banking and business acumen and credited King with the success of his chain of restaurants that had grown from a cigar and newsstand to a $100 million empire.

King and his father loaned Johnson $40,000 to set up his first restaurant in the Granite Trust Building, "Quincy's Empire State Building." It was from this start that the Howard Johnson chain grew nationwide.

LOW TEACHERS SALARIES ADDRESSED

School Committeeman Dr. Joseph McDermott confronted the issue of low teacher salaries in light of five recent vacancies. With competition from other school districts there was a question of Quincy's ability to attract and keep teachers.

Two changes in policy were suggested in recruiting. Committee member Carter Lee proposed that the city drop its policy of not offering permanent positions to married teachers. Supt. Dr. Paul Gossard proposed that Quincy no longer limit its interviews to those in the top 25 percent of their class, but be expanded to include all those in the top 50 percent of their graduating class.

FUNERAL FOR SGT. JOHN SWEENEY

A military funeral was conducted at St. John's for Air Force Staff Sgt. John Sweeney, III of Yardarm Ln. He was the brother of Charles Sweeney who piloted the plane that dropped the atomic bomb on Nagasaki.

Sweeney was born in Somerville, but grew up in Quincy, graduating from St. John's School and Quincy High School. During the war he served in the Marines, but when recalled he joined the Air Force. He was stationed at Otis Field in Falmouth where he died in the Camp Edwards hospital.

Chinese Cultural Development Council Celebrates New Year

The Chinese Cultural Development Promotional Council (CCDP) of Quincy recently celebrated the Chinese New Year at China Pearl Restaurant in Boston's Chinatown.

Over 300 guests attended the festivities, including Mayor William Phelan, CCDP legal advisor Atty. Jeffrey Brids, CCDP accountant William Grindlay, Jian Tan of Central Real Estate, Hi Thai, John Chen, and a group of young Chinese girls adopted from China by American parents.

This year the CCDP Chinese New Year celebration took place prior to the actual Chinese New Year, Feb. 12, 2002, so that Peter Jae, the CCDP president, could present eight Chinese Lion heads to area schools and organizations in time to display them.

Jae came up with the idea for the gifts as a result of repeated requests to borrow the Chinese Lion heads from the CCDP.

The artifacts proved an excellent tool to share Chinese culture with area communities. With the help of donations from Rotary Club of Quincy, Central Real Estate, and Yau's Marketing Services, Jae was able to purchase the Chinese Lion heads and present them to the following schools: Francis Parker Elementary School of North Quincy, Sacred Heart School of North Quincy, East Middle School of Braintree, Fiske School of Wellesley, Central Massachusetts Chinese Language School, Lexington Chinese School, Bedford Chinese American Association, and Youth Folk Art Workshop of Lexington.

Now that the news of the gifts has spread, Jae is receiving more requests for Chinese Lion heads. In order to accommodate the requests, more funds are needed. Jae said any business firms and organizations in Quincy that would like to make a donation towards the purchase of additional Chinese Lion heads could send checks made payable to the CCDP to: CCDP, c/o Peter Jae, 12 Wollaston Ave., Quincy, MA 02170.

Jae said funds will be used to purchase more Chinese Lion heads and give them out during the 2002 Christmas season.

For more information, call (617) 816-8588.

PLANNING THE 23rd Annual Ball of the American Red Cross to be held March 8 at the Quincy Neighborhood Club are (seated) Michelle Bowen, committee chairwoman and William Reilly, and (standing) Jackie Gardner, director Red Cross South Area, and Mary Snethen.

Red Cross Ball Set for March 8

The American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay will hold its 23rd Annual Ball Friday, March 8, at the Neighborhood Club of Quincy.

Chairing the event, which this year will have a red, white and blue patriotic theme, is Councilwoman Michelle Bowen. Other council members are Jerry Dacey, chairman James Chicco, Mark Fisher, Richard N. Hart, John Spillane, Daniel May, Michael Gianoni, Glenn Ferguson, Robert Goyette, Kathleen Palmer, Kevin Burke, Daniel J. Flynn, John J. Pasciucco, Lynne Houghton, Kevin M. Mescall, Mary Snethen, Peter Palmer, Mae Harris, William A. Reilly, Robert Petrie, Joseph Richiardi and James McLean.

"As chairman of our local Red Cross, I feel this community has a lot to be proud of," said Dacey. "Through the American Red Cross, we are there for families facing emergencies like fires and other disasters, including many that never make the news.

Through the Red Cross, we have hundreds of neighbors who know how to give first aid and CPR and many of them trained to save lives with automatic external defibrillator. Because of our support for the Red Cross, families separated by military service this year have been able to exchange messages about family emergencies. We're a generous community, as your support for the Red Cross shows. We hope that you can continue to help by supporting our Ball this year. It's true - together we can save a life."

Tickets are on sale for $60 per person or $600 for a table of 10. Send checks to: American Red Cross, 1495 Hancock Street, Quincy, MA 02169 or to pay by credit card and for more information, please call Jackie Gardner at 617-770-2600.

Committee Plans 6th Annual NQHS Senior Stay Out

With senior year half over and the Senior Prom only months away, plans are already underway for the sixth annual North Quincy Senior Stay Out party.

The all-volunteer Senior Stay Out Committee recently kicked off its fundraising efforts with a "North Quincy High School Night" at the Roche Brothers Supermarket on Falls Blvd. during which the supermarket donated five percent of all shoppers' receipts collected by NQHS parents to the Senior Stay Out Party.

In addition, fundraising letters have been sent out to local businesses, community agencies, and senior parents requesting tax-deductible cash donations, raffle prizes, or food donations.

More than 300 students attended last year's "Stay Out" — a safe post-prom party featuring fun, games, prizes, and lots of free food in the Willard Building at State Street, South Complex — and organizers expect an even larger turnout this year.

Donations may be sent to North Quincy High School, Senior Stay Out, 316 Hancock St., North Quincy, MA 02171.

Interested volunteers can call Jean Mackey at (617) 479-9084.

Author Mark Widershien To Read Works At Library

The Bookmark Cafe, located in the atrium of the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Center, will host an evening with author Marc Widershien Tuesday, Feb. 26, at 7 p.m.

Widershien will read from his book, The Life of All Worlds: Fragments from an Autobiographical Journey, a lyrical memoir of the post-World War II era.

Widershien, a native Bostonian, remembers "the post-war jitters," the Korean War, the advent of television and the arms race with the then Soviet Union. He has memories of an era from 1947-1960, including McCarthyism.

Widershien began and study of art and music at an early age and, as a teen, studied poetics. The holder of a number of degrees, he has worked as a teacher, librarian and bookstore owner. Widershien has had wide experience in publishing poetry, translations, book reviews, articles and visual arts and did the cover illustration for his book.

The Bookmark Cafe is accessible. There is no charge for the program.

READERS FORUM

Bravo To Phelan, McCauley

Bravo to Mayor Phelan and Councillor McCauley for standing up to the bullying professional Quincy politicians who seem to want to make a parliamentary pageant out of the most simple legislative processes like listening to five-minute presentations from potential School Committee candidates.

They stood down the attempted last-minute manipulations attempted by the Old Guard onto the already agreed on platform.

The voters of Quincy were sending a message when we replaced the mayor and almost half of the City Council. It is pretty clear that these refreshing new members of our local government are not impressed with the shallow, time-wasting rhetorical drudgery and infighting and posturing that has typified our city's government for the past decade. And as some previous councils quibbled in trivialities, the former administration was allowed to carry out such recent municipal abominations as the 184 acre/$100 million giveaway of city land to private individuals for two golf courses, deceitful acquiring of toxic land and its liabilities with taxpayer money, inability to build a high school with 90 percent state funding, a ship-yard that's a grave-yard, city spending that has risen almost double the inflation rate, a grossly inadequate "rainy day fund" despite 10 years of a booming economy, and there's much more.

Message to the Old Guard at City Hall: let Mayor Phelan and the new guys with intelligent, creative, and honest ideas fix the deep problems that have been seeded in our city government and have caused the need for painful and offensive tax increases and declining bond ratings.

William P. Kiley III
Dundee Rd.

This Is A Democracy, You Know . . .

I watched the joint convention of the Quincy City Council and Quincy School Committee three times to make sure that I was not overreacting to what took place.

The new Quincy Mayor William Phelan's shocking, incompetent, childish, out of control behavior and lack of leadership skills disgusted me. He's obviously on a power trip. Phelan campaign posters headlined the word "leadership." He had to be kidding. Tyrants and dictators do not lead, they seize control, dominate, and take away rights. Sound familiar?

That's exactly what happened at the meeting of the joint convention. It sounds extreme, but it happened. When he said that he was running the meeting by his own rules (instead of Robert's Rules), I almost fell off the chair. Who does he think he is? The voters elected each and every delegate in that group, and we have the right to expect each and every one of them to be allowed to have input into the formulation of the rules of procedure. Mr. Phelan was presumptuous when he presented his rules to be voted on, and prevented our elected officials from even speaking. Meanwhile, Mr. McCauley's opinion that they were good rules, was just that, his opinion. It is unlikely that all 15 people are going to think alike.

This is a democracy (you know... by the people). Since he took office, democracy has flown out the proverbial window. He violated the democratic process with two elected bodies, and this needs to be dealt with. If a president can be removed for "abuse of power," certainly a mayor can be held accountable. I hope that the officials who he prevented from carrying out their duties can refer this problem to a higher authority and take action to make sure that it cannot ever happen again. I don't know what planet Mr. McCauley was on during the meeting, but he certainly was not seeing what was happening at the meeting. To even suggest that anyone apologize to Mr.

Phelan is an insult to the citizens of Quincy and an apology from the mayor would be insufficient. I believe legal action should be taken against him.

I've wondered why Mr. McCauley is always coddling Mr. Phelan, and my question was finally answered in the Feb. 12 Ledger. Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Frank McCauley on your new city jobs. It's really sad that people who have served the city well for 20 or more years are being discarded like yesterday's paper. It's cold and callous. Mr. McCauley said during the campaign that it's better to leave early than to stay too long. It's good advice. He and Mr. Phelan should heed it, and let the city recover.

Judith A. Coleman
Chickatabot Rd.

(Editor's note: Those two jobs referred to: Frank McCauley to the Quincy Retirement Board at a $3,000 stipend. Sandra McCauley to the Crane Library Board of Trustees, unpaid.)

YMCA 'Strong Kids Campaign' On Way To Reaching $500,000 Goal

The South Shore YMCA's Strong Kids Campaign is off to a fine start in its efforts to raise $500,000 to help low income families to join a Y program or service.

Last year, the South Shore Y was able to give more than $423,000 to help 1,870 low income children and families to experience the positive effects of the programs and activities.

With the help of Mark Primeau, the executive vice president of Eastern Bank who is also the chair of the Presidents Club, the Y hopes to achieve its goal of $500,000 for the current campaign.

The money raised will enable to Y to send more children to camp, allow more youth to take part in after-school activities, teach youth swim safety and lessons, offer child care to families and give the chance to redirect "at risk" teens in the Mountain Movers program.

More than 300 community volunteers are helping to raise funds through personal meetings, phonathons, special events and a golf tournament. To volunteer or make a donation, contact Jill Donovan at 617-479-8500, ext. 109.

Citizens Fire Academy For Seniors At Beechwood Life Center

The Quincy Fire Department announces that the next Citizens Fire Academy for Senior Citizens will be held in March at the Beechwood Community Life Center, 440 East Squantum St.

Sessions will be held from 2 p.m. until 4 p.m. on the following Mondays: March 4, March 11, March 18, and March 25.

The four-session program is designed to educate senior citizens about the principles of fire science, the fire service, and how firefighters do their jobs.

The program also covers issues on fire prevention and the safety measures all residents can take to ensure that they and their families remain fire safe.

New England Lighthouses Historical Society Topic

New England's lighthouses will be the subject of guest lecturer William Patton at the Quincy Historical Society meeting Thursday, Feb. 28 at 7:30 p.m., at the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St.

Patton will offer an illustrated presentation focusing on the most famous lighthouses and the legends and lore associated with them. The talk will highlight some of the little known facts and stories about the Lighthouses, such as the connection between Portland Head Light and the Kennedy family.

Patton, a retired newspaper reporter and college instructor, has concentrated in recent years on writing and presenting New England history. He previously presented at the Historical Society a program on homes of famous New Englanders.

The public is invited to attend. There is no admission charge.

CAR CARE

Winter Advice For Parents Of Young Drivers

Winter driving can be challenging to any motorist, but slippery roads can be especially difficult for novice drivers dealing with ice and snow for the first time, according to AAA Southern New England.

"Parents need to work with their teens to help them gain the experience they need for safe winter driving in the safest possible environment," said John Paul, AAA manager of Traffic Safety and Public Affairs.

AAA offers the following tips to help parents teach their teens to drive in winter conditions:

- Under close supervision, let your teen practice slow speed maneuvers on a wide open snow- or ice-covered parking lot. Have him or her practice hard braking and steering in skidding conditions.

- A novice driver's first on-the-road experience with winter-weather driving should not occur during a major snow storm. Wait until conditions are less severe.

- Consider limiting your teen's driving on slippery conditions to daylight hours until they have gained experience.

- Remind your teen that driving under the influence of drugs or alcohol is dangerous under any conditions, and that the risk is even greater on slippery roads.

- Make sure the vehicle your teen is driving is equipped with essential emergency equipment, including a flashlight, blankets, jumper cables, sand or non-clumping cat litter, and a small shovel or ice scraper.

Different Vehicles Require Different Winter Driving Habits

Motorists should be aware that different types of vehicles have particular operating characteristics that change the way they handle on ice or snow-covered roads, according to AAA Southern New England.

"Knowing the different winter-weather capabilities of a vehicle can mean the difference between a safe trip and serious trouble," said John Paul, AAA's Car Doctor. "Motorists should carefully read their owner's manual for information on their vehicle's equipment and handling characteristics."

Front-wheel-drive vehicles generally handle better than rear-wheel-drive vehicles on slippery roads because the weight of the engine is on the drive wheels, which improves traction. The back end of rear-wheel-drive cars tends to slide from side-to-side during turns on icy roads.

While many motorists are now driving sport-utility vehicles and light trucks that can be excellent for driving in difficult conditions, AAA warns drivers not to become overconfident.

"Sport-utility vehicles and pickup trucks with four-wheel-drive make it easier to get moving on snow-covered roads, but they don't stop any quicker than other vehicles," Paul said. "Drivers still need to slow down and keep a safe distance behind the vehicle in front of them."

Drivers of pickup trucks with rear-wheel-drive need to be especially cautious on slick roads because these vehicles have very little weight over the wheels that are propelling the vehicle and are prone to rear-wheel skids on slippery roads.

A vehicle's braking system also determines how motorists should operate in winter weather. Anti-lock brake systems (ABS) can provide a significant stopping advantage on slick roads, but are only effective if properly used. When stopping a vehicle with anti-lock brakes in slippery conditions, motorists should apply steady pressure to the brake pedal. The ABS will automatically pump the brakes to keep the wheels from locking and the vehicle from skidding.

Drivers of cars without ABS should gently apply pumping pressure to the brakes on slippery conditions to avoid wheel lock-up.

Additionally, many new cars feature traction control, which prevents wheel spin during acceleration. This is very helpful when initially trying to get moving on slippery roads.

Get The Most Out Of Your Car With Regular Care

(NU) — At any time of year, it is very important to take proper care of your vehicle.

The following simple and inexpensive preventive checks will greatly extend the life of your vehicle, ensure safer operation and benefit the environment.

- Check all fluids. This includes brake, power steering, transmission/transaxle fluids, windshield washer solvent and antifreeze.

- Check your tires for proper inflation. This should be done once per month. Under-inflated tires can result in a loss of fuel efficiency and can pose a risk to the tire itself.

- Lubricate the chassis. This can extend the life of the vehicle's suspension system.

- Check battery cables and posts for corrosion. The battery fluid also should be checked; add fluid if the level is low.

- Make sure all lights are working properly. Check the lighting system often, including brake and taillights, headlights, and turn signals.

- Keep your engine tuned. A fouled spark plug or restricted fuel injector can hinder fuel efficiency, increase emissions and cause problems when you drive.

- Get your oil changed regularly. Remember that top grade synthetic oils offer benefits that conventional oils cannot. For instance, Castrol Syntec protects the engine, reduces oil consumption, is resistant to oil thickening, and provides wear protection which helps extend engine life.

- Keep your windows and windshield clean. Make sure the windshield washer blades are free from cracks and change them approximately once a year or as directed by your owner's manual. It is always a good idea to treat your windshield with a rain repellent.

Mariano Bill On CORI Checks For Senior Aides Passes House

The Massachusetts House of Representatives has passed legislation that would place assisted living residences under the same Criminal Offender Record Information (CORI) law that governs nursing homes.

Rep. Ron Mariano filed the legislation to require assisted living providers to obtain CORI checks for any applicant under final consideration for a direct care position.

"It is imperative that we extend this important protection to all of our seniors, while allowing the providers the flexibility they need to hire qualified direct care workers," said Mariano.

Current assisted living requirements relative to CORI checks on direct care staff mandate that a provider not hire any individual until after the results of a CORI check are received. In many instances, this process can take several weeks.

"As a result of this waiting period, often times qualified direct care workers leave the candidate pool to accept positions in different fields, said Mariano.

CORI checks provide information to agencies and individuals certified and authorized by the Criminal History Systems Board (CHSB) to receive this information. A request for access to CORI may come from a variety of sources.

There are currently more than 7,000 non-criminal justice agencies approved to access CORI, and on average, the CORI unit of CHSB processes approximately 60,000 requests for CORI per month from non-criminal justice agencies and individuals. Criminal record data is provided in an effort to enhance public safety and to protect vulnerable population groups.

"I am pleased my colleagues in the House supported my initiative on this important senior issue," said Mariano. "As our elderly population continues to grow, assisted living facilities are becoming an alternative to nursing homes for seniors with limited health needs. Protecting our seniors must remain one of our highest priorities."

Sheets In Line For State Post?

Speculation was beginning to swirl Tuesday that former Mayor James Sheets may be in line for a state appointment by Acting Governor Jane Swift.

The post being mentioned is commissioner of the Massachusetts Highway Department, a position currently filled by Acting Commissioner John Cogliano.

However, The Sun checked with Swift's office and Press Secretary James Borghesani said he had no knowledge of such a decision by Swift, nor had he any knowledge of Swift's timetable for permanently filling the position.

The Sun at press time was unable to reach Sheets at his home for comment.

Bay State Housing Market

Slower Sales Pace, More Modest Price Gains In 2001

The economic slowdown finally caught up with the Bay State housing market in 2001 as contraction in the labor market, a steady drop in consumer spending and the temporary retreat of homebuyers from the market following the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks dampened demand, according to data issued recently by the Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR).

Across the state, single-family home sales fell for the second straight year in 2001, but selling prices continued an eight-year climb, due to price pressures caused by buyers being faced with a limited supply of homes for sale.

The MAR report specifically shows sales of detached single-family homes declined 3.9 percent in Massachusetts during 2001, from 46,302 units in 2000 to 44,514 this past year. Condominium sales also decreased a modest 1.1 percent, from 13,300 units a year ago to 13,151 in 2001.

Even with the slower sales pace, the 57,665 detached single-family homes and condos sold in 2001 is the fourth highest residential sales total in the state history exceeded only by the years 1998-2000.

"Consumers had a lot to contend with this past year, from concerns over job security and the anxiety caused by the September terrorist attacks, to the frustration inherent in a market that offers limited choices, especially for starter homes," said MAR President David Drinkwater. "The high-end housing market also suffered last year due to the corrections in the stock market and decline of the dot.com industry, so we're not surprised by the drop in activity, just that it wasn't greater."

Regionally, last year, sales of detached single-family homes declined in all jurisdictions of the state except western and southeastern Massachusetts, where sales rose 3.5 percent and 4.1 percent, respectively, over 2000 sales levels.

Minor sales declines of 1-2 percent occurred in Worcester County and the Northeast and South Shore regions during 2001, while Cape Cod and greater Boston saw annual sales decrease from 10-12 percent in 2001 over the prior year.

Separately, condo sales improved in four regions of the state — Northeast (2.1 percent), South Shore (2.1 percent), Central (5.1 percent) and Southeast (8.9 percent) — last year, while greater Boston, Cape Cod and western Mass. experienced sales declines when compared to 2000.

"What we're finding is that homebuyers, particularly entry-level buyers, are having to extend their home search further south and west of metropolitan Boston to communities where prices remain more affordable," Drinkwater said.

After a promising third quarter, in which detached single-family home sales increased 4.4 percent and condominium sales rose 2.1 percent over the comparable period in 2000, the market stumbled in the fourth quarter as sales of detached single-family homes slid 5.8 percent, from 11,424 units in the final quarter of 2000 to 10,759 in the same three months last year. And condo sales fell 11 percent, from 3,273 units in the fourth quarter a year ago to 2,912 in the same quarter of 2001.

"There clearly was a departure from normal activity in the first two to three weeks following Sept. 11, but by November business did pick up again," Drinkwater said. "We believe many buyers who suspended their home search in early September did sotemporarily, and that we'll see an earlier than normal spring market due to these delayed purchases."

Sales data from the final quarter of 2001 offers some support for this assertion as sales of detached single-family homes fell 7.6 percent in October, 11.8 percent in November, and then just 6.4 percent in December compared to the same months in 2000, while condo sales dropped 9.8 percent in October, 15.1 percent in November and 9.3 percent in December.

Drawing the buyers back are some of the most attractive interest rates in years. In fact, the rate on a 30-year fixed-rate mortgage fell more than one full point last year to its lowest annual average in three years (7.11 percent in 2001, 8.14 percent in 2000, 7.02 percent in 1998).

Additionally, inventory levels have started to improve, providing buyers more homes to choose from. During 2001, the average number of single-family homes for sale on the market during any given quarter was 31,292, an increase of 15 percent over the 27,181 single-family listings that were available on average during all of 2000.

Buyers also can take comfort in the fact that home values aren't appreciating as quickly as they have in recent years. Last year, the statewide average selling price for detached single-family homes rose to $308,895, an 8.3 percent gain over the $285,154 average selling price recorded in 2000. That's the smallest annual increase in selling price for detached homes since 1997 when the average price rose just 3.8 percent.

However, significant price appreciation is still occurring in the condo market, as the statewide average selling price climbed 17.7 percent over the past 12 months, from an average price of $178,226 in 2000 to $209,718 this past year. All regions of the state also saw higher average selling prices in 2001, with the South Shore and southeastern Massachusetts posting the largest price increases over year-ago levels.

"As we've returned to a more normal selling pace, the ceiling on prices is no longer being pushed as fast," Drinkwater said. "By no means is there an overabundance of homes for sale, but with supply and demand in better balance today than in recent years, we are likely to see a more modest level of appreciation in the months ahead."

"With a wider selection of homes to choose from and mortgage rates down by a full point in the past year, many buyers are finding they have more purchasing power and a greater opportunity to find the home they want. We think that bodes well for the spring market."

Lead Abatement Grant Increased To $12,500

Quincy-Weymouth Consortium's Lead Paint Safety Initiative

Mayor William Phelan and the Quincy-Weymouth Consortium's Lead Paint Safety Initiative (LPSI) announce the maximum grant for lead paint hazard control has been increased to $12,500 per unit.

LPSI is funded through a $2,000,000 grant from the US Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Studies have demonstrated conclusively that childhood lead poisoning causes reduced intelligence, low attention span, reading and learning disabilities, and has been linked to juvenile delinquency and behavioral problems.

Highly toxic, lead can damage a child's kidneys and central nervous system and cause anemia. At high exposure levels, lead poisoning can cause coma, convulsions, and death. At low levels (10 micrograms of lead per deciliter of blood or ug/dL), lead has the greatest impact on children's developing brains and nervous systems, causing reductions in IQ and inattentiveness, reading and learning difficulties, hyperactivity or aggression or result in reduced physical stature and impaired hearing.

Despite past efforts nationwide, nearly one million children in the United States have lead poisoning. Nationally, children in Medicaid represent a high-risk group, comprising 80 percent of children with blood levels 15 ug/dL and above. Similarly, 16 percent of low-income children living in housing built prior to 1946 are lead poisoned.

Without aggressive prevention and control, many children would continue to be exposed to lead paint hazards. According to Planning Director Richard Meade, about 85 percent of houses in Quincy and Weymouth were built before 1979 and 65.5 percent, or 24,700 units, in Quincy and 65 percent, or 14,220 units, in Weymouth contain lead paint. The number of children ages 0-6 years at risk are roughly 3,700 for Quincy and 3,250 for Weymouth.

A particular concern is the increasing number of Asian-American families who do not understand the nature of the threat since, as the city's Asian Liaison Officer John Chen notes, "that was not an issue in their homeland."

Massachusetts' Lead Law requires the removal or covering of lead paint hazards in homes built before 1978 where any children under age 6 live. If a child is lead poisoned by lead hazards where the child lives, the owner is legally responsible. Also, an owner cannot evict or refuse to rent to anyone because of lead paint. Discrimination is against the law and carries penalties.

Unfortunately, lead abatement can be expensive, one reason the grant is so critical. Said Stephen and Maureen Grey: "We were first-time homebuyers and were not aware of the dangers of lead paint until our child tested positive for lead poisoning." With a new mortgage, the Greys had no place to turn until they were referred to the city's program.

A new client of Neighborhood Housing Services, a single mom, says: "I appreciate the generous funding extended to people in my situation with young children to help make our homes safe."

As of December 2001, the Consortium, through its grant, had removed lead hazards in 72 housing units in Quincy and Weymouth with another 15 units underway. Funds are available for 40 additional units. However, the grant will have to be expended by mid-2002.

Angelito Santos, grant administrator, said: "This grant is an excellent resource for homeowners and rental owners. We may not see this kind of special grant in the foreseeable future."

Only three communities in Massachusetts received such a HUD grant in 1999 and no Massachusetts community was awarded this competitive grant in 2001.

The program targets owner-occupied or rental properties occupied by households that meet moderate income limits and have children under age 6. For example, the income of a family of four should not exceed $58,300. Those with higher incomes may qualify under the MassHousing's "Get the Lead Out Program." LPSI will now offer up to a $12,500 grant for lead hazard control. Related renovation work in Quincy could also receive additional grants and loans through the city's other rehabilitation programs. In addition to upgrading their homes and saving on heating costs, a deleading job can earn a state tax credit of $1,500.

Many older homes have lead paint hazards in or around windows, doors, walls, and ceilings. Under Massachusetts Law, certain work must be done by a licensed deleader. However, a trained homeowner can perform some tasks. It is not advisable for an untrained person to do deleading, according to Tom Barry, a Quincy Housing Specialist: "Scraping, sanding, or simply disturbing old lead-based paint can release large amounts of toxic lead dust. Studies have shown conclusively that most children are poisoned by invisible dust that is released when lead paint is peeling, damaged, or disturbed or when you open and close windows with lead paint."

Lead dust settles on floors and other surfaces. From there it can easily get onto children's hands or toys and into their mouths.

Applications for lead hazard control grants may be obtained from the following offices:

Office of Housing Rehabilitation, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy, (617) 376-1050.

Neighborhood Housing Services, Hancock St., (617) 770-2227.

Weymouth Office of Community Planning and Development, (781) 335-2000.

Many childhood lead poisoning cases go undiagnosed and untreated because most poisoned children have no obvious symptoms. The only conclusive way to determine if your child is suffering from lead poisoning is with blood lead test. Unfortunately, a significant number of children are not given a blood lead test. In FY 2000, state records show that 46 percent and 41 percent of children 6-72 months were not screened in Quincy and Weymouth, respectively.

The test is simple, quick, and available in a doctor's office or clinics. Free blood screening is provided by the Quincy Health Department at (617) 376-1270 and the Weymouth Office of Planning and Community Development at (781) 335-2000.

Additional information about this matter can be obtained at HUD's web page www.hud.gov/offices/lead/ lead/fcm or the EPA's web page at www.epa.gov/lead/ lead/haz.htm.

OCL Co-Champ North Quincy Sets Sights On Tournament

By CHRIS POISSON

The North Quincy High girls' basketball team may have finished last in the AT&T Broadband Classic this past weekend at BC High, but in no way does it diminish what it has achieved this season.

Despite the pair of losses, the Red Raiders concluded the regular season with a 15-5 overall record, tying the school record for most wins in the season set by last year's squad. They also captured their second straight Old Colony League championship, sharing it with Bridgewater-Raynham despite knocking off the Trojans both times.

Next item on the to-do list is to break the hex of the state tournament and get beyond the first round. And that's exactly why head coach Doug MacFarlane schedule the highly competitive AT&T tourney at the end of the year.

MacFarlane hoped that by facing strong competition, North Quincy would be prepared for the tempo of the postseason, where the Red Raiders have been bounced in the opening round the past two seasons.

In the opener last Saturday, North Quincy fell to Andover (19-1), arguably the second best team in the state, 53-41, ending its seven-game winning streak. And in the consolation game Sunday, it lost to Stoughton (16-4), 72-64. Andover wound up taking the crown with a win over Somerville.

In the loss to Stoughton, North Quincy's two big guns turned in strong performances. Senior tri-captain Lauren Sleeth tallied 22 points and nine rebounds, while junior April Suprey poured in a team-high 23 points.

Before the tournament, however, North Quincy had a huge match against city rival Quincy last Thursday night on Valentine's Day.

Winners of the first tilt, 45-30, the Red Raiders faced a much improved Quincy squad, which needed a win in its final game to qualify for the state tournament. Anchored by a suffocating defense, North Quincy romped its neighbors, 54-34, at home.

In the first half, the Red Raiders used a smothering full-court press to breeze to a 31-7 advantage at the break.

Quincy's offense stuttered as it turned the ball over 17 times and missed many shots that it normally makes.

"The kids were really intense," MacFarlane said. "The press worked well. Our defense is getting better and better."

In the second half, North Quincy called off its press and the Presidents capitalized. Trailing 39-14 with about 10 minutes left in the game, Quincy engineered a 15-3 run to cut the deficit to 13.

Once MacFarlane reinstated the press, North Quincy reestablished control of the game and held on for the win.

"When they got it down to

SENIOR JOE HERN (on top) captured the Division 1 state championship (152 pounds) this past weekend and will represent Quincy High at this weekend's All-State meet at Salem High School.

Quincy's Joe Hern Div. 1 State Champ

WRESTLING

Quincy High's Joe Hern realized the first of his pre-season goals by capturing the Division 1 wrestling state championship (152 pounds) this past weekend at Springfield Cathedral High School in Springfield.

The senior tri-captain triumphed, 6-2, in the finals over previously unbeaten Jay Bakanowski of St. John's Shrewsbury, becoming the school's ninth state champion since the program was reinstated in 1974.

Hern's dream season (45-0) continues as he qualified for the All-State meet this weekend at Salem High School. The top six finishers at the All-State will represent Massachusetts at the New England Championship in Rhode Island on March 1 and 2.

Hern breezed to the finals by winning his first three matches, two of them by fall and the semi-final by a score of 9-1.

Quincy's success was not limited to just Hern as senior tri-captain Mike Murphy placed third at 125 pounds, losing only in the quarterfinals to eventual fourth-place finisher Mike Dillon of Lowell High.

Senior tri-captain Scott Kelley (160 pounds) also medaled, taking a second consecutive fifth-place finish at the state tourney.

The Presidents finished 10th out of the 50 teams that competed in the tournament.

Head coach Lou Venturini was ecstatic about the strong showings of his captains.

"They've carried us all year and they made us proud this weekend," he said. "It is a testament to the hard work that they have put in these past four years. I couldn't be happier for them and their families."

Raiders Roll Over Quincy; Presidents Down Plymouth

By CHRIS POISSON

To really understand the latest chapter in the Quincy-North Quincy boys' basketball rivalry, let's go back to last February when the teams hooked up for the second time that season.

An emotional game of tug-of-war, the contest came down to a 3-pointer at the buzzer, but Kevin O'Connell's shot bounced off the cold iron, dashing the Presidents' playoff hopes and keeping the Red Raiders' chances alive.

The scene that followed left a lasting impression. After pouring his heart on the hardwood for 32 minutes, O'Connell lay on the floor face first, pounding his hand to the ground, before having to be scooped up by his coach.

Now let's go back to last Thursday night when O'Connell & Co. returned to Hancock Street on Valentine's Day looking to avenge last year's heart-breaker, but instead wound up suffering their third straight setback to their neighbors, a 62-44 loss. They also dropped a 50-30 decision in the first meeting on Dec. 14.

Unlike last year, the two local teams came into this game heading in opposition directions. Having already locked up a tourney spot for the first time in four years, North Quincy (12-7) entered the show-down trying to earn a better seed in the playoffs.

Meanwhile, Quincy (3-

13) headed into the game wondering if things would've been different if it had O'Connell for a full season. In November, he injured his back while quarterbacking Quincy past North Quincy in the JV football game and he did not return until last Tuesday.

With their floor general back, the Presidents rolled to a convincing 65-51 victory over Plymouth North. The offense, which struggled in seven straight losses to start the year, looked crisper as five players reached double digits. O'Connell had 14.

"I think it really showed capabilities, in my feeling, of what we could've done being healthy and together all year," said Quincy coach John Franceschini.

REBUILDING YOUR ENGINE

If your vehicle's engine has died but the rest of the vehicle remains in good shape, consider a rebuilt engine that has been remanufactured and restored to quality standards. Using precision machining procedures and parts designed and manufactured for a particular engine application, common machining operations include resurfacing heads and blocks, boring and honing cylinders, and resurfacing valves and valve seats. New and reconditioned parts installation includes: camshaft, cam bearings, timing set, valves, valve lifters, push rods, valve springs, rocker arms, cam followers, valve stem seals, keepers, pistons, piston rings, crankshaft main bearings, connecting rods, complete gasket set, expansion rings, and others. The resulting new product meets or surpasses the production standards of the engine when it was factory new.

Win Or Tie Spells Tourney For Raiders

Needing three points in its final two games of the regular season to qualify for the state tournament, the North Quincy High hockey team notched two last Wednesday night with a 1-0 win at Silver Lake.

Last night (Wednesday), the Red Raiders headed south on 3 A to meet Marshfield to see if they could muster a tie or win to complete an improbable late-season run and clinch a postseason berth for the fifth straight season.

In the first meeting on Jan. 23 between the Old Colony League foes, the Rams (14-5-2) blanked the Red Raiders, 6-0, at Quincy Youth Arena.

North Quincy (9-8-3 overall, 6-6-1 O.C.L.) started off the season strong, going 4-2-1, highlighted by a win over Durtree (12-4-2) and a tie against cross-town rival Quincy (13-2-4).

Then the Red Raiders began to fall apart. Besieged with discipline problems and several injuries, they went just 1-6-1 in their next eight games and their tournament chances seemed buried with a 5-8-2 record.

Like the past two years, though, North Quincy has rallied back, earning a tie against Bridgewater-Raynham and then reeling off four straight victories against New Bedford, Barnstable, Plymouth South and Silver Lake.

In the Silver Lake game, the Red Raiders scored the lone goal in the middle frame when junior forward Matt Grazioso scored his team-leading 10th goal of the season on a great individual effort. Sophomore defenseman Steve Kelley (14 points) picked up the assist.

Junior goalie Bruce Maggio (3-11 GAA) stoned the Lakers all game, turning away 28 shots for his second shutout of the year. Seniors Scott Markarian and Dan Sheehan, junior Tim Duggan and Kelley played well defensively.

Doug Haskins Scores 4 For Smith, Brink; Keohane's, Wood Commercial Win

Doug Haskins blasted four goals and notched two assists to power Smith & Brink, PC to a 10-4 win over Burgin Platner & Hurley Ins. in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt Division play.

Steve Kamb recorded a hat trick. Kevin Chenette and Kevin Shea each tallied a goal and two assists and Dylan Baker added a goal. Tim Young had two assists and Patrick Young and Kyle Downey had one apiece.

For Burgin Platner & Hurley Ins., Paul Reardon (assist) netted two goals and Kevin Keefe (assist) and Seamus McKenna each had one. Mike Gates collected three assists and Jeff Matthies one.

Keohane's edged the Quincy Sun, 7-6, as Evan Luongo and Andy Bythrow each deposited a pair of goals. Shane Reilly and Peter Eeley each had a goal and an assist and Matt Troy added a goal. James Barresi and Mike LeBel had two assists apiece, while Craig Jackson, Jeff Matthies, James Finn and Andy Beaton each had one.

For the Quincy Sun, Mark Gilbody scored a hat trick and John Sessions tallied two goals. Sean Dunn added a goal and three assists. Mark Forbes had two assists and Kyle Roche and Steve Russo each had one.

Anthony Alibrandi pocketed two goals as Height 4

Hire tied Cotter Club, 2-2. Mike Prioli had an assist.

For Cotter Club, Kevin McDonough (assist) and Matt Sullivan scored.

Billy Kiley scored a pair of goals to lead Wood Commercial Painting to a 4-3 win over Pat Foley Painting. Evan Verhault and Zack McCaul also scored. Scott Vallantini had two assists, while Michael Kineavy, Patrick White and Zach Helfrich each had one.

For Pat Foley Painting, Anthony Palisi scored two goals and James Flaherty one. Steve Cahalan, Samantha Foulsham and Corrine Barry had assists.

14 and we went back to pressing again — boom — the intensity level got right back up there again," he said. "Hey, you have to give them a lot of credit. They didn't quit."

Sleeth delivered a monster game, scoring 23 points, grabbing 11 rebounds and registering eight steals. Suprey added 17 points, most of them in the paint.

"April Suprey just dominated underneath," MacFarlane said. "They stayed behind her on defense and you can't do that to her. She's just too good."

For Quincy, its talented backcourt duo, sophomores Bonnie Hirtle and Sarah Shea, were corralled as they scored a combined 12 points. Senior center Lauren Sullivan scored a team-high eight points, all in the second half.

"I expected Quincy to be a little more experienced," MacFarlane said. "We knew that we could play with them if we took away Hirtle and Shea, which we did with a triangle and two on them. We knew we had to take them out of the game a little bit and not let them just stand out there and bomb, because when they bomb they make them and they're in every game."

hosted its annual invitational, sponsored by Central Real Estate. It defeated Milton, 58-52. On Tuesday, it concluded its season against Stoughton in the championship game.

North Quincy hosted Randolph last night (Wednesday), looking to end the regular season with a five-game winning streak.

Essentially, last Thursday could've been considered Quincy's second game of the season. And it seemed that way. From the pre-game warmups through the first six minutes of the game, the Presidents were running around like they had binged on Dunkaccinos.

Hyped up, Quincy stormed out to a decisive lead. O'Connell, who didn't start, came off the bench and, perhaps still thinking about last year, made an immediate impact. He drained a pull-up jumper, slipped a nice pass to junior Matt Ramponi for a layup and knocked down a 3-pointer for a 12-5 lead, forcing North Quincy coach Ted Stevenson to call a timeout with 9:51 left in the half.

"I warned the kids (Wednesday) that Quincy had nothing to lose and that this would make their season, beating us," Stevenson said. "They came ready and I didn't think we came ready to start the game. We were able to play through it, though."

Indeed, North Quincy withstood the early barrage and turned to what has gotten them this far — defense. Over the next six minutes, the Presidents missed all eight of their shots and committed two turnovers before Mike Lorenzano scored in the post on two straight possessions for a 16-11 lead.

Quincy added just one more basket in the half — junior guard Shawn Munchbach's driving layup that put his team ahead, 18-14.

Although North Quincy struggled to find its rhythm, it managed to claw back and grabbed its first lead of the game on senior Dan Duggan's trey with 34 ticks left. Duggan, who torched Quincy for 22 points and six treys in the first meeting, added just a free throw the rest of the game.

Senior tri-captain Pat Bregoli (12 points) added two of three free throws after he was fouled at the buzzer for a 21-18 half-time lead.

"In the first half we accomplished a lot of our goals," Franceschini said. "The difference was we had opportunities to get a lead and we didn't. As you know, the offensive side of the ball is where we've struggled."

"Quincy got off to a good start, but I think our defense just wore them down," Stevenson said. "Very few teams have scored over 50, 55 points on us. Our kids have bought in to our defensive concepts and it's winning ballgames for us."

In the second half, Ramponi scored on a nice drive to the hoop, but the Red Raiders followed with a 16-2 run, highlighted by senior tri-captain Phil McGillicuddy's eight straight points, to grab a 37-22 lead with about 11 minutes left in the game. McGillicuddy finished with a game-high 20 points.

"In the second half we knew they were going to make a little run," Franceschini said. "They're good offensively. Phil ran eight points in a row."

Down 46-30 with about seven minutes left, the Presidents staged a minor comeback with a 7-0 spurt. Munchbach (11 points) converted a three-point play and scored a layup, and O'Connell (team-high 15 points) drained a jumper to make it 46-37.

North Quincy stopped the bleeding when senior tri-captain John O'Connell, a center, stepped between the arc and canned a 3-pointer, igniting a 9-0 run that left North Quincy with a 55-37 lead with three minutes left on the clock. O'Connell finished with 11 points, all in the second half.

"That was very big," Stevenson said. "O'Connell's trey. 'Okie is a very good outside shooter. For a center, he's not really an inside player; he's an outside player. We'll let him shoot the threes because we know he can make them."

"I think our defense was the difference," he added. "Pat Bregoli did a great job on O'Connell. He shut him right down. I think that was one of the biggest keys because that took them right out of their offense when he shut him down."

Steve Keith (7 Points) Powers Black

PRESIDENTS' YOUTH HOCKEY

Steve Keith exploded for five goals and two assists to power Quincy Black to an 11-5 win over Quincy Blue in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Presidents Division play.

Jarrod Abbott added four goals and an assist. Steve McGrath (2 assists) and Donald Gardner (assist) also scored. Patrick Morrissey had two assists and James Callahan one.

For Quincy Blue, Ed Laura tallied two goals and two assists. Marissa Keegan (2 assists) and Andrew McDonagh (assist) also scored.

Ed Laura netted two goals and had an assist to lead Quincy Maroon to a 5-2 win over Hyde Park. Jarrod Abbott (2 assists), Jim Callahan (assist) and Steve Keith also scored. John Clark had two assists.

For Hyde Park, Glen Fredette and Alex Verity scored. Tim Galvin and Mike Burke had assists.

a hat trick and an assist to ignite Quincy White to a 9-2 win over Quincy Maroon. Chris Haldoupis pocketed a pair of goals. James Spellman (2 assists), Luca Ledonne (2 assists), Paul Fasoli (assist) and Richard Ayer added the other goals. Andrew Cardarelli had two assists.

For Quincy Maroon, Kevin Nee and Tim Fernandez scored. Steve Madden and Steve Keith had assists.

'Red Raiders Read Aloud' Program Visits Squantum School

The North Quincy High School football team recently visited Squantum Elementary School to read aloud to the children in grades 1 through 3 as part of the "Red Raiders Read Aloud!" program.

Also known as "RRRA!," the program is a new tradition that first-year head coach Tony Green has implemented.

"We are reaching out to the younger students in the North Quincy area," he said. "Our intent is to increase their appreciation for reading. It is thought that through peer learning, the value and enjoyment as lifelong learners may be enhanced."

After the reading session, the players discussed with the students their experiences in school, gave away football T-shirts and signed autographs.

This joint venture was made possible through the combined efforts of Don Houghton, principal of the Squantum School; Lou Ioanilli, principal of North Quincy High; and Brian Buckley, athletic director.

Women's Softball League To Hold Spring Meetings

The Quincy Women's Softball League will hold spring meetings Mondays, March 4 and 25, and Tuesday, April 16, at 7 p.m. at the Dawes House in Quincy.

ited to attend. New teams are welcome. For more information contact Ginny at 617-328-0620.

John Alexander Selected For AAU Travel Baseball Team

John Alexander II of Quincy was recently selected to the 2002 South Shore Baseball Club Seadogs 12-and-under Division AAU Travel Baseball Program.

As a member of the Seadogs, Alexander will compete against other AAU (Amateur Athletic Union) teams in the New England area and approximately five teams from Massachusetts with a chance to win the state championships and advance to the national championships in Burnsville, Minn., in July.

"John is a big, strong ballplayer with exceptional talent as a hitter and a pitcher," said manager Ray Bresnahan. "I'm looking forward to coaching him again this year."

JOHN ALEXANDER

Locally, Alexander is a seventh-grader at Broad Meadows Middle School and plays for the Lions Club in Quincy Youth Baseball. The Seadogs program is not intended to replace but rather supplement local league play.

Growing in popularity,

AAU Travel Team Baseball gives players, coaches and families the opportunity to travel and compete in a national tournament. "Competing in the national championships is a thrill of a lifetime," said Steve Almonte, director of the Seadogs program.

The South Shore Baseball Club will field eight teams in 2002, from 10-and-under to 17-and-under divisions. Each member is responsible for fund-raising approximately $2,000 to participate.

For those who would like to sponsor Alexander, send donations to John Alexander II, 7 Wall St., Quincy 02169, or call the South Shore Baseball Club in Holbrook at 1-800-GO-4-HITS.

New Geriatric Assessment Program At Quincy Medical Center

To meet the needs of Quincy's elderly population, Quincy Medical Center has created a new, comprehensive Geriatric Assessment Service.

The service is an extension of Boston Medical Center's geriatric program.

Geriatrician Spencer Van B. Wilking, MD, associate professor of medicine at Boston University School of Medicine (BUSM), will direct the program. QMC nurse practitioner Sharon Giordani will provide nursing care.

"The health problems of the elderly are generally complex and a conventional medical examination does not always address problems such as functional impairments, environmental issues or psychosocial concerns," said Thomas Barber, MD, chief of medicine at Quincy Medical Center.

The new service, located on the sixth floor of the hospital, will feature in-home and hospital-based assessments. These will include a complete medical history and physical examination, cognitive testing and tests to determine an individual's functional status with regards to frailty and mental health.

In-home geriatric assessments will include initial and follow-up visits, and referrals to a psychiatrist, primary care physician or medical specialist, when appropriate.

The program's staff will also work with family members, offering support and serving as a resource for additional home-based services. Appropriate referrals will be made to area providers and services to ensure continuity of care.

Quincy Medical Center is a 282-bed acute care community-teaching hospital providing South Shore residents with comprehensive medical and surgical services. The medical center's Alliance for Quincy with Boston Medical Center, formed in 1999, brings academic medicine to the community.

At Quincy Medical Center, physicians from Boston Medical Center direct the departments of medicine, surgery, anesthesia, emergency medicine and psychiatry. Additionally, physicians from BMC who are board-

RECONTOURING YOUR TEETH

Teeth that are tilted, rotated, crowded, or otherwise in poor alignment may be corrected through enamel recontouring. Generally painless, this procedure involves the removal, recontouring, and polishing of enamel that is overlapping or poorly shaped. The four top and four bottom incisors and canines can be routinely altered. Sometimes, teeth further back in the mouth can also be cosmetically improved. Enamel recontouring is most useful when there is slight to moderate overlapping of the front teeth, slight rotation of the front teeth, uneven wear, or teeth that do not have their biting and incisive edges in harmony (an uneven "picket fence" look). Enamel recontouring may be performed by itself or in conjunction with resin bonding.

A smile can be the most eye-catching feature of a face. With dentistry's many advances, you no longer have to settle for stained, chipped, or misshapen teeth. You now have choices that can help you smile with confidence. To schedule an appointment, please call us at 617-479-6220. Rely on us to answer all your questions about dental treatments and procedures. Common sense tell us that preventing dental disease is more rewarding and less costly than correcting problems once they occur. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we provide complete, high quality dental care, using the most modern procedures. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com

P.S. Both enamel recontouring and bonding can be performed in a single appointment.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Someone once said that "Anything is possible, if you set your mind to it. ... Remember this 'ole world of ours' is full of wonderful experiences. ... So don't keep your dream locked away for 'someday' because that 'someday' is now before you."

This saying reminds us of one such dreamer. His 'dreams' made this 'ole world of ours' a happier and more fun place to be. ...

Throughout his life he was an avid dreamer. ... As a young man, he applied for a job as a cartoonist for the Kansas City newspaper. He was rejected. ... He applied at other places and was rejected everytime. ...

Finally, he got a job drawing publicity material for churches. Did he have a studio? No he did not. ... His 'studio' was a mice-infested garage!

Thirty years later, though, he and one of his mice became world famous! His name? ... Walt Disney.

"Dreams never hurt anybody if he keeps working right behind the dream to make as much of it come real as he can."

A Message From Welch Healthcare

What Is Geriatric Care Management?

By TERRY ANN LUNT

Although most of us want to remain independent throughout our lives, almost everyone will need long-term care at some point in the aging process. It may simply be due to a chronic condition related to aging, or to a long physical illness or disability, or to cognitive impairment.

Long-term care services can be provided in your home, adult day health programs, senior centers, senior housing, assisted living communities, or nursing homes. Fortunately, most communities have a wealth of resources to choose from. However, facing multiple options and choices, gathering the information and making decisions can be confusing, challenging, and sometimes even overwhelming.

Geriatric care management is a service that assists elderly people and their families in meeting long-term care needs, and helps families adjust and cope with the challenges of the aging. Geriatric care managers (GCM) are professionals who have extensive training and experience in matters related to aging. Care Managers can:

Conduct professional, objective assessments to identify family and caregiver needs, and recommend resources to meet those needs.

Review financial, legal, or medical issues, and offer referrals to other aging specialists to avoid future problems and conserve assets.

Recommend community resources, services, and supports that foster independence and quality of life, while minimizing risks; and can also screen, arrange, and coordinate those services and resources.

Provide assistance with lifestyle and housing decision-making, while helping transition to appropriate assisted living communities, continuing care retirement communities, or nursing homes.

Act as a liaison to families at a distance, making sure things are going well, and alerting families to problems.

Assist when a crisis arises, coordinating with caregivers and medical personnel, while keeping families informed.

Most importantly, a GCM is an advocate for you, assisting you to navigate an often complex system of service delivery, ensuring that you receive the quality and level of care you require and the attention you deserve.

Terry Ann Lunt is the Care Management Director for Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group, a trusted family name in senior and rehabilitative healthcare services for over 50 years.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your ideas are finally reaching those who can appreciate them. But don't expect any immediate reactions. That will come later. Meanwhile, a personal matter needs your attention.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your energy levels are rising, and you're feeling restless and eager to get into some activity, whether it's for profit or just for fun. In either case, the aspects are highly favorable, so go for it.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A relationship seems to be winding down from passionate to passive. It's up to you to decide what the next step will be. But don't wait too long to take the initiative.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A decision looms. But be very sure that this is what you really want before you sign or say anything. Once you act, there'll be little or no wiggle room for any adjustments.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Money matters improve, but you still need to be cautious with your spending. Also, set aside that Leonine pride for a bit and apologize for contributing to that misunderstanding.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A tempting financial situation could make the usually unflappable Virgo rush in before checking things out. Be alert to possible hidden problems. Get the facts before you act.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) It's nice to know that you're finally getting due credit for your efforts. You should also know that new opportunities will follow. A family member brings important news.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Any uncertainty that begins to cloud an impending decision could signal a need to re-examine your reasons for wanting to take on this commitment.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You benefit from taking time out of your currently hectic schedule to do more contemplation or meditation. This will help re-energize you, both in body and soul.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Nursing hurt feelings can zap the energies of even the usually self-confident Sea Goat. Best advice: Move forward. Success is the best balm for a painful ego.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A display of temperament surprises you, as well as those around you. It could be all that pressure you're under. Consider letting someone help you see it through.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Some things don't seem to be working out as you'd hoped. Don't fret. Instead, take some time out to reassess your plans and see where changes could be made.

BORN THIS WEEK: You enjoy traveling and meeting people. You are especially good with children and would make an excellent teacher.

Squirt C's Reach Summit In Washington Valley Tourney

The Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt C Eagles recently won the Waterville Valley "Deep Freeze" Tournament in New Hampshire.

In the championship game, the Eagles knocked off unbeaten Malden, 4-2, in a rematch from Game 2 as Steve Cahalan potted a pair of goals to go along with an assist. Timmy Young and James Barresi also found the back of the net.

Trailing by a goal, Malden mounted a late comeback in the third period, but Quincy's defense turned back most of Malden's rushes and goalie Matt Cardarelli refused to be scored upon.

Coaches Dan Cahalan, Steve Verhault and Paul

Reardon said they were proud of the team as it played an inspired game with few mistakes.

The Eagles opened up the tournament weekend with a dominating, 6-1 win over the New Hampshire Lakers. Cardarelli turned away many strong Laker scoring chances as he proved to be nearly unbeatable.

Evan Verhault paced the offense with a pair of goals, while Young, Cahalan, Barresi and Kevin Keefe also lit the lamp.

In the second game, Quincy lost a hard-fought battle to Malden, 3-1. The Eagles had their opportunities but they were thwarted by the Malden keeper.

In Game 3, Quincy came from behind to nip a surprising Pentucket team, 4-2. Down 2-0, Cahalan, Verhault and Barresi led a comeback. And with just under two minutes left in the game, Paul Reardon tallied the game-winner.

Kevin McDonagh, Mark Glynn and Keefe turned in strong defensive performances, as they did throughout the entire tourney. Mike Gates, James Flaherty, Tim Riordan and Matt Sullivan also played well in the tournament.

The Eagles continue their season in the Greater Boston League and will compete in the Pembroke Cranberry Tournament.

Mites, Squirts, Pee Wees Competing 29th Annual Quincy Kiwanis Youth Hockey Tournament Underway At Youth Arena

The 29th annual Quincy Kiwanis Youth Hockey Tournament dropped the puck Monday afternoon at Quincy Youth Arena.

The USA sanctioned Class A tourney includes teams from California as well as New York, Maine, Rhode Island, Greater Boston and the South Shore.

Three divisions — Mite, Squirt, Pee Wee — are featured. There is no Bantam Division this year.

The championships will be held Sunday, beginning with Mites at 10:30 a.m., followed by Pee Wees at noon and Squirts at 1:30 p.m. A coaches game will take place tomorrow (Friday) night at 7:50.

Proceeds will be used to provide scholarships, campships and to help underprivileged children of the community.

Here are the results from the first day of the week-long event:

In Mite action, Quincy dropped an 8-6 slugfest to Canton in the tournament opener. Tied at 3-3 after two periods, Brendan Gibbons put Quincy ahead at 2:14 on assists from Nicole Haskins and Justin Lawless.

But Canton responded by tallying the next three goals for a 6-4 lead. Kevin Rooney netted his second of the day at 3:41, Nick Finn his second at 6:03 and Gerard McElenny his second at 6:21.

Quincy made it 6-5 just 18 seconds later when Derek Murphy scored with Nick Furey assisting. Canton extended its lead to two goals when Finn scored at 8:57 to record his hat trick.

With 46 seconds left in the game, Stephen Brown deposited his third goal of the game with Lawless and Murphy assisting. Canton closed out the scoring when McElenny picked up his hat trick with five seconds left.

Canton grabbed a 2-0 lead after the first period on goals by Finn and McElenny and made it 3-0 in the second with a goal from Rooney. Quincy stormed back to even the score with two goals from Brown and one from Murphy.

In the other game, South Boston edged Brookline, 3-2, behind a pair of goals from Sean Bolstad. Billy Smith added the other goal.

For Brookline, Billy Sellers and Connor Johnson (assist) scored. James Magner picked up an assist.

In Squirt action, Quincy topped Arlington, 4-1, as Matt Furey tallied two goals and an assist.

Arlington took a 1-0 lead after the first period when Richard Gallagher converted a pass from Michael Reposa at 6:10. In the middle frame, Quincy evened the score when Andrew Bythrow (assist) scored with Furey and John Sessions assisting.

In the third, Furey netted the go-ahead goal on a pass from Sessions just 18 seconds into the period. Chris Brown and Furey closed out the scoring.

In the other game, Dorchester triumphed over Braintree, 6-3, powered by Shayne Anderson's four goals.

Dorchester jumped out a 2-0 lead as Nick Satori and Anderson scored, but Braintree evened the score after one with goals from Matt Tenaglia and Joe Gaughan.

In the second, Justin Quinn put Braintree ahead with a goal 44 seconds in. Anderson, though, tallied the equalizer with about 1:20 seconds left. In the third, he scored the first two goals for a 5-3 lead and Shane Dorsey added another to round out the scoring.

In Pee Wee action, the Senators from Ontario, Calif., bested Quincy, 5-3, in the division's only game scheduled for the first day.

Quincy jumped out to the early lead when Bryan Gilligan scored in the opening minute with Mike Gillespie and Jim Fitzpatrick assisting. The Senators, however, soon tied the score on a goal from Travis West.

In the second, Brian Sullivan scored the only goal unassisted to hand Quincy a 2-1 lead.

In the third, Jeremy Melbye tied the game at 3:48 and Andrew Kitt put the Senators ahead, 3-2, at 6:19. Quincy fought back and once again evened the score when Johnny McInnis set up Sullivan for his second of the night.

Less than a minute later, Melbye potted the game-winner and he added another for his trick to close out the scoring.

'Circuit Breaker' Tax Information Available

State Sen. Michael Morrissey announces information on the Circuit Breaker Tax Credit for senior citizens is available at a variety of locations in his district.

Brochures introducing senior citizens to this new tax credit, which could save qualified seniors up to $385 on their 2001 property taxes, are available in town halls, senior centers and libraries throughout Morrissey's district.

"I hope seniors will take the time to find out if they're eligible," Morrissey said. "They have contributed so much to our communities over the years and this program can give something back by helping to alleviate some of the burden that property taxes can create."

This new tax credit is called the Circuit Breaker because it's "triggered" like an electrical circuit breaker when property tax payments exceed 10 percent of a senior citizen's annual income.

Those who qualify will still be required to pay property taxes to their local communities. However, they will receive a dollar credit for every dollar of their property tax, and certain water and sewer bills, which exceed 10 percent of their annual income, up to the $385 maximum.

Senior citizens who rent their homes can also take advantage of the same dollar for dollar credit, up to the same $385 maximum, if 25 percent of their annual rent exceeds 10 percent of their annual income. This tax credit is in addition to the rental deduction already provided for under current state income tax law.

Here are the basic requirements for eligibility:

- Must be a Massachusetts resident, age 65 or older;
- Must own or rent residential property in Massachusetts as your primary residence;
- Must have an adjusted gross income of $41,000 or less for a single filer; $51,000 or less for a head of household; and $61,000 or less for joint filers.

You are ineligible for this tax credit if:

- You are married and do not file joint tax return;
- You are a dependent of another tax filer;
- You receive a federal or state rent subsidy directly or live in a property tax exempt facility;
- Your property is assessed at a value of $412,000 or more.

Official information packets from the state's Department of Revenue for 2001 state income tax returns will include Circuit Breaker schedules and are now available in local libraries and post offices. The Circuit Breaker tax credit will be available to qualified senior citizens who own or rent their homes when they file their 2001 Massachusetts state income tax return before the April deadline.

than the special events coordinator's" said Phelan, referring to the recently eliminated position of director of Tourism and Special events formerly held by Rhonda Merrill.

"The duties of the special events coordinator will be absorbed by the current staff in the Parks and Recreation Department. The $19,000 will be put to far greater use analyzing ways to trim this year's budget and crafting next year's budget using the zero-based budgeting format."

Phelan, who added that the position of budget coordinator already exists but has remained vacant for many years, said the budget coordinator's duties would include developing the municipal budget as well as working closely with department heads "to develop a long range municipal fiscal policy and make recommendations to the mayor, integrating departmental goals and overall city financial conditions and policies."

"Nothing is more important than addressing the current budget deficit facing the city," said Phelan, who has warned of a potential $4.4 million gap for the current fiscal year. "An experienced budget analyst will tackle methods to creatively curtail spending in a way that causes as little pain as possible."

Raymondi argued that a budget coordinator would indeed be a new position whose duties were already handled by the Auditor's Office and members of the mayor's staff.

"This is a duplication of services," said Raymondi, adding that the position has gone unfunded for 23 years.

"This is a new position in an economic climate where the mayor has indicated that the city may be facing cutbacks, furloughs, and layoffs, where we're asking department heads to do more with less. It's not necessary and I do not support it."

Laurie Allen, executive secretary to Mayor Phelan, said the timing was right for such a transfer.

"The only special event left for the city to coordinate is Flag Day and that's something that can be done by the existing staff," Allen said. "My feeling is that the $19,000 is better spent attacking the budget problem rather than coordinating Flag Day."

Including the eliminated position of director of Special Events and Tourism, Phelan said the city's workforce had been reduced by roughly 15 or so employees, mostly through attrition or a decision not to reappoint. That figure, the mayor said, includes 10 DPW employees and two employees in the Assessor's Office.

city's financial information. Recent state approval of the city's "proforma tax rate recapitulation" created a March 11 due date for the city's third quarter estimated tax bills.

Currently, the city has a 169 percent classification. The state maximum is 175 percent.

If the March 18 date is chosen, the public hearing will be held prior to the regularly scheduled City Council meeting which is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m.

Elaine Dwyer Elected On 8-7 Convention Vote

New QHS Top Priority For School Seat Winner

By CRAIG SALTERS

Newly sworn-in School Committeewoman Elaine Dwyer, elected by an 8-7 vote at Monday night's joint convention, said construction of a new Quincy High School will be her top priority over the next two years.

"The first priority is definitely the new high school," said Dwyer, who added her support for the current plan to build a new QHS at Faxon Field and renovate the old high school to house Central Middle School.

Dwyer, who attended most of the meetings of the city's Siting Commission, said other priorities include the many labor negotiations facing the School Committee, the moving back of the city's kindergarten eligibility date from its current "age 5 as of Dec. 31" to "age 5 as of Sept. 1," the maintaining of small class sizes, and teacher retention.

Dwyer, age 46, currently serves as the president of the PTO at Broad Meadows Middle School and is also a member of the Citywide School Committee representing both Broad Meadows and Quincy High School. She is a former president of the PTO at Merrymount Elementary School.

Dwyer is a co-owner of the travel agency Global Destinations, Inc. She lives on Sea St. with her husband Michael, a police lieutenant at Northeastern University, and their two children: Kristen, a tenth grader at Quincy High School, and Katelyn, an eighth grader at Broad Meadows Middle School.

Mayor William Phelan, who served as chairman of the two-session convention, called Monday night's proceedings "a simple process but a difficult vote" because of what he said were "so many qualified candidates."

Phelan congratulated Dwyer on her victory and said she would bring "energy, a commitment to children, and a passion for education" to the School Committee.

Dwyer was sworn-in at 8 p.m. Monday night following a well-paced second session of the joint convention which was comprised of

CERT Group Finds 'Wailing Wall' At Ground Zero

By TOM HENSHAW

"It reminded me of the wailing wall," said Tony Siciliano, who viewed the ruins of Ground Zero, once the site of the twin towers of a thriving World Trade Center, from a special platform over the weekend.

"They cry and cling to each other. They still come there three or four times a week, the people who lost family members Sept. 11, just to look and cry. I tell you, I'll never forget it."

Siciliano, deputy director of the Quincy Emergency Management Agency, led a group of 35

CERT graduates, ages from the teens to the sixties, on a visit to the site Saturday.

CERT is the Community Emergency Response Team, whose graduates have been trained in what to do should terrorists strike Quincy the way they hit New York City on Sept. 11.

But nothing they learned in CERT class quite prepared them for what they saw in lower Manhattan.

"I've been at this for a long time," said Siciliano. "I've been to floods and other disasters all over the country. But never have I seen anything like this."

"I feel the same as I did when I lost my mother a few years ago and stood in the cemetery and looked into the open grave. That was the saddest moment of my lifetime. This was like it."

The Quincy delegation left about 5 a.m. and got to Manhattan about 11 o'clock in the morning. They went straight to Ground Zero. You could tell they were approaching it by the sights, the sound and the smells.

"The buildings that are standing are still covered with soot," said Siciliano. "You can hear the heavy equipment working on the debris. There's still a smell

'A WAILING WALL' of sorts has been erected near "Ground Zero," site of the former World Trade Center in New York City, where loved ones of those killed in the terrorist attacks come to mourn. CERT graduates Elizabeth Strong and William Murphy Jr. were two of 35 from Quincy who paid their respects Saturday.

'GROUND ZERO' itself is still being cleaned up months after the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks which destroyed the World Trade Center. Recent graduates of a Quincy CERT class paid a visit to the site, many saying they would never forget the experience.

of something burning in the air."

Across the street from Ground Zero there is a plaque memorializing those who died in the terrorist attack and the fire fighters and police who died trying to rescue them.

Nearby, a more personal memorial has been set up by friends and relatives and strangers where they leave mementos like toys, shoulder patches and pictures to show those who died that they have been there.

"They say they should have the site cleaned up by the end of the year but I doubt it. The men who are cleaning up work 12-hour shifts. One of them told us the first two weeks he worked 13 hours a day straight.

"We stayed on the platform a couple of hours. The people there all wanted to talk. A man and a woman who lost their son in the tragedy wanted to talk to us. Nothing special. Just talk."

"One of our kids got sick to his stomach and some of them cried. You know how teenaged boys are, they tried to turn away so that no one would see them cry."

After leaving the platform at Ground Zero, the Quincy visitors went to the New York Fire Department's Engine 10, which lost 15 men in the collapse of the twin towers.

"The captain showed us the pictures of the men that were lost," said Siciliano. "It was heart-wrenching to see how young they were. No one drives their vans anymore. Their kids might see them and think their fathers are coming home."

"I wasn't myself at the fire station. I'm not myself right now."

The group left New York at 5 p.m. Saturday and were back in Quincy by 11 p.m. that night after a six hour trip made mostly in silence.

"It makes you think how precious life is," said Tony Siciliano. "It can be gone in a second."

Those who made the trip with Siciliano included:

ANTHONY SICILIANO (far right), deputy director of the Quincy Emergency Management Agency, and a group of 35 recent CERT graduates paid a visit to New York City Fire Department's Engine 10, which lost 15 men in the collapse of the twin towers of the World Trade Center Sept. 11, during Saturday's visit to "Ground Zero." Here Siciliano talks with Engine 10's Lt. Andrew Graf.

ets to the Boston Celtics game Friday night, and a tour of historic Quincy and its fire stations.

The program is designed to thank New York's firefighters and to spur travel and tourism across the country.

It was unveiled in New York City last month at the U.S. Conference of Mayors winter meeting and is co-sponsored by New York City's official tourism marketing organization, NYC & Company, and the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

Phelan is among nearly 300 mayors hosting New York City firefighters this weekend. Firefighters representing each of New York City's fire companies will travel with a guest to a participating city to encourage all Americans to defend and enjoy our basic right to travel.

"These generous invitations provide an exciting opportunity for New York's bravest to carry a message to the country from all New Yorkers thanking people for their overwhelming support following Sept. 11," said Cristyne L. Nicholas, president and chief executive officer of NYC & Company.

"This program brings a sense of community to cities all across America," Phelan said. "It is a wonderful way to do our part to thank New York's firefighters while showcasing our great City of Presidents — all at no expense to the taxpayers."

"I would like to express my gratitude to our local businesses, particularly the Quincy Marriott and Alba Bar & Grill. I would also like to thank the Boston Celtics for their generosity. The success of this program is due in large part to them."

Following Underage Drinking And Vandalism

Police Ask Parents To Closely Monitor Their Children

In the wake of increased incidents of underage drinking and vandalism at the Furnace Brook Golf Course and in the Wollaston School area, the Quincy Police Department urges all Quincy parents to monitor their children more closely.

The alternative to increased parental vigilance, warns Acting Police Chief William Falco in a message to parents, is something nobody wants: the family embarrassment of an arrest and the possibility of a criminal record.

"As a parent, I wouldn't want my child arrested," noted Quincy Police Lt. William Stenmon who runs the department's Community Policing efforts. "and we don't want to arrest anyone. We just want it to stop."

The city, Lt. Stenmon said, will step up patrols as part of a "zero tolerance" joint operation between Community Policing and the Special Operations Unit. The move is necessary, he said, because increased teen drinking at the golf course has led to the destruction of overhead lights, removed signage, and other acts of vandalism as well as fighting.

"Therefore," Lt. Stenmon said, "we are asking you to check up on your children's activities and ask yourself, 'Where are they?' and 'What are they doing?'"

Quincy Police Department says it has received numerous complaints of underage drinking and the vandalizing of public and private property throughout the city.

QUINCY'S FINEST: The City Council and the Morrisette American Legion Post recently co-sponsored ceremonies held at the Bryan VFW Post to honor those Quincy police officers and firefighters who volunteered their efforts at "Ground Zero" in New York City following the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks. Also honored that night was Senior Building Inspector James Anderson who served at "Ground Zero" with the Salvation Army. Quincy firefighters attending the event were, seated

Phelan Trims City Payroll By Nearly $200,000

Confronting what he labeled a sizable budget shortfall, Quincy Mayor William Phelan has eliminated certain positions in city government and will not fill others this fiscal year.

"When I took office in January, I began working on the budget and was alarmed at the extent to which spending was outpacing revenues," said Phelan. "I saw immediate opportunities for savings."

As an example, the mayor cited eight full-time laborer positions in the Department of Public Works (DPW). Created for the purpose of carrying out the Yard Waste Program, which ended in early December, these positions were still filled until eliminated by Phelan on or before Feb. 1.

"This is a program that does not occur during the winter months. To keep these positions filled when the work has been completed would be an injustice to the taxpayers," the mayor said.

Four interns in temporary clerical positions were also identified as superfluous. Phasing out these positions, Phelan said, will realize a savings of over $130,000 for the remainder of the fiscal year.

In addition, Phelan said he has chosen not to fill certain other positions for this fiscal year, including a position in the Assessor's Office, the Department of Inspectional Services, and a mayoral appointment in the DPW, which results in a savings of $58,000.

"So far, we have identified close to $200,000 in savings this fiscal year with no city services being directly affected," the mayor said. "Every effort will be made to seek creative ways to curtail spending to balance the books as required by law."

Koch Eyeing County Treasurer Run

Tom Koch, who has helped elect a few candidates down through the years, may be one himself this year.

The executive director of the Quincy Parks-Forest-Cemetery Departments is looking at a run for Norfolk County treasurer.

"I'm thinking of it very seriously," he says. "I'm definitely leaning toward running."

Quincy's Tim Cahill is completing his six-year term and vacating the treasurer's post in a bid for state treasurer.

Koch feels certain that Cahill has enough convention delegates in his corner to guarantee a spot on the Democratic ballot.

"I wouldn't be considering running if I didn't think so," Koch says.

City Auditor-School Committeeman Michael

McFarland had been thinking of running for county treasurer but has taken himself out of the picture.

"Instead," he says, "I am going to support Tom Koch."

McFarland says he got "good reaction" when he disclosed he might run but has decided to stay put.

"It's a busy time at City Hall," he says. "There's a lot to be done here. And the school committee still has major issues such as a new Quincy High School, Central Middle School and budgetary matters to deal with."

As Quincy's representative on the Norfolk County Advisory Board the past 10 years, Koch has had an opportunity to establish county-wide contacts. Each of the 28 communities in the county has a representative on the board.

The board approves or disapproves expenditures for the county, something like the city council acts on Quincy spending.

Koch has worn a variety of Quincy hats in his career. He is now in his eighth year in the Parks-Forest-Cemetery Departments, five as executive director, a post his late father, Richard Koch, Sr. held.

He served as executive director of the Quincy Council on Aging under Mayor Frank McCauley and four years as executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets.

Koch was Sheets' campaign manager in his crucial and first bid for the mayor's office in 1989. That was the year Sheets was up against three strong opponents -- former Mayor Joseph LaRaia, Councillor Steve McGrath and businessman Peter O'Connell.

It was the best mayoral race for 12 years until William Phelan's 17 vote upset win over Sheets last year.

Koch also played a major role in successful campaigns of Congressman Brian Donnelly, Secretary of State William Galvin and his brother, Richard Koch, Jr. for city council.

Koch has been a candidate for the city council twice himself.

He topped the eight-candidate field for the Ward 6 seat in 1985 but lost the final election to Tom Nutley. In 1987 he ran at-large but lost to Steve McGrath.

If he were elected treasurer it would mean two members of the family in key county posts.

John Keenan, his brother-in-law, is director of the Norfolk County Retirement System. As treasurer, Koch would be chairman of that system.

With his background and experience and county contacts, there's no doubt Koch would make a formidable candidate with a large vote send-off from his hometown.

PATRICK McDERMOTT will formally announce his candidacy for Norfolk County Register of Probate Thursday, March 7 at a 7 to 9 p.m. reception at Lantana, Randolph.

McDermott, former Ward 3 city councillor, is now executive assistant to Norfolk County Register of Deeds Paul Harold.

Suggested donation for the March 7 event is $25 per person. For more information, call 617-471-3366.

SOMETHING LIKE 53,500 city census forms were recently mailed and are beginning to be returned to City Clerk Joseph Shea's office.

One has the staff smiling a bit.

The form was returned by a couple living in an apartment or condo in Marina Bay.

In addition to them, they listed the other occupants: four chickens.

Apparently no rooster.

A RECENT ITEM in Parade Magazine might be of interest to you in case you didn't catch it.

It was about the book Faith of Our Mothers by historian Harold Gullan who gives his opinion about mothers of our presidents.

Of all the mothers, according to the article, Gullan was most impressed by Abigail Adams. He says she probably would have made a better president than her husband, John Adams, or her son, John Quincy Adams.

Wonder what our favorite historian -- author David McCullough would have to say about that?

ED SPARGO, Quincy's premier baseball fan, recently celebrated his 94th birthday with congratulations and autographed photos from two major leaguers: Tom Trebelhorn and Rene Lachemann.

Trebelhorn, former Milwaukee and Chicago Cubs manager, is now Baltimore third base coach.

Lachemann, former Seattle, Milwaukee and Florida Marlins manager, and now the Cubs bench coach, proclaimed Ed as "America's No. 1 Baseball Fan."

Ed says Lachemann and his wife, Lauri, "were disappointed when their Cubs and our sacrosanct Red Sox looked as though both would make the playoffs until decimating injuries ruined their hopes of ending 93 and 83-year droughts respectively."

Ed, Quincy's "Ambassador of Good Health," has been on a one-man 30-year literature crusade for good health.

Incidentally, he is marking his 30th year of retirement as one of the few men who worked for three daily newspapers in Quincy:

The Quincy Telegram, owned by his father, Will Spargo, in the 1920s; The Quincy Evening News in the 1930s and the then Quincy Patriot Ledger into the 1940s. Ed also worked 24 years in the composing room at the Boston Globe, retiring in 1972.

But, no rocking chair. His good health crusade keeps him busy -- and healthy.

Keep 'em rolling, Ed.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1941 artistically enhance view of the old Pneumatic Scale building on the corner of Newport Avenue and Holbrook Road across from the Norfolk Downs railroad depot. Founded in Boston in 1896 the company moved to a small building on this site in 1906. Then in 1920 they built this 100,000 sq. ft. building with poured-in-place reinforced concrete. At the time it was the most modern factory in Quincy. As the company grew it produced a wide variety of machinery used in all aspects of product packaging; from labeling bottles, filling, and capping them to producing boxes, folding, filling, weighting and sealing them. Thousands of familiar products were packaged with their machines. And hundreds of Quincy residents built them. In the 1990s the company was sold and most of the operation was moved out of state. Today, a Stop & Shop Supermarket is on this site.

Thanks From The Salvation Army

Please allow me to express on behalf of The Salvation Army our appreciation for the tremendous support of our Christmas Kettles. Once again, the City of Quincy and surrounding communities have been generous in their giving to assist the less fortunate. They not only helped us bring a brighter Christmas to many families, but also will enable us to assist families through the winter months.

We are also grateful to the many civic leaders, service clubs, and individuals who volunteered to stand at the kettles. This was truly our community working together to help our community.

May God richly bless you in this New Year!

A Thank You From Quincy Girl Scouts

The Quincy Girl Scouts had their Father-Daughter dance Feb. 2 and it was a huge success.

On behalf of the Quincy Girl Scouts, I would like to thank the many people who helped us make the dance a success.

I would like to thank the following local businesses, Montillio's Bakery, Dunkin' Donuts of Wollaston, Roche Bros., McDonald's of North Quincy.

The St. Mortiz stables let us borrow hay to decorate the hall at St. Mary's Our D.J. Jared kept our dads and partners busy on the dance floor.

I would also like to thank the many people who helped me and gave their time which is the greatest donation of all.

If there is a business I overlooked, please accept my thanks and apologies.

VNA Of Boston Expresses Thanks

On behalf of your neighbors — our patients and their families — and the VNA of Boston I want to express my heartfelt thanks to the residents and corporations of Quincy for your support and generosity over the past year. 2001 was difficult for all, but especially hard for those whose national sorrow was compounded by illness or death. Because of your support, an agency record of $61,000 was donated to the agency during our 2001 holiday appeal. Your gift will be used to support our Free Care Fund that helps to cover the costs of our nurses, rehabilitation therapists, home health aides, and other staff in providing free and subsidized care to those who are unable to pay for necessary health care. Last year alone, because of the support from you, the VNA of Boston was able to provide over 225,000 free and subsidized visits to low-income and at-risk infants, children, adults, and elderly residents in our communities.

Since 1886 the VNA of Boston has been the health care safety net for hundreds of thousands of residents of Greater Boston. Thank you again for caring.

Treat John Walker Lindh As The Taliban He Is

John Walker Lindh, alias John Walker, the Taliban who fought against the American troops in Afghanistan, apparently gave up his American citizenship when he joined the Taliban; therefore, he should be tried by a military tribunal.

In addition, he should be in Camp X-Ray, Cuba, with the other dangerous Taliban.

Walker has never expressed remorse over what he had done. Don't forget CIA Agent Spann was killed by Walker's group.

I, vehemently, object to our government which stated they wouldn't try to seek the death penalty against him.

Quincy's Yesterdays Plans For Fenno St. School Approved

By PAUL HAROLD

The school committee gave its final approval to the architect's plans for the new Fenno St. School. The 10-classroom building would include an auditorium and an administrative wing.

Feb. 28 - March 6
1951

51 Years Ago

School Committeeman Dennis Ryan asked architects Paul and Carroll Coletti on the time frame for construction. They said that a speedy start was necessary because of the difficulty in obtaining building materials. If construction started in April, they said the school could be ready for opening the first of 1952.

MEMORIAL FOR HOUGHS NECK VETERANS

A granite memorial was approved by the Houghs Neck Memorial Committee to replace the roll of honor at the corner of Sea St. and Manet Ave. The wooden honor roll containing the names of Houghs Neck and Adams Shore residents who fought in the war was built by Lars Lundin.

The granite shaft memorial would be carved by the W.C. Canniff and Sons company at a cost of $2,300. Additional monies in the fund would be used to landscape the corner lot that was conveyed for memorial purposes by the school committee in 1944.

The members of the original memorial committee were Rev. Peter Hart of Most Blessed Sacrament Church, Rev. Harold Woodbury of Houghs Neck Congregational Church and Councillor David Crowley.

BURGIN INSURANCE MOVES

Thomas Burgin, president of Burgin Platter Insurance Agency, announces his company, one of the largest general insurance companies on the South Shore, was moving across Hancock St. from the Adams Building to the Central Building.

The Central Building, adjacent to the Hancock Cemetery, was built in 1817 as the town's first town hall. It was sold when the new granite town hall was built in 1844. At one time it also served as a school with 250 students in one large classroom. In 1844 it was purchased by the Faxon family.

members of the City Council and School Committee.

"I'm honored and excited and looking forward to the challenges," Dwyer said Monday night shortly after her victory on the fifth round of joint convention voting, thanking supporters and promising to earn the trust of others as she fills the two years remaining on Mayor William Phelan's School Committee seat.

The selection process involved the 15 convention members choosing their candidates and then dropping the lowest vote getters round by round until one candidate garnered the requisite eight vote majority.

The fifth and final round saw Dwyer defeat Atty. Jay Davis by an 8-7 margin.

Voting for Dwyer were: School Committeewoman Jo-Ann Bragge, Councillor Tim Cahill, School Committee Vice Chairwoman Christine Cedrone, Councillor Gregory Hanley, School Committeeman Ronald Mariano, School Committeeman Michael McFarland, Councillor Joseph Newton, and Council President Daniel Raymondi.

Voting for Davis were: Councillor Bryan Connolly, Councillor Kevin Coughlin, Councillor Joseph Finn, Councillor Doug Gutro, Councillor Frank McCauley, School Committeewoman Linda Stice, and Mayor William Phelan.

Other candidates earning votes that night were Susan Milone, William Keener, and John Cain.

"I was delighted just to be involved in the process and to get as far as I did," said Davis, who congratulated Dwyer on her victory, adding that he wished her "all the best because my daughter Madison will enter Kindergarten at the Montclair School and I want Quincy Public Schools to be the best."

"I think they (convention members) did a very good job," said Keener, who said he was very satisfied with the selection process. Keener also said he was considering a future run for School Committee as were some of the other candidates with whom he had spoken.

"You might see a wide-open race next time," Keener predicted.

A FULL HOUSE of interested spectators and candidates was on hand for the joint convention of the school committee and city council Monday night. Shown at left is Atty. Jay Davis who was edged by Elaine Dwyer on an 8-7 vote to fill the school committee seat vacated by Mayor William Phelan. (Quincy Sun photo/Robert Noble)

School Building Needs Topic For Quincy, Wollaston Assn.

Proposed plans for a new Quincy High School and a renovated Central Middle School will be the topic of discussion at the meeting of the Quincy Citizens and Wollaston Park Associations tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, Hayward St.

International Lions Club Director Visits City

An international director of the world's largest service organization was treated to a taste of Quincy hospitality and pride last week when Lions Club International Director Sid Scruggs III visited the "City of Presidents."

Scruggs and his wife Judy toured the United First Parish Church where presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams are interred with their wives, Abigail and Louisa Catherine.

The couple also paid a special visit to the Quincy Lions "Vision With a Purpose" room in the new wing of the Thomas Crane Public Library. The room and the equipment are the result of a donation to the library by the Quincy Lions Club.

The library room houses special assistive technology that enables blind and visually-impaired persons to access the library's many offerings and resources.

Prior to touring Quincy, Scruggs visited the Massachusetts State House where House Speaker Thomas Finneran introduced Scruggs on the House floor.

According to Quincy Lions Club President John Pickering, Scruggs was in Massachusetts to attend the recent Mid-Winter Conference for Massachusetts Lions District 33K. Elizabeth "Bette" Purvis, an associate member of the Quincy Lions Club, is currently serving as district governor of District 33K.

"We were very honored that Sid and Judy took time out of their busy schedules to visit some of Quincy's treasures," said Pickering, who noted that Quincy Lions John Reed and Paul Cavallaro also escorted Scruggs on his tour. "The Quincy Lions Club has a long history of serving the community and we were proud to share that history with an international director of the Lions Club."

A native of North Carolina, Scruggs is a former commercial airline pilot and a graduate of the United States Naval Academy. Scruggs has held numerous Lions Clubs offices at the local, state, and international level.

With more than 1.4 million members, Lions Club International is the largest service organization in the world. Dedicated to serving the community and aiding blind and visually-impaired persons, Lions Club International currently has more than 44,800 clubs in 188 countries around the world.

At Mignosa's Fruit Basket

Patriots Magic Responsible For $1M Scratch Ticket Winner?

By CRAIG SALTERS

The odds of walking into Mignosa's Fruit Basket on Granite St. on any given day and buying a million dollar scratch ticket are astronomical, about as far-fetched, say, as the New England Patriots winning the Super Bowl.

But, so far, February of 2002 is proving a good month for beating the odds.

And it's proving a great month for Bashkim "Bachi" Gurguri, a native of Albania and a manager of Five Star Pizza and More which stands adjacent to Mignosa's Fruit Basket.

Last Wednesday Gurguri walked from his shop into Mignosa's and purchased a pack of cigarettes and a $5 scratch ticket from store owner William Mignosa, joking that he hoped it would be a $100 winner.

Mignosa, a friend of Gurguri's, joked back that the ticket was worth a lot more than that, not realizing how right he was.

"Moments later I heard this little scream from next door," recalled Mignosa, who owns the 100-year old family business with his wife Cindy. "Then he ran back in and started hugging me, saying 'You've made me a millionaire, you've made me a millionaire.' He almost knocked me down."

Mignosa immediately scanned the winning ticket, had Gurguri sign it, and accompanied him to lottery headquarters where Gurguri received an "after-taxes" check for $34,000, the first of a 20-year payment. Mignosa's Fruit Basket will receive $10,000 for selling the winning ticket.

Gurguri is already somewhat of a celebrity in his native Albania as news of his good fortune in the Massachusetts State Lottery was announced on the country's national news.

"It couldn't happen to a nicer guy," said Mignosa, who continued his assistance to Gurguri by advising him to "do the right thing" and put his money towards a home. "He's truly just a very nice person and I wish him the best of luck."

Although it's not too hard to find nice things to say about a millionaire, Mignosa said his friendship with Gurguri began long before when the two rooted passionately for the Patriots against naysaying co-workers from both Mignosa's and Five Star Pizza. In fact, Mignosa is convinced it was that faith in Patriots destiny that made Gurguri lucky.

"We truly believed in the Patriots," said Mignosa. "It was always us against the Raiders fans, then the Steelers fans, then the Rams fans."

"The stars were truly aligned."

And the stars are still aligned, apparently, as Gurguri, a Weymouth resident whose birthday is this week, is scheduled to become a United States citizen in the coming months.

Although this is the first million dollar scratch ticket sold by Mignosa, he maintains that his store is "a lucky one", pointing to an $8.9 million Megabucks winner ten years ago and several other big jackpots.

In fact, Mignosa said he told co-workers and customers that the store was due for a big payout because he had been dreaming of selling a $4 million winning lottery ticket.

Perhaps Mignosa's dream was off by $3 million.

Or perhaps that winner has yet to be sold.

Patriots fans only, please.

After taxes, Gurguri will receive $34,000 annually for 20 years. (Quincy Sun photo/Trish Bossart)

WINTER! CAR CARE

AAA Tips For Buying Child Safety Seat

To help take the confusion out of one of the most important purchasing decisions a parent can make, AAA Southern New England offer 10 features to look for when buying a child safety seat.

Crash statistics analyzed by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) show that in 2000 motor vehicle crashes killed 2,343 child occupants 14 and under and injured 300,000 others.

The National Transportation Safety Board has estimated that the number of children killed each year in motor vehicles could be cut in half if every child was properly restrained.

AAA recommends that parents look for the following important features when selecting a child safety seat. These features can make the seat more convenient for parents and safer for children.

- Check your car owner's manual. Before purchasing a seat look for specifications and proper placement of a child seat.

- Correct seat. Choose the seat that best fits your child and your car.

- Ease of installation. There should be clear instructions on the seat itself. Choose one that explains installation with a diagram instead of text. The instruction booklet should be written in a clear, concise manner with proper illustrations.

- Easy belt path. For your convenience, make sure the child's seat belt path is easily accessed.

- Built-in locking clips. These are a great alternative to traditional locking clips.

- Two-piece retainer clips. Two-piece clips are important in helping the child stay in place.

- Accessible harness adjusters. Adjusters make it more convenient for parents to move the child in or out of the seat.

- Pay attention to weight limits. Look for rear-facing convertible seats with weight limits up to 30 pounds, usually noted on the seat. These limits help protect young children who have outgrown smaller seats.

- Color coding for age and weight. Many seats offer color coding to differentiate age and weight ranges for that seat.

- Easy care and cleaning. Choose a seat with smooth fabric you can easily wipe clean. Difficult fabrics such as corduroy can be harder to wash.

AAA Southern New England is a not-for-profit auto club with 26 offices in Rhode Island and eastern and central Massachusetts, providing 1.8 million local AAA members with travel, insurance, finance and auto-related services.

How Do You Install A Child Safety Seat Properly?

Buying the correct child seat won't protect your child if you don't install it properly.

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, approximately 8 out of every 10 child safety seats are not used correctly. Read the child safety seat manufacturer's instructions and the vehicle owner's manual before you install the seat in your vehicle.

The child safety seat must be secured as tightly as possible with the vehicle's safety belt to ensure safe performance in a crash or sudden stop. The vehicle seat must be threaded properly through the frame of the child safety seat as the manufacturer specifies.

Many vehicle manufacturers have specific instructions or require special equipment for installing child safety seats. The vehicle owner's manual will indicate if you will need "extras" such as a locking clip that secures the vehicle safety belt around the child safety seat or an accessory belt for fitting child seats in particular seating positions.

A locking clip is a smooth metal device that easily slides onto the belt system and holds the overlapping belts together, thus locking or preventing movement. Instructions for using the locking clip can be found in the child safety seat instructions or in the vehicle owner's manual.

Modern continuous-loop shoulder/lap belts allow you to move back and forth to reach or adjust the vehicle controls. This safety belt system is called an "emergency locking retractor" (ELR). A child safety that is held only with this type of belt system will slip and move in the vehicle, defeating its protective features. A locking clip must be used to lock the belt and tightly secure the child safety seat.

Newer model motor vehicles have "switchable retractor" systems. This system can manually be adjusted from an ELR system to an automatic locking retractor (ALR) system for holding a child safety seat. Refer to the "safety restraint" section of your vehicle owner's manual for details.

There are other types of safety belt systems that require special installation procedures to hold safety seats. Always refer to the vehicle owner's manual when you install a child safety seat.

QRTA To Award $125,000 In Scholarships May 23

The Quincy Retired Teachers Association (QRTA) will award $125,000 in scholarships to graduates of Quincy and North Quincy High Schools at ceremonies to be held Thursday, May 23 at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Center, said QRTA Treasurer Robert Mattsson.

Students of the two high schools may apply for a scholarship by making use of the application forms in their respective Guidance Offices. In recognition of their long service to the QRTA and to the youth of Quincy, two scholarships will be presented this year in honor of Stella Krupka and Anna Robison.

Plans for the QRTA's annual scholarship awards presentation were discussed in early February by members of the QRTA Scholarship Board. In addition to Mattsson, present at the meeting were: Arthur Foster, president of the Executive Board; Mary Bozoian, president of the Scholarship Board; Rita McKenna, recording secretary; Mary Catherine Tannoni, corresponding secretary; and Directors Marjorie Bowker, Patricia Drew, Kathleen Fitzpatrick, and Jeanne Greene.

Mattsson said the QRTA Scholarship Fund has awarded roughly $500,000 over the years to deserving QHS and NQHS graduates.

NQHS Fall Course Selection Starts March 5

Fall course selection for grades 9, 10 and 11 at North Quincy High School will begin Tuesday, March 5.

Students will be instructed in the process by the guidance staff and will have input and recommendations from the department heads and their teachers.

The Program of Studies and Course Description booklets will be sent home with the students. Parents and students are encouraged to work together to make informed choices on the course selection sheets.

Parents with questions about course selection may call their child's guidance counselor at 617-984-8747.

The deadline to return the course selection sheet signed by student and parent is Thursday, March 14.

The Care You Want. Close to Home.

And Not Just On Weekends.

You never know when you or your family may need to visit the hospital emergency department. But you can take comfort in knowing that Milton Hospital is ready to provide the emergency and urgent care you need, 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

Extra Coverage - Extra Care

In addition to providing extra coverage on weekends, our emergency department now has a physician's assistant on duty every day during our busiest period (from 2 to 10 p.m.). This enables us to direct emergency cases to the department physician, while the physician assistant treats less critical conditions. The results are shorter waits and more personal attention for our patients. We take the time to answer your questions and address your concerns. It's the kind of personal care that has earned us high marks in recent independent patient satisfaction surveys.

Here When You Need Us

More than 18,000 people are treated in Milton Hospital's emergency department each year, at all hours of the day and night. We hope you don't have to visit us, but isn't it good to know that we'll be here if you do?

Eastern Bank Donates $5,000 To QCAP To Aid First Time Homebuyers

Eastern Bank recently donated $5,000 to Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. (QCAP) to support services for first time homebuyers in Quincy and surrounding communities.

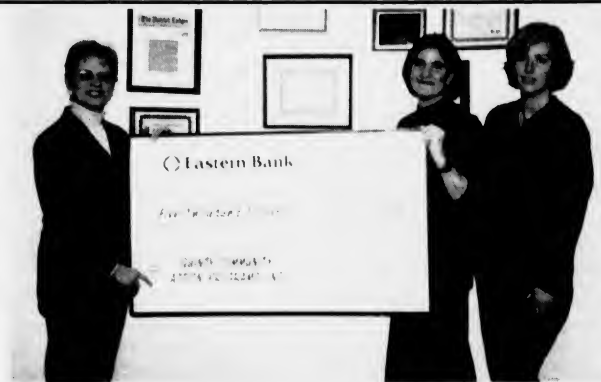

"We are pleased to again be making a donation to QCAP," said Jean Kenney, assistant vice president for Eastern Bank's mortgage lending on the South Shore. "QCAP continues to demonstrate the high quality of community service that has made them so successful with their homebuyer workshops and numerous other programs."

"Eastern Bank has again this year provided QCAP's First Time Homebuyer Program with one of our largest donations," said Beth Ann Strollo, QCAP executive director. "Eastern Bank is a fine example of a community bank that has a concern for low and moderate income customers and displays that concern with support for home ownership education programs like ours."

"We are truly grateful for their generous support of an essential educational resource for families seeking to make their first home purchase."

Since 1990, QCAP's Housing Program has provided First Time Homebuyer counseling services to over 2,500 families. Workshops focus on the buying process from start to finish: namely determining what price is within a buyer's budget, locating a property at that price, negotiating for the home, inspecting and insuring the property, and, finally, closing the deal.

After successfully completing QCAP's homebuyer workshop, participants may be eligible for downpayment assistance and a variety of mortgage options offered through QCAP, MassHousing, financial institutions, local cities and towns, and other non-profit organizations.

stitutions, local cities and towns, and other non-profit organizations.

"Our workshops help to de-mystify the homebuyer process for first-timers," said Trish Appert, QCAP housing director. "We go right to the professionals in the real estate and financial fields to assist us in delivering a comprehensive program that prepares potential buyers to make independent, educated decisions about their purchase."

"This is the edge that people with low and moderate incomes need in a seller's market."

Eastern Bank is one of many local financial institutions that provide speakers for QCAP's homebuyer workshops. This year, QCAP will offer more than 10 first time homebuyer workshops, including special sessions geared towards non-English speakers and residents of local public housing complexes.

Participants receive a certificate of completion from QCAP that will help them access a host of low-interest and low-cost first time homebuyer products and loan packages.

For more information about QCAP's First Time Homebuyer workshops or to register for an upcoming session, contact Sandra Brennan at (617) 479-8181, ext. 119.

UNWELING TO CONNECT
Does the thought of communicating with your home's security system, kitchen, and thermostat from your cell phone sound appealing? If you are like most homeowners surveyed by a non-profit consortium of high-tech companies working to advance the home technology industry, the answer is "no." Nearly 60% of the homeowners surveyed indicated they either did not buy, or were undecided about, "connected" homes. The system permits simultaneous access of the Internet from multiple computers in the home, downloading and delivering a variety of entertainment services to multiple connected devices in the home, and controlling and managing home appliances and security systems from a central and remote control. Many homeowners, it seems, would find a fireplace and well-equipped kitchen more appealing.

Seminar On Lead Paint Poisoning At Crane Library March 6

Mayor William Phelan announces The Quincy-Weymouth Lead Paint Safety Initiative Program and the Quincy and Weymouth Fair Housing Committee will co-sponsor an informational seminar on the "Risks of Lead Paint Poisoning" Wednesday, March 6 at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

The seminar will begin at 6:30 p.m. with opening remarks from the mayor.

The seminar will address questions such as "what kind of repairs a homeowner can do?", "what is low, medium and high risk leadciding?" and "what is meant by lead safe practices?"

In addition, representatives from the Lead Paint Safety Initiative and Masshousing will discuss the various funding programs available to the homeowner to assist them with leadciding expenses.

For more information, call Nick Fisher at 617-376-1366.

How To Keep Your Home Mold And Allergen Free

(NU) — Many homeowners are unaware of the harmful levels of allergens and molds in their homes. Molds, dust mites, cat and dog allergens, and cockroach allergens can trigger asthma and allergy symptoms and make your family sick.

Therefore, it's important to eliminate these molds and allergens as much as possible.

If you have respiratory problems, allergists say that improving the air quality in your home can make a big difference.

However, a comprehensive home allergen analysis can cost thousands of dollars if performed by an industrial hygienist.

"Testing the home for allergens and molds is an important part of disease management and one that is often overlooked due to the difficulty of testing the home environment," said Dr. Jonathan Bernstein, an allergist and associate professor at the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine.

That's why Bernstein recommends Allergen Alert, a kit that tests the levels of the most common indoor allergens and molds in the home. It sells for $99.98 and comes with two allergen collection traps, a video and instructions on how to use the traps to collect dust samples for a professional analysis. The traps attach to your vacuum cleaner, so you simply vacuum the rooms you want to test and then send the collected dust samples to the laboratory in a postage-paid return box.

About two or three weeks later, you'll receive a report detailing the levels of allergens and molds in each room you tested. You'll see if the levels are high, medium or low for each allergen the kit detects.

In the meantime, there are things you can do to help rid your home of allergens. Bernstein and Mike Vogel, director of Healthy Indoor Air for America's Homes, offer these tips:

- Dust your home often. Use a vacuum cleaner with a high-efficiency particulate air (HEPA) filter to help keep settled dust from becoming airborne when you vacuum.
- Wash your bedding once a week. Beds tend to harbor dust mites, so wash bedding in temperatures higher than 130 degrees or with a special detergent designed to eliminate dust mites. Placing specially designed covers over mattresses, comforters and pillows also can help.
- Keep humidity low. Mold and allergens thrive in humid areas, so keep indoor relative humidity below 50 percent with air conditioners and dehumidifiers.

- Keep your kitchen clean. Keep food covered in sealed containers. Wash dishes and sweep the floor frequently. Clean places where crumbs can accumulate, such as near the toaster, stove and counter tops. Take out the trash often.

- To control mold, keep your home free of damp areas. Repair leaks and clean your bathtub regularly, as well as sinks and other areas where mold is likely to accumulate.

For more tips and information about Allergen Alert, log on to www.healthyhomeair.com or call 1-800-560-9111.

Sterling Middle School Named Vanguard Model

A statewide initiative created to highlight exceptional academic progress in the public schools will honor Sterling Middle School for its effectiveness in helping students reach higher academic standards.

Sterling was one of only eight schools or districts in Massachusetts to be named, in the first round of judging, a 2002 Vanguard Model by Mass Insight Education, a Boston-based nonprofit organization that manages a range of statewide programs to improve student achievement in public schools.

The selection by Mass Insight Education is in addition to Sterling's selection last year by the Massachusetts Department of Education as one of only 14 "Compass Schools" in the state in recognition of the school's efforts in MCAS improvement, inclusion, block scheduling, and increased after-school programs.

The Vanguard models are part of the Building Blocks Initiative for Standards-Based Reform, which recognizes fundamental change being implemented by schools to raise academic standards. This is the second year of the program.

Sterling will be honored at the second annual "Building On Success" Conference June 7 at the Sheraton Hotel in Boston. As an award recipient, school officials will present a case study of their program at the conference.

The all-day conference will feature keynote addresses from Harvard's Dr. Richard Elmore, a nationally recognized writer and speaker on professional development and educational reform, and other leaders. More than 700 state leaders, educators, and business leaders are expected to attend.

Sterling will be recognized for "continuous improvement in student achievement brought about by teacher-driven collaboration and initiative to drive change throughout the systems of the school" as well as community involvement in supporting improvement.

The seven other Vanguard Models are: A. Irvin Studley Elementary School and Brennan Middle School in Attleboro, Greenfield Public Schools (district recognition), Hyannis West Elementary School in Hyannis, Kensington Avenue Magnet School in Springfield, Taunton Public Schools (district recognition), and University Park Campus School in Worcester.

Each Vanguard model will receive a $1,000 honorarium, a banner for school display, opportunities to describe their successful strategies at a range of conferences, an analysis and report on their most effective school-improvement strategies, and a chance to act as a "host" school in the Vanguard Partnership program -- providing consulting services on those strategies to visiting school leadership teams from across Massachusetts.

"The Building Blocks Initiative is aimed directly at education's greatest unsolved challenge: how to scale up the best work being done to improve schools, so that students in communities throughout the state can benefit from that work," Mass Insight Education Director Andrew Calkins said.

The 2002 Building Blocks "Vanguard" models were named this winter by a nine-member panel of judges, all Massachusetts educators and school reform experts. Vanguard models were selected based on their MCAS performance compared with other schools serving student enrollments with similar demographics; the coherence and promise of their articulated strategies; evidence of district support and scale-up beyond a single school; and evidence that these change models were not dependent upon factors specific to that school. Judges also considered whether the applying schools appeared ready to effectively take on their role as models, providing practical advice for other schools.

The program is focused on discovering the fundamental organizational change strategies within four areas ("building blocks") essential to standard-based school reform: higher-standards curriculum; effective teaching to those standards; strategic use of data and assessment; and effective intervention programs for students who need extra help.

Practices identified through the program will be analyzed and presented as step-by-step "blueprints" for other educators through the Building Blocks website, scheduled to be released in March. These guides will be published in a wide range of other materials as well and infused into Mass Insight Education's School Leadership Program, one of the state's largest standards-based professional development programs for educator-leaders.

"Educators at these eight Vanguard models are true architects of school reform in Massachusetts," said Calkins. "We congratulate them and hope to help other schools and districts build on their success."

Mass Insight Education is an independent, nonprofit organization focused on improving student achievement in Massachusetts public schools. The group supports the implementation of the 1993 Education Reform Act through public outreach initiatives, a range of field services to school districts and schools, and public opinion and policy reports.

The Building Blocks Initiative is supported by the following sponsors: State Street Corporation, Fleet-Boston Financial, The Irene and George Davis Foundation, The Cox Charitable Trust, Verizon, Washington Mutual, Massachusetts Electric, PriceWaterhouseCoopers, and the Boston Foundation.

John Quincy Adams Topic Of Quincy College Lecture Series March 5

Quincy College continues its new humanities lecture series with John Quincy Adams: "The Greatest President" Tuesday, March 5 at 7 p.m. in the school's Temple Hall in Quincy Center.

The lecture will be presented by Quincy College Vice President Robert Baker, who will look at the writing of the president who fought against slavery and defended the rebel crew of The Amistad as well as his own visions of the United States.

The March 5 lecture is the fifth in a series of eight lectures focusing on the literary heritage of Quincy. The Quincy College Humanities Series is offered at no charge to the public. Light refreshments will be served.

North Quincy-Braintree Face Off Saturday

By CHRIS POISSON

Seemingly down and out, that's when North Quincy High School plays its best hockey.

For the third straight year, the Red Raiders turned their winter campaign around by staging a late-season run to qualify for the state tournament. And their latest performance may be their greatest yet.

Sporting a disappointing 5-8-2 record, North Quincy sandwiched a four-game winning streak between a pair of ties in its final six games, culminating with last Wednesday night's dramatic tourney-clincher, a 4-4 stalemate on the road against the rugged Rams of Marshfield.

"For the third year in a row, the cardiac kids came through with their backs against the wall," said head coach Bob Doyle, whose team is in the postseason for the fifth straight year.

North Quincy, the 13th seed, will travel to Stoneham Rink Saturday night at 6:10 to battle No. 4 Braintree (13-4-3) in the first round of the Division I South tournament. The two teams met back on Dec. 26, with the Red Raiders coming out on the short end, 2-1.

"We faced them earlier in the year," Doyle said. "They've had a very strong season, despite the controversy they had. It didn't seem to affect them down the stretch. They're a very sound defensive team."

North Quincy finished the regular season with an 8-8-4 overall record (7-6-1 Old Colony League). It actually had nine wins, but the 4-3 victory over New Bedford on Feb. 4 did not count toward the MIAA tournament.

Having been whipped by Marshfield, 6-0, in the first meeting on Jan. 23, the Red

HOCKEY TOURNAMENT

Raiders played the Rams tough this time around, as they walked into the locker during the second intermission deadlocked at 2.

"We just told them that it was anybody's game, and that Marshfield was already in the tournament," Doyle said.

Marshfield, though, blitzed North Quincy in the opening minutes of the third, netting the go-ahead goal 1:30 into the frame and adding another about two minutes later for a commanding 4-2 advantage.

"I thought that would be detrimental to the team," Doyle said.

Fortunately for North Quincy, he thought wrong.

With 4:50 seconds left in his high school career, senior captain Joe Fitzpatrick received an outlet pass from junior defenseman Tim Duggan, streaked down the right side and unleashed a sizzling slap shot near the blue line to pull his team within one.

With an injection of hope and confidence, Doyle turned to his assistant coach, Sean Vermette, and predicted the team's leading scorer and go-to player, junior Matt Grazioso, would tally the equalizer.

Fortunately for North Quincy, Doyle was right.

With under two minutes left on the clock, Grazioso carried the puck out of his end and into Marshfield's zone, cut across the ice from right to left and fired a wrist shot from the slot. The puck bounced off the far post, caromed off the goalie's skate as he fell and trickled into the net with 1:37 left.

"I called the tying goal," Doyle said. "It was a beautiful rush, through the neutral zone, gaining speed. Basically, it was a patented Grazioso goal."

"It was a great hockey game," he added. "So exhilarating. Great drama."

In the first period, sophomore defenseman Scott Kelley staked NQ to the early lead when converted on a pass from Grazioso.

The Rams responded, striking for a pair of goals in less than a minute for a 2-1 lead after the first frame.

"We were kind of pressing a little bit," Doyle said. "We were like, 'Oh, oh. I hope we're not waking up a sleeping giant.'"

With about six minutes left in second period, sophomore forward Kyle Camody, playing in just his third game, tied the score with a wrist shot from the right circle. Fitzpatrick and senior Rob Mooney picked up assists.

Junior goalie Bruce Maggio turned in another strong game and his play between the pipes has coincided with the team's six-game unbeaten streak.

"Bruce played exceptional," Doyle said. "Phenomenal. He's the backbone of our team."

Doyle also credits the younger players for the team's late-season charge, particularly juniors Billy Barter, Tim Coughlin and John Mateu, sophomores Joe Norris and John O'Driscoll, and freshman Paul Graham, Chris Tufo and Pat Casper.

"The young kids did a great job keeping the team afloat when we had to fight through those suspensions," Doyle said. "They stuck together. We wouldn't be in this position right now without them holding the fort."

Franklin, have byes. Norwood (8-9-3) is the 14th seed.

"They've played a good schedule," said Quincy head coach Bob Sylvia of his opponent. "They play in a balanced league. I think it's safe to say they have two good lines, a checking line, two good defensemen and a goalie, at the very least, that is adequate. The tournament comes down to everybody being ready, playing as a team and do you get a few breaks."

Last season, Quincy knocked off top seed Falmouth, 1-0, in the second round, but fell to Norwood, 6-1, in the semifinals.

THE QUINCY PEE WEE A team captured the 29th annual Quincy Kiwanis Youth Hockey Tournament championship. Front row, from left: Frankie Sorrento, Pat Dunn, Jimmy Fitzpatrick and Mike Gillespie. Second row: Teddy Finnegan, Teddy Walsh, Mike Leone, Casey Conley, Johnny McInnis, Bryan Gilligan and Anthony Gilbody. Back row: Nadine Pfautz, president of Quincy Kiwanis Club; Win Bettinson, Quincy Kiwanis Club member; Brian Sullivan, Joe Ferris, coach Dave Finnegan, Kevin Bossart, Chris Rooney and coach Jack McInnis. Missing from photo are Mike Maxey and Kevin Lewis.

Quincy Squirts Reach Finals Quincy Pee Wees Win Kiwanis Hockey Title

The Quincy Pee Wee and Squirt hockey teams turned in outstanding performances in last week's 29th annual Quincy Kiwanis Youth Hockey Tournament at Quincy Youth Arena.

The Pee Wees (4-1) captured a championship Sunday afternoon with a 4-2 victory over the Senators of Ontario, Calif., while the Squirts (4-1) reached the final game but came up a bit short, falling to Braintree, 4-3.

In the Mite division, Canton blanked Weymouth, 3-0, to wear the crown.

The tournament featured teams from California as well as New York, Maine, Rhode Island, Greater Boston and the South Shore.

Proceeds from the week-long event will benefit the Quincy Kiwanis youth charities, including needy and underprivileged children in the local area.

Here's a recap of all three divisions:

PEE WEES

In the final, the Senators took a 1-0 lead as C.J. Stretch scored with an assist from Nick Mitzenmacher. Quincy evened the score when Johnny McInnis stuck one in the cage with assists from Jimmy Fitzpatrick and Brian Sullivan.

Late in the first, Alex Hite scored unassisted to hand the Senators a 2-1 lead after the period.

In the middle frame, Teddy Walsh tied the score at 2 with McInnis notching the assist. With 1:40 left, Sullivan netted the game-winner as he cashed in on a Chris Rooney pass.

Bryan Gilligan closed out the scoring in the third period with Kevin Bossart assisting.

In the semifinal game, Quincy edged the Seahawks, 5-4, as it scored four times in the second period. Sullivan potted a pair of goals, while McInnis, Gilligan and Walsh added the others.

Quincy opened the tournament with a 5-3 loss to the Senators, but rebounded with a 3-2 win over Braintree and another win over Hanover.

Also skating for Quincy were Teddy Finnegan, Mike Gillespie, Casey Conley, Mike Maxey, Anthony Gilbody, Pat Dunn, Frankie Sorrento, Mike Leone, Joe Ferris and Kevin Lewis.

SQUIRTS

In the championship game, Doug Haskins put Quincy on the board first with 7:29 left in opening period, but Braintree responded about three minutes later with a Brian Talbot goal.

With 1:33 left, Haskins put Quincy back on top with an assist from Kevin Shea. Once again, Braintree was able to even the score when Colin Benelli scored with only 55 seconds left.

Quincy grabbed a 3-2 lead in the second when John Sessions found the back of the net with assists from Kevin Magoon and Andrew Bythrow.

In the third, Braintree tied the game on a Conor Dillon goal with 6:37 left and then Brian Devlin netted to game-winnerless than a minute later.

In the semifinal game, Quincy routed Plymouth, 8-3, as Haskins and Bythrow each deposited a pair of goals. Shea, Scott Richardson, Wayne Milford and Matt Furey added the other goals.

Quincy opened the tourney with a 4-1 victory over Arlington and blanked Hanover, 5-0, the following day. It blew past Dorchester, 7-2, in the third game to reach the semifinals.

Also playing for the Squirts were Stephen Barresi, Matthew Bridgeman, Chris Brown, Jeff Giordani, Billy Kiley, Michael Lebel, Brian McLean, Scott Vallatini and Joseph Vialpando.

MITES

In the final, Canton scored all three of its goals in the second period and goalie Kevin Gorin shined between the pipes to earn the shutout.

Kevin Rooney scored first unassisted. Nick Finn made it 2-0 with an assist from Jack McClellan and he added his second of the game late in the period to close out the scoring.

Canton defeated Quincy and Parkway to reach the semifinals, where it rallied for four third-period goals to pull out a 7-6 win over the Coastal Stars.

Skating on the Quincy team were Michael Brooks, Stephen Brown, Christian Durham, Nicholas Furey, Brendan Gibbons, Daniel Gibbons, Brendan Glynn, Nicole Haskins, Malcolm Kelly, Justin Lawless, Patrick Mannion, Derek Murphy, Ryan O'Connell, James Phelan and Nicholas Radcliffe.

Quincy-Norwood Rematch

The Quincy High hockey team will open the first round of the Division I South tournament against Norwood Saturday night at 7 p.m. at Brockton's Asiat Rink.

The Presidents (13-3-4) just missed earning a bye in the opening round, drawing the third seed. The top two spots, No. 1 Milton and No. 2

Franklin, have byes. Norwood (8-9-3) is the 14th seed.

"They've played a good schedule," said Quincy head coach Bob Sylvia of his opponent. "They play in a balanced league. I think it's safe to say they have two good lines, a checking line, two good defensemen and a goalie, at the very least, that is adequate. The tournament comes down to everybody being ready, playing as a team and do you get a few breaks."

Last season, Quincy knocked off top seed Falmouth, 1-0, in the second round, but fell to Norwood, 6-1, in the semifinals.

Ted Stevenson Stepping Down After Coaching 25 Years At North Quincy

By CHRIS POISSON

Ted Stevenson has issued a warning to the next head coach of the North Quincy High boys' basketball team.

"I'm going to go to the games and just bad mouth the coaching," he said with laugh.

After 25 years of coaching basketball at the school, Stevenson has decided to step down as the boys' head coach at the end of the season, a position he has held for the past 15 years.

"I just felt it was time after 25 years," he said. "It's time to let some new blood in. I'm tired of the traveling. I have to be at work at 3:30 in the morning and it's tough when you go to Barnstable and don't get home until 11:30 at night."

"I've always said that when it feels like work, I will step down. I'll miss the games and the kids, but I won't miss the practices and bus rides."

Last Wednesday night his alma mater paid tribute, throwing him a party before the final regular season home game of his career against Randolph. Roughly 50 to 70 former players were on hand for the pre-game ceremony.

His tri-captains presented him with an autographed team ball. Dr. Alan Yacubian of the boosters club gave him a limited edition Yakoo plaque and Leo Pupile, a scout with the Boston Celtics and a friend, handed him a Celtics warm-up suit.

"It was just a very nice night," Stevenson said.

Stevenson has actually been thinking of retirement for the past several years, but decided to stay through this year because of his relationship with the senior class, in particularly the tri-captains, Phil McGillicuddy, John O'Connell and Pat Bregoli.

"I've been contemplating it for two or three years, but I stayed because of this group of seniors," he said. "I've had Phil since he was a freshman. John O'Connell and Pat Bregoli have been with me since they were sophomores. I've known them for a while and they're all great kids."

A Quincy native, Stevenson graduated from North Quincy in 1964 and is a member of the school's basketball hall of fame. He co-captained the hoops team his senior year and scored a career-high 44 points in one game.

Stevenson was an instructor with the Quincy Recreation Department and a volunteer in the youth leagues before becoming a coach at North Quincy.

After coaching the boys' freshman team (three years), the girls' junior varsity (three years) and the boys' JV (four years), he took over the reigns of the boys varsity in 1987, where he agreed to coach for about five years.

"I thought I'd do it for five years," he said. "I never thought I'd last 15 years as head coach."

That first season also happens to be the most memorable because he was able to coach his son, Teddy, in his senior year.

"That was fabulous," he said.

Stevenson has had some disappointing moments over the years. He quickly recalled losing to Framingham by one or two points in the tournament one year, after missing four foul shots in last 30 seconds.

"But the good overshadows the bad, big time," he said. "There are a ton of memories. Coaching my son his senior year, Eric Debeour's three-quarters shot to beat Waltham at the buzzer, having three 1,000-point scorers in Sean Donovan, Brian Ross and Phil McGillicuddy. There are just so many."

Stevenson said he has no plans to return to coaching after this year, but he might help out once in a while depending on who the next coach is. And who ever it is, the next coach will have to hear Stevenson second-guessing him.

"I already have my seat picked out," he said jokingly.

Raiders Battle Brockton In First Round Match-up

BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT

The North Quincy High boys' basketball team traveled to Brockton Tuesday night in the first round of the Division I South tournament.

North Quincy (13-7), the 10th seed, finished the regular season on fire, winning its final five games.

In the season finale, the Red Raiders defeated Randolph 60-49. Senior Dan Duggan scored a team-high 15 points, while grabbing seven rebounds and handing out three assists.

Senior tri-captain Phil McGillicuddy added 13 points and senior tri-captain John O'Connell chipped in with 12 points and five rebounds. Senior Jack Liuzzo dominated the paint with 10 points, 10 rebounds and five blocks. Senior tri-captain Pat Bregoli scored eight points.

On a night when head coach Ted Stevenson was honored before the game for his upcoming retirement, the Red Raiders came out flat to start the game. Randolph's Micah Christian, a 1,000-point scorer, hurt them early on and finished with a game-high 19 points.

Bregoli kept the Red Raiders close, scoring six of the team's first eight points. Trailing 20-12 with about four minutes left in the half, they went on a 14-4 run to grab a 26-24 lead at the break.

The Blue Devils evened the score on the first possession of the second half. Holding a 32-26 lead, Duggan scored seven straight points, sandwiching two jumpers around a pull-up 3-pointer, as North Quincy never looked back.

NQ Girls Host Weymouth

The North Quincy High girls' basketball team opened the first round of the Division I South tournament last night (Wednesday at 7 p.m.) at home against Weymouth.

The two teams also met last season in the first round, with the Wildcats upsetting the Red Raiders, 45-36, marking the second straight year North Quincy exited from the tourney after the opening game.

North Quincy, seeded fifth, was regarded as the favorite yesterday against Weymouth (11-9), seeded 12th.

The Red Raiders finished the regular season with a 15-5 record, tying the school mark for most wins in a season set by last year's squad, and it also repeated as Old Colony League champs, sharing the title with Bridgewater-Raynham.

TAKING A BACK SEAT

Safety experts maintain that children are safest riding in the back seats of vehicles. And a review of data involving all fatal U.S. car crashes during a recent eight-year period reveals that parents are increasingly getting this message. There has been an 11% decline in the number of children under age six seated in front seats. The data also showed that a child over age six who was traveling alone with the driver was given times more likely to be riding in the front passenger seat. Parents cite their difficulty in turning around and responding to children as their reason for seating young children up front. Once the habit of sitting in back is established, however, children quickly adapt. The safety of our customers and their families is very important to use here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO and we want them to be informed. We are small enough to provide friendly, personal service and large enough to have the latest, most modern equipment, and ASE Certified technicians who are constantly trained and re-trained. You can trust your auto repairs to us at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

HINT: The data show that children under age are generally seated in car seats in back, but they begin to migrate toward the front once they graduate to booster seats.

South Shore Mental Health

Far too often, images of people with mental illness are negative. Most of us have watched movies or television programs that portray a person with mental illness as less intelligent. We have heard comedians making fun of people with mental illness — using disparaging words like "crazy," "lunatic" or "nuts." Almost all of us have read a newspaper article about a criminal, in which a history of mental illness is highlighted.

Such images have created a bias in many minds of what a person with mental illness is supposed to be like.

As a result of these misconceptions, people with mental illnesses may experience ridicule, discrimination, hostility or even violence, instead of receiving compassion, acceptance or, most importantly, the help that they need.

"This is the last great stigma of the 20th century," Tipper Gore, the former vice president's wife, has said. "Initially, we wouldn't talk about cancer or AIDS, either. But now we do," she said, comparing mental illness to these diseases.

Stay Healthy With Clean Hands

(NAPS) — One of the most important ways to stay healthy is through proper hand hygiene.

Health experts estimate that 80 percent of infectious diseases are spread by hand contact, not through the air by coughs and sneezes as commonly believed. Therefore, they urge everyone to do what it takes to keep their hands clean.

"Many people are surprisingly careless about hand hygiene," said Donald Goldmann, M.D., professor of pediatrics, Harvard Medical School. "There is a simple solution — wash your hands with soap and water or use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer. Hand sanitizers kill germs quickly and reliably when you can't get to a sink."

It's especially important to clean the germs from your hands when you're sick with a cough or cold, after changing a diaper and after handling raw food, especially meat and poultry. Some other "germy" places are where young children gather and infections spread easily, including schools and day care centers.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention says that hand hygiene is the single most important way to prevent the spread of infection. However, one major problem is that it's not always convenient to run to a sink and scrub your hands. In fact, one recent study indicates that almost 40 percent of the time when consumers should clean their hands throughout the day, soap and water are not available. But today, consumers have options for keeping their hands clean.

Alcohol-based instant hand sanitizers, like Purell, can be carried with you and

According to the Surgeon General's Report of December 1999, roughly one out of five people in the United States are affected by a mental disorder during a given year. With proper education and understanding, we can end this stigma. Below are some commonly held misconceptions about mental illness.

Myth: Mentally ill people are dangerous.

Fact: Statistics show that people with mental illness commit no more acts of violence than the rest of the general population.

Myth: A person who is mentally ill can never be normal.

Fact: Mental illnesses are highly treatable. Most individuals with mental illness can recover and resume normal activities such as working and actively participating in their communities.

Myth: One needs to be have differently with a person who has mental illness.

Fact: A person with mental illness wants and deserves to be respected and treated with the same dignity as anyone else.

Myth: People who suffer from mental illness are weak or lack the willpower to overcome their illness.

Fact: "One of the most widely believed and most damaging myths is that mental illness is a personal failure, not a physical disease," Tipper Gore has said. "Nothing could be further from the truth." Many mental illnesses are known to have biological causes, just like cancer, diabetes and heart disease. Genetic factors, family history, chronic medical illness, substance abuse and severe traumatic life crises may create a predisposition to mental illness.

Hopefully, learning about mental illness will help all of us become more sensitive to people who live with mental illness. The Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA) is offering a fact sheet that provides the latest data on mental health, as well as ways to avoid stigmatizing those with mental illness. These materials can be obtained by calling SAMHSA's Center for Mental Health Services Knowledge Exchange Network at 800-789-2647.

The next time you hear someone make a false or negative statement about mental illness, you can help break the stigma by providing him or her with accurate facts and information.

Bayview Associates, a program of South Shore Mental Health, has licensed psychologist, social workers and psychiatrists who can help. If you or someone you know could benefit from talking to a licensed professional, call 617-847-1950.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

PERMANENT REPLACEMENT TEETH

While more of us are keeping our teeth well into our eighties, people are likely to lose one, two, or a few teeth rather than a set. When replacing these teeth, people are increasingly turning to dental implants, or permanent replacement teeth. The ideal candidate for a dental implant is in good health, does not smoke (which inhibits healing), and has healthy gums and sufficient supporting bone in the jaw. Even when the bone is missing due to resorption, trauma, or disease, a bone graft can be made prior to starting the implant procedure. This will add several months to the process, however. The success rate of dental implants is 90% over ten years, and complications are rare.

A dental implant feels and looks like your own lost tooth. Let us help you look better!

We stress good oral hygiene and preventive dentistry for the whole family. The recommendations we make are always in the best interest of our patients. Patient education and awareness are keys to prevention and early detection of dental problems. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we are committed to providing you with the best possible dental care in a warm and caring environment. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com

P.S. Because implants (like teeth) can fracture, people who grind their teeth at night should wear mouth guards while sleeping.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Someone once said that character is the foundation stone upon which one must build to win respect. Just as no worthy building can be erected on a weak foundation, so no lasting reputation worthy of respect can be built on a weak character.

"Character grows out of an awareness of the different between right and wrong. It develops from a desire to embrace the right and avoid the wrong. It matures in the making of deliberate choices between doing what one ought to do and what one may prefer to do, especially when the former requires some sacrifice and hardship. It enables us to resist every kind of pressure when expediency clashes with principle and when shortsighted people clamor today for something they will condemn tomorrow."

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) The adventurous Aries won't be disappointed with taking on a new challenge, despite some initial misgivings. Look for this move to open other opportunities down the line.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Let that beautiful Bovine smile not only put you at ease, but also show that you're ready, willing and more than able to confound the naysayers around you. A new admirer has important news.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Be careful how you handle a relationship that you're hoping to save. You already have the facts on your side. Avoid weakening your position by embellishing it with unnecessary dramatics.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Taking definitive stands isn't easy for the often-wavering Moon Child. But you not only need to stay with your decision, but also to reassure others it was the right thing to do.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) As a proud Lion, you're right to be upset about those who might be lying about you to others. But the best revenge is proving them wrong by succeeding at what you set out to do.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Caution is still advised before making a financial commitment to a "promising" project. Look for the facts behind the fluff. Devote the weekend to loved ones.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A Taurus offers comfort and advice as you deal with an upsetting event. Use this as a learning experience that will help you avoid similar problems in the future.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A romantic situation creates some chaos for single Scorpions. But it's well worth the effort to work things out. A trusted friend can offer some helpful advice.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Expect to make new friends as your social circle expands. Also, remember to tell that family member how proud you are of his or her achievements.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) New ventures continue to be favored. And with your self-confidence rising all the time, you'll want to see how well you can do with a new challenge. So, go to it.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) This is a good time for the usually "serious-minded" Aquarian to let loose and enjoy some fun times. Expect to get good news about a workplace issue.

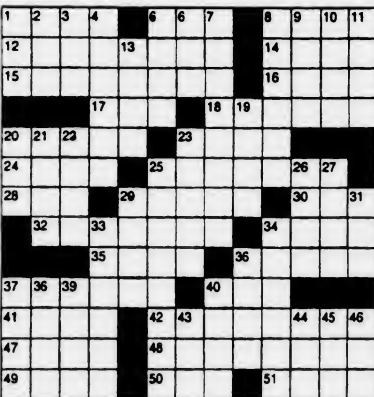

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Changed plans might upset some people, but your needs should be respected. Offer explanations when necessary. But don't let yourself be talked into changing your decisions.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a gift for bringing people together. You would make a fine judge or counselor.

Jeffrey Clifford Named Suffolk County Prosecutor

Suffolk Assistant District Attorney Jeffrey Clifford of Hanson, a Quincy native, has been named to the post of rapid indictment prosecutor in the juvenile unit of the office.

In his new position, Clifford will be involved with the indictment and prosecution of adult and juvenile violent offenders from Boston's Roxbury and Dorchester neighborhoods. Many of the cases involve illegal use of firearms and defendant who are affiliated with gangs.

"Jeffrey's well-deserved promotion comes as no surprise to those who work with him," said acting District Attorney Elizabeth Keeley. "He is an effective, diligent prosecutor engaged in the important work of holding violent offenders accountable for their crimes and making the neighborhood safe

McFarland Sounds Warning City Facing $2 Million Budget Shortfall

City Auditor Michael McFarland reported to city councillors Monday night that the city was facing a $2 million budget shortfall for the current fiscal year, which ends June 30.

"We're spending right now at a rate that we can no longer sustain," reported McFarland, pointing to decreases in state aid, decreases in MWRA funds, and the general economic downturn as primary factors.

"We passed a budget a year ago based on a different set of assumptions that are not the reality today."

McFarland provided councillors with a two-page summary of financial figures which showed an estimated $1 million deficit on the city side of the budget and a similar deficit for the Quincy Public Schools, adding that the city will have no free cash at the end of the year and will need to either find new sources or revenue or reduce expenditures.

"We can do one or the other," said McFarland.

McFarland's remarks also noted possible 10 percent cuts in state aid for Fiscal Year 2003, prompting councillors to discuss, albeit generally, such measures as user fees, Proposition 2 1/2 overrides, and use of the city's "Rainy Day Fund."

Property Tax Classification Public Hearing March 18

The City Council is scheduled to hold a public hearing on property tax classification Monday, March 18 at 7 p.m. in the council chambers of City Hall.

The setting of the tax classification percentage, the means by which the city's tax burden is shifted from residential to commercial property, will allow tax rates for both residential and commercial properties to be set and enable the city to send out fourth quarter tax bills using actual figures.

The city currently has a 169 percent classification; the state maximum is 175 percent.

The City Council will also hold its regularly scheduled meeting that night.

Disagree With Patrol Officers' Concerns Over Public Safety

Phelan, Falco: Council Cruiser Discussion 'Inappropriate'

By CRAIG SALTERS

Both Mayor William Phelan and Acting Police Chief William Falco are calling "inappropriate" the discussion of the city's allocation of police resources — including the number and general location of cruisers patrolling the city — at Monday night's meeting of the City Council.

Monday night's discussion was prompted by a March 4 letter written by the executive board of the Quincy Police Patrol Officers' Association and sent to Ward 1 Councillor Gregory Hanley, the chairman of the council's Public Safety Committee, who introduced the letter to fellow councillors and submitted it for the public record.

The letter, which was explained briefly at Monday night's meeting by Quincy Police Officer Tim Sorgi, president of the patrolmen's union, expresses concern for public safety regarding adjustments in patrol car manning levels recently adopted by Falco, calling some changes "unacceptable for the citizens of Quincy as well as for the officers working these shifts."

But Phelan and Falco say public safety is not compromised in the staffing adjustments, which Falco said have been implemented in the past, but rather by the public discussion of private police business.

having a one-day sale; Grade 7 will concentrate on geometry, measurement, and three-dimensional figures; and Grade 8 math and science students will work together, focusing of the theme of Sparta the Olympian and Weather. Individual projects will be on display.

QHS Parent Advisory Committee To Meet March 14

The Quincy High School Parent Advisory Committee will hold its monthly meeting Thursday, March 14 from 7:15 p.m. until 9:15 p.m. at the high school.

All QHS parents are welcome.

Phelan, Falco: Council Cruiser Discussion 'Inappropriate'

"My concern is that Officer Sorgi compromised public safety by publicly discussing police information," said Phelan. "I believe his actions at the council meeting were totally inappropriate and should be reviewed by the chief of police."

Falco, who said a recent directive authored by him addressing the proper chain of command and officers speaking before groups was written exactly to prevent such instances from occurring, said discussions of staffing levels fall under the category of police business and therefore should be discussed privately.

"We're not trying to keep any information from anyone, including the council, but there are certain matters, such as staffing, that are to be discussed in executive session or in private with appropriate city officials," said Falco.

Falco said it was inappropriate of both Officer Sorgi and councillors to discuss the level of patrols and their locations.

Reached for comment Tuesday, Sorgi emphasized that the letter was written by the union's executive board and given only to Councilor Hanley in his capacity as chairman of the Public Safety Committee, who in turn decided to make the document public.

"The intention of the letter was to make Chairman Hanley aware," said Sorgi.

"We have no intention of waging a public battle."

Sorgi, however, was quick to call Hanley's decision "appropriate" and defended charges that the letter defied the chain of command or jeopardized public safety.

"I'm well aware of the chain of command in my duties as a police officer," said Sorgi, "but the letter was from the executive board and we operate independently from the chain of command."

"To say that public safety was compromised (by public discussion) is shortchanging the citizens of Quincy who are living in the areas where these patrol cars are being pulled."

"It was appropriate," Hanley said he received the union's letter that day and had intended to introduce it as correspondence during that night's meeting of the Public Safety Committee on Community Policing which was postponed because Falco was unable to attend.

Later, when discussing a $110,000 police transfer, Hanley sought guidance as to whether the letter was a matter for the Finance or Public Safety Committees and was told it should be referred to both.

Hanley conceded that discussion might have become too detailed concerning police business but said the letter was clearly appropriate.

"I don't think some of the specifics should have been discussed but I don't fault anyone," said Hanley. "It's unfortunate that the questioning led to a possible breach in patrol security but the question of adequate manning levels is a public safety issue and should be made public."

"As chairman of the Public Safety Committee, when someone brings something like this to my attention, especially when it's the president of the patrolmen's union, it's my duty to address it."

According to the union's March 4 letter, with the exception of Friday and Saturday evenings, manning levels are allowed to go "as low as ten patrol cars on every shift" instead of the previous 13 patrol cars.

Falco, emphasizing again that such information was not for public discussion, refused to comment on the number of patrol cars on any given shift or the number of patrol areas the city had.

He did say, however, that recent adjustments were made to keep the department "within budget" and had been done in the past.

The number of patrol cars covering the city is "well above safety levels," said Falco.

Phelan supported Falco's adjustments. Said the mayor:

"It's my understanding that public safety was not compromised by any decisions that the chief has made relative to reining in overtime expenses. It's a perfectly responsible decision by a department head."

$225,000 More In FEMA Funds To Help Flood-Prone Homes

Quincy has been awarded an additional $225,000 from FEMA's Hazard Mitigation Program.

The HMGP grant will fund Phase 4 of the city's program to retrofit, flood-proof, or elevate residential properties that suffer from repetitive coastal and riverine wetland flooding.

The additional FEMA funds were announced by Mayor William Phelan and the Department of Planning and Community Development.

"This additional grant will increase the number of homeowners that do not have to worry about having flood damage each time there is a storm or a heavy rainfall," Phelan said.

He said FEMA hazard mitigation is an appropriate strategy for Quincy because it reduces or eliminates repetitive losses of life and property from natural disasters. Many homeowners that experience flood damage tend to undertake repairs to pre-disaster conditions. Such efforts are wasteful because they perpetuate a cycle of damage, reconstruction, and repeated damage.

"This hazard mitigation program will break such cycle by providing assistance to determining long-term solutions to the problem, and grant funds to enable homeowners to retrofit their homes so that they would no longer be vulnerable to repetitive flood damage."

HMGP is a Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) program that is jointly administered by the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Management (DEM) and the Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency (MEMA). These agencies believe that Quincy needs the grant and can manage it effectively. Phelan said.

Robert Nadeau, Mitigation Grants Coordinator from MEMA, in a letter to FEMA stated: "We feel that the City of Quincy has done an excellent job managing their elevation and retrofit program under HMGP...With the City's management abilities, we feel that 10-15 homeowners will receive greater flood protection because of these funds."

Quincy Planning Director Richard Meade said:

"Since 1993, the city has completed about 60 projects and another six are in different stages of implementation."

Among those that benefited in the program he said, was Joseph Cotter whose house was sinking due to flooding. He took advantage of the city's grant to elevate his home above the flood level and says: "If my home ever sees water damage again, we would have to be in the midst of a disaster of an unprecedented level. This is a superb program which all homeowners within a flood zone should avail themselves."

Sheila Joyce, another beneficiary, said: "This program allowed me to build a home several feet above flood level. This program greatly helped with the cost. I don't know if I would have attempted this project without FEMA assistance."

Eligible activities funded under this program include: elevation or relocation of the heating system, electric panel, washers, dryers, and hot water heaters, sealing of windows, doors and bulkheads in existing basements, construction of a new utility room outside the house; elevating residential structures; etc. Some homes whose conditions did not allow their elevation may be demolished and new modular homes installed in their place.

Moments in time

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On March 6, 1475, Michelangelo Buonarroti, the greatest of the Italian Renaissance artists, is born in the small village of Caprese. He later painted the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel. Michelangelo's epic ceiling frescoes, which took several years to complete, are among his most memorable works.

• On March 8, 1917, in Russia, the February Revolution (known as such because of Russia's use of the Julian calendar) begins when riots and strikes over the scarcity of food erupt in Petrograd. One week later, centuries of czarist rule in Russia ended with the abdication of Nicholas II, and Russia took a dramatic step toward communist revolution.

• On March 10, 1938, for the first time since they began in 1927, the names of Academy Award winners are kept secret until their announcement at the awards ceremony, which took place on this day.

• On March 4, 1944, Louis "Lepke" Buchalter, the head of Murder Inc., is executed at Sing Sing prison in New York. Lepke was the leader of the country's largest crime syndicate throughout the 1930s.

• On March 5, 1969, the Dade County Sheriff's Office in Florida issues an arrest warrant for The Doors' lead singer, Jim Morrison. He is charged with a single felony count and three misdemeanors for his stage antics at a Miami concert a few days earlier.

• On March 9, 1997, Christopher Wallace, a.k.a. Biggie Smalls, a.k.a. the Notorious B.I.G., is shot to death at a stoplight in Los Angeles. The murder was apparently the culmination of an ongoing feud between rap music artists from the East and West Coasts.

• On March 7, 1999, American filmmaker Stanley Kubrick dies in Hertfordshire, England, at the age of 70. One of the most acclaimed film directors of the 20th century, Kubrick's 13 feature films explored the dark side of human nature.

Olympic Torches Donated

Two of the Olympic torches carried by Quincy residents are being donated by them as mementos for posterity.

Geoff Hennessey, North Quincy girls track coach and long-time director of the Quincy Track Club who carried his torch in Boston, is donating it to North Quincy High School.

Ron Cashman, who carried his in Quincy, has already presented it to the Quincy Park and Recreation Department.

Recreation Director Barry Welch said the Cashman torch will be put on display at the recreation complex. And he is now in the process of collecting photos of the nine Quincy residents who were selected to carry the torch Dec. 27 to be made part of the exhibit.

CASHMAN

The seven in addition to Hennessey and Cashman, are the latter's sister, Karen Cashman-Lehman, a bronze medal winner in team speed-skating in the 1994 Winter Olympics; Ray Cattaneo, Dan Coughlin, Gaetano Spinelli, Guy Spinelli, David McCarthy and Donald Cornell.

Welch would like photos of them carrying the torch. Hennessey, in a recent letter, informed us of his plan to donate his torch to NQHS.

"My good friend Mike McFarland (school committee) thought that would be a good idea -- and it is. This way, it won't disappear in a yard sale or get broken 10 years from now."

Hennessey says he doesn't know why he was selected to carry the torch in Boston instead of in Quincy.

But he wound up in some pretty good company. In his 12-member group of carriers was Bill Rodgers of Boston Marathon fame.

And, he writes:

"Our torches were turned on and off by Olympic workers. Imagine my shock when the motorcyclist who came to my assistance was none other than Mitt Romney himself. The head of the whole thing.

"I reminded Mitt that when he came to Quincy a few years ago to run in the Marshal William Degan Road Race, I was his escort. He remembered!"

Geoff's letter incidentally was prompted by a recent column responding to an anonymous complaint about The Sun's coverage of the torch bearers.

"I read with great enjoyment your editorial regarding the anonymous writer who complained about the coverage of the Olympic Torch Run," he wrote.

"Personally, the coverage was great and Ray Cattaneo deserved center stage on this one.

"Ray has toiled for years coaching and teaching youth the skills of baseball with little or no accolades and probably no financial remuneration."

And, anyone who knows Ray, will certainly agree with Geoff on that.

Applications Available For Sterling PTO Scholarships

The Sterling Middle School PTO is offering scholarships to high school seniors who have graduated from the Sterling Middle School and are planning to further their education beyond the high school level.

Applications may be picked up from the Guidance Offices of Quincy High School, North Quincy High School, and Sterling Middle School and then submitted to: Principal Earl Metzler, Sterling Middle School, 444 Granite St., MA 02169.

The deadline for returning applications is April 9.

Contributions to the scholarship fund may also be sent to the same address.

"I KNOW YOU!" Angelika Christie tells Mayor William Phelan as they renewed acquaintances at the Beechwood Community Life Center.

(Sharron Beals photo)

HE'S BETTER KNOWN today as the mayor by most people but not quite so to Angelika Christie of East Elm Ave.

His Honor Bill Phelan recently spoke at the Current Events Breakfast at Beechwood Community Life Center and then visited the Drop In Senior Center there.

"I know you!", Angelika said as he approached her. "Yes, he's our new mayor," a friend told her.

"No! I really know you from my life," Angelika continued.

"I think you do, too," said Phelan. "Where do you live?"

"East Elm Ave.," Angelika replied.

"And who was your mail carrier?", Phelan asked.

"Yes! You!", Angelika nearly screamed with delight.

"You delivered my mail with your pretty wife and baby."

"And you gave treats," Phelan recalled.

Phelan at that time was working his way through law school as a letter carrier. His wife, Tracey, sometimes walked his route with him and one of the children in a back pack.

THE STATE PRIMARIES aren't until Sept. 17 but business is picking up in the Quincy Election Department.

Two local candidates are among four who have already filed nomination papers: Senator Michael Morrissey for reelection and Mark Tobin for Norfolk County Register of Probate.

TOBIN

Deadline for submitting papers for state senator, state representative, governor's councillor and county office is April 30, 5 p.m.

State-wide candidates who have already filed in Quincy are Shannon O'Brien for governor and William Galvin, secretary of state. Their deadline is May 7.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1920'S postcard view of the old Swedish Congregational Church at 62 Garfield Street in West Quincy. It was built in 1885 and remodeled into this magnificent Gothic style structure in 1899. Swedish immigrants who came to Quincy as quarrymen and stonemasons first started the congregation in 1872. For the first 50 years all services held here were in the Swedish language, then in the 1930s English was used every other week. By the 1950s all services were held in English. By then the congregation had changed its name to the Covenant Congregational Church, as it is now known. They held their last service here in December 1956, and moved to a new church building on Whitwell Street. They had purchased that two-acre site in 1929. This Garfield Street church was demolished years ago and the site is now used as a storage yard by the West Quincy Motors repair shop.

If Faxon Field Wrong Place, Keep Looking

The ongoing search for an appropriate site for a new Quincy High School building sounds like a never-ending story. The latest proposed site is Faxon Field off Coddington Street and near the current high school.

However, there seem to be some environmental concerns about flooding and wetlands. The neighborhood nearest the site is rightfully concerned. I believe the City of Quincy needs a new high school but it should be both physically safe for students and environmentally safe for its neighbors.

As far as the much-touted 90 percent reimbursement from the state, with the economic downturn and resultant budget crisis, eventually, it could become 90 percent of nothing which is nothing.

Regardless, a new high school is needed. Also, after having been a substitute teacher at Central Middle School, a new Central is badly needed, too.

Both current schools look as shaky as the Fore River Bridge. The old bridge is actually newer than both Quincy schools. Frank Santoro does a great job over at Central but the kids there deserve a better school building. Our children need good schools to go along with our good teachers and principals.

If Faxon Field is the wrong place, keep looking. However, we can't wait forever. Our children are our city's future. Let's begin the future today.

Citizens Are Convention Winners

The Joint Convention is over and many would say that there were winners and losers. We believe that there were winners all around.

The obvious winner was Elaine Dwyer who won the seat. Congratulations and good luck to her as she begins her term as a School Committee member.

Those candidates who were not selected were winners as well. They demonstrated courage in seeking the position and it was inspiring to see so many qualified people who were willing to serve our city. This bodes well for Quincy and we hope that they will continue to serve the community in other capacities.

The biggest winners, however, were the citizens of Quincy. After a rocky start to the convention, Mayor Phelan treated others with civility and respect and the City Councillors and School Committee members responded in kind. The by-product of this behavior was an orderly meeting where all points of view were heard and good decisions were made. It is our hope that this becomes the normal course of business going forward. If so, we will all reap the rewards.

In doing the important work of running the city, reasonable people will necessarily disagree. But we can disagree without being disagreeable. Hearing different points of view helps people to flesh out the important issues and to make informed decisions. Let's take the lessons learned from this chapter in Quincy history and forge ahead with renewed vigor.

New Grossman's Store Planned

By PAUL HAROLD

Joseph B. Grossman announced plans to build a $400,000 store, replacing its Granite St. location that was sold to Jewel Tea for the construction of a new super market.

The Grossman store deal was dependent on the court allowing Grossman to purchase the Lewis Bass estate located west of the railroad tracks. Grossman offered Boston Safe Deposit and Trust, trustees of the Bass estate, $75,000 for the land.

The new 40,000-50,000 square foot store would be on one level and would consolidate all the Grossman's retail operations under one roof.

BRETT PROPOSES NEW WING BE NAMED FOR REARDON

Rep. Joseph Brett renewed his efforts to have the new hospital wing named for Dr. Daniel Reardon. In a letter to Edna Austin, chairman of the hospital board of managers, Brett said Dr. Reardon was "Quincy's most highly respected physician in the past half century."

Dr. Reardon was on the staff of Quincy City Hospital for 40 years and was the first Quincy physician elected president of the Mass. Medical Society.

OPPOSITION TO DUMPING AT GALLOPS

The Squantum Women's Club voted to oppose dumping and burning on Gallops Island as a health hazard and detriment to recreational uses in the harbor.

Club president Mrs. Arcel Doane sent a letter to state public health commissioner Dr. Alfred Frechette stating members' opposition. Meanwhile, other community groups and church clubs joined the women's club in the campaign to end dumping at Gallops.

Library Donation Highlights Italian-American Experience

The Thomas Crane Public Library has purchased 17 books dealing with the culture and experience of Italian immigrants, both locally and across the United States, thanks to a generous donation made by Acton resident Margaret (Mastrantonio) Fortier in memory of her late father, James Mastrantonio.

Mastrantonio, a lifelong Quincy resident and a hairdresser in Quincy Center for many years, died two years ago. He was an active member of the Sons of Italy and St. John's Church and was involved with the Senior Olympics.

"We just want people to know that these books are available," said Mastrantonio's widow, Mary Mastrantonio, who called her daughter's donation to the library a very appropriate memorial and added her hope that the books would be of interest to Quincy residents.

The books are:
In the Garden of Papa Santuzzo by Tony Ardizzone; Umbertina by Helen Barolini; Betrothed by Alessandro Manzoni; Grandmothers, Mothers, and Daughters by Corinne Krause; Fate and Honor, Family and Village by Rudolph Bell; La Merica: Images of Italian Greenhorn Experience by Michael La Sorte.

American Dream, An Immigrant's Quest by Angelo Pellegrini; Celebrating Italy by Carol Field; Dream Book: An Anthology of Writing by Italian-American Women; Italian American Family History by Susan Debartolo Carmack; Dream Streets: The Big Book of Italian-American Culture; Rosa, the Life of an Italian Immigrant by Marie Hall Ets.

Italian-American Family Album by Dorothy Hoobler; Were You Always An Italian? by Maria Laurino; Mount Allegro by Jerre Mangione; Italian American Heritage, A Companion to Literature; and Italian American Experience: An Encyclopedia.

Scrabble Tourney March 21 To Benefit Literacy Project

The Literacy Volunteers of America-Quincy at the Thomas Crane Public Library and literacy partner Altrusa International of Quincy are sponsoring the fourth annual Scrabble fundraiser to benefit the Literacy Project Thursday, March 21 from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. in the library program meeting room at 40 Washington St.

Registration fee is $10 per person. The event will also feature games, prizes, and surprises which promise to make it a fun evening for all.

The Scrabble play is not traditional. For a brief 30 minutes a team of four to six players builds words on the board using the entire bag of Scrabble tiles. At the end of 30 minutes, scores are totaled horizontally and vertically.

ally. The top three high scoring teams win.

The twist on the game is that a team can buy tiles to improve its chance to win. Brave and talented team players willing to face the judges can choose a specific letter tile for impersonating a famous character, telling a great joke, or quoting a famous line from a movie.

The fun and rousing Scrabble evening benefits a good cause: The Thomas Crane Public Library literacy program which serves the South Shore community. Volunteers are trained and matched through LVA-Quincy and have provided free tutoring to adults in basic reading and writing since 1986.

LVA-Quincy is a full affiliate of the national network of Literacy Volunteers and is one of 12 LVA programs statewide.

Altrusa International of Quincy is an international association of business executives and professionals who volunteer their energies and expertise in projects dedicated to community betterment. Altrusa has donated funds, equipment, and materials to the Literacy Project; assisted at library fundraisers; provided volunteer tutors; and most recently has initiated an annual story telling event at the Snug Harbor School.

The past Scrabble tournaments have been a great success, said Literacy Project Manager Elaine Kline, who noted space is limited for the event. For more information, call Kline at (617) 376-1314.
